Leaders Act To Squelch Charter Fight At First Hint

Troops Reservation Would Be Ruinous, Both Vandenberg And Connally Warn

By Robert C. Albright

The first formal hint that the San Francisco Charter faces a reservation fight on the Senate floor yesterday brought a bipartisan warning that any Senate change in the 50-nation agreement might cut short its life.

Cautions against Senatorial limitations on use of United States troops against potential aggressors came from the Senate's own delegates to the San Francisco Conference as the Foreign Relations Committee heard the State Department rest its case for unqualified ratification.

Completing in record time the Administration's technical analysis of the Charter, the committee voted in executive session to proceed with opposition testimony today, limiting each witness to 15 minutes flat.

May Finish This Week

Names of 12 to 15 scheduled opponents were withheld by the committee, which at the same time approved a parallel list of friendly witnesses. Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) told newsmen the committee may finish its work on the Charter this week and get a favorable report to the Senate by Tuesday.

The reservation debate, touched off by persistent but noncommittal inquiries by Senator Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) highlighted a day of mostly technical testimony by Dr. Leo Pasvolsky, State Department expert on international organization, and Green H. Hackworth, chief United States authority on the proposed International Court of Justice.

Pasvolsky and Hackworth backed up stormy statements by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) that to require Congress to pass on Security Council use of troops in each case of threatened aggression would violate the Constitution as well as the "spirit of the Charter" and by Connally that it would "cut out the Charter's insides."

Could Be Hamstrung

Questioned by Millikin, who later told newsmen he has not made up his mind whether to get behind some half a dozen reservations proposed by Senator Harlan J. Bushfield (R., S. Dak.), Pasvolsky told the committee the Security Council obviously would have to know in advance what troops it could count on against potential aggression. For Congress to decide in each case, he said, would "defeat the purpose."

Later Hackworth, questioned by Senator Theodore F. Green (D., R. I.), cautioned:

"Any (Senate) reservations, in order to be accepted, must be ratified by all the other nations. . . . If you want to be sure you become a party to this instrument, I would be rather chary about making reservations."

Connally and Vandenberg met Millikin's reservation feelers more forcefully and head-on.

"You have a perfect right to offer a reservation to the Charter," said Connally, "but it would be a very foolish policy to adopt. . . . If we've got to wait to get Congress to consent (to use of force in each case) the next war will be on and you won't be able to control it."

Said Vandenberg:

"If we are going to require Congress to pass on the use of our troops in each case, we would not only be violating the spirit of the Charter, but violating the Constitution of the United States.

"Under the Constitution the President has the right to use our forces in a preliminary way to prevent war. Our Presidents have done it 72 times over 150 years . . . To use our troops in this manner is analogous to the Council using force in a preliminary way to pre-

Valued at 17 Million

A handful of AFL engineers yesterday halted construction work on four vital war projects in the Washington area, and impaired work on four other sites, making idle more than 1300 AFL craft union members.

Three more projects "very probably" will be picketed today, it was announced last night by union representatives after a meeting with other AFL officials. Contractors can expect "double the number of pickets" these union men said.

Fourteen pickets, representing the International Federation of Technical Engineers, Architects and Draftsmen (AFL) appeared before 7:30 a. m. at the job sites. The union seeks recognition by local contractors. Most of those who refused to cross picket lines of one of two men each were members of unions affiliated with Washington Building and Construction Trades Council (AFL).

Value Exceeds 17 Million

Total value of the projects affected exceeds 17 million dollars, contractors said.

Projects where all work ceased yesterday were: Army Map Service, Dalecarlia — a four million dollar cartography building; Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md.—$1,500,000 in new facilities; Navy Bureau of Yards and Docks—value unestimated, new administration buildings; Georgetown University Hospital, Reservoir rd. nw.—$2,400,000 new hospital.

Truman, Aides Making Trip On Cruiser

President Allows News To Be Sent From His Vessel

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

Aboard Cruiser Augusta in Mid-atlantic With President Truman, July 10 (AP).—President Truman sped through placid mid-Atlantic waters today en route to Potsdam for a "Big Three" meeting he hopes may speed victory over Japan as well as chart the course for permanent European peace.

A battle-tested warship is carrying the President to the sessions with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin—talks which may help shape the course of history for generations.

The vessel is part of a two-cruiser task force, under the command of Rear Admiral Allan R. McCann.

May Be USS Augusta

The presidential party, which includes James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, and Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's chief of staff, will fly from the port of debarkation to the Berlin area. Mr. Truman will use the big C-54 luxury liner in which he traveled to the United Nations Conference at San Francisco.

Capt. James H. Foskett commands the ship carrying the President. The other cruiser is commanded by Capt. Robert L. Boller.

Capital Quota Doubled

D. C. Broke War Loan Records, National Sales Exceeded Goal

The District smashed all records in the Seventh War Loan drive, more than doubling its 113 million dollar quota while the Nation oversubscribed its 14 billion dollar goal by more than 12 billions, concluding drive figures released here revealed.

A last-minute tabulation of late sales pushed local Series E bond sales over the top of the 48 millions goal, with final figures not available. The Nation narrowly missed the 4 billions Series E goal by 24 million dollars.

Henry Morgenthau, jr., in what he termed his valediciory speech as Secretary of the Treasury over the Columbia Broadcasting Co. at 7:30 p. m. last night praised the successful drive as "a magnificent demonstration of the voluntary teamwork of a free people . . . engaged in an act of faith."

He also gave high praise to the six million bond salesmen who deserve "the full credit for what has been achieved," and paid special tribute to Ted R. Gamble, War Finance Division Director, and Undersecretary of the Treasury Daniel W. Bell.

In closing Morgenthau called for continued cooperation with "the able leadership of my successor, Judge Fred Vinson. There is still a titanic task before us."

Over-all sales for the District was $229,700,000 with a 113 millions goal. Over-all sales for the Nation were $26,313,000,000 with a 14 billions goal.

U. S. Brushes Jap Peace Feelers Aside

Moves Are Chiefly Propaganda, Grew Says; Unconditional Terms Still Stand

By the Associated Press

Japan's vague peace feelers were brushed aside yesterday by Acting Secretary of State Grew with a sharp reminder that the United States is interested only in the enemy's unconditional surrender.

Grew told of four specific indirect approaches on behalf of the Japanese but said that the United States Government never has received a real peace offer from the Japanese government "either through official or unofficial channels."

The Japanese, Grew said in a statement, are using peace feelers as the Germans did, to stir up trouble in the Allied countries and particularly to try to arouse debate on the terms to be applied to Japan.

Grew is Emphatic

Grew spoke strongly on the subject and chose an unusual means to emphasize the importance which he attaches to his statement. Instead of releasing it through the regular State Department press officer he himself visited the newsroom where a score of reporters were gathered. He said there had been a lot of rumors about alleged peace offers from the Japanese and he wanted to clear the air.

In his statement he said:

"The situation today is exactly the same as it was on June 29 when I made my last statement on this subject. We have received no peace offer from the Japanese government, either through official or unofficial channels.

"Conversations relating to peace have been reported to the department from various parts of the world but in no case has an approach been made to this Government, directly or indirectly, by a person who could establish his authority to speak for the Japanese government, and in no case has an offer of surrender been made. In no case has this Government been presented with a statement purporting to define the basis upon which the Japanese government would be prepared to conclude peace.

Raised Question of "Face"

"The alleged 'peace feelers' have invariably been inquiries as to our position. On one occasion, 'leading Japanese industrialists' were reported as wanting to know the best possible conditions the Allies would advance for a compromise peace.

"On another occasion, the representative in Tokyo of a neutral government reported that he had been told by a private Japanese individual that the Japanese could not accept unconditional surrender because it would mean loss of face.

"On still another occasion a member of the staff of the Japanese mission to a neutral country intimated to an American citizen through a German newspaperman that real American interests in the Far East should lead the United States to abandon unconditional

Southern Bloc Holds Secret FEPC Meeting

Session Reported Barring Compromise On Keeping Agency

By Mary Spargo

A secret battle pow-wow of Southern Democrats in the House to decide further strategy to kill off the Fair Employment Practice Committee was held late yesterday behind the locked doors of the House Ways and Means Committee room.

Meanwhile a meeting of the full House Appropriations Committee has been called for today to attempt to break the month-old FEPC deadlock, which has stymied the 800-million-dollar war agencies supply bill because of inclusion by the Senate of a $250,000 appropriation for the controversial agency.

Those who attended the hush session were sworn to secrecy, but members said that no compromise in the fight against FEPC is in view.

A three-man committee, reportedly headed by Representative William M. Colmer (D., Miss.), was said to have been appointed to confer with the leadership of the House.

Members were instructed to report the majority sentiment of the meeting that the Southerners would

Beer Salesman Ruled Jurist, Probers Told

By the Associated Press

A House Judiciary subcommittee investigating former Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson of Lewisburg, Pa., was told yesterday a $50-a-week Scranton beer salesman was "a broker in court cases handled by Judge Johnson."

Committee Counsel M. H. Goldschein said his statement was based on testimony before a Scranton Federal grand jury by John Memolo, Scranton attorney recently convicted in income tax frauds.

"Memolo," said Goldschein, "has described Greenes (Jacob Greenes, described as the beer salesman) as having been a broker in court cases handled by Judge Johnson and who had the power to obtain appointments and influence the court in many matters."

Fee Split Charged

An all-day hearing into Judge Johnson's handling of the receivership of the Williamsport Wire Rope Co. between 1932 and 1938 brought out these additional assertions by Goldschein, all based, he said, on grand jury testimony:

That Memolo collected "over $200,000" of $240,000 Goldschein said was paid out-of-court by the Bethlehem Steel Corp., to receivership officials appointed by Johnson; that the judge's son, Donald M. Johnson, received $15,000 on one occasion from Memolo via Greenes; that Judge Johnson obtained the deed to a $6000 summer cottage at Cherry Run, Pa., after having paid only $256.

Deed Mailed to Him

Goldschein said the judge testified before the grand jury that the deed was mailed to him and that "he never inquired into or established who might be responsible for this anonymous generosity."

"It is not possible," Goldschein continued, "to establish with certainty how much Memolo split with Donald Johnson out of the Williamsport fees.

"Greenes states (before the Scranton grand jury) that he de-

4-Power Setup Ends Berlin's Food Impasse

French Given Role In Rotation Plan For Military Rule

Berlin, July 10 (AP).—The United States, Britain and Russia, setting up a four-power "kommandature (command post)" for a rotating military government of Berlin, today solved the friction-packed problem of feeding the German capital's three million civilians.

The sore intra-Allied deadlock over Berlin's food and fuel supplies was broken by high Allied military chiefs, who said that Anglo-American troops would assume immediate and full control of their occupational zones. The way was paved for a harmonious opening of the imminent Big Three meeting.

Reached in Conference

Agreement was reached in a conference of Soviet Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov and Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Lieut. Gen. Sir Donald Weeks, American and British representatives in the Allied Control Commission for Germany.

Food will be supplied from "contributions from all Allied occupation zones in Germany," and Zhukov, Clay and Weeks took steps to solve the coal problem along the same lines.

Inviting the French to take part in the government of Berlin, the three chiefs decided the "kommandature" should comprise four military commandants, each of whom will serve as chief commandant in rotation.

For 15-Day Periods

Each American, British, Russian and French commander will head Berlin's military administration for 15 days, rotating as long as the city is occupied.

The first meeting of the "kommandature" will be held tomorrow and Soviet Col. Gen. Gorbatov will

July Uplift Story

350-Million-Acre Plantings Promise Near-Record Crops

Housewife, retailer, and wholesaler have all had their say in stories by Christine Sadler on the home front food situation. Today's article in the series reviews farm production prospects.

By Christine Sadler

Food production in the United States this year will be well above average. The big July crop report, which always tells the story, shows that the Nation's farmers—despite labor and machinery shortages as irksome to them as standing in line is to the Washington grocery shopper—will come through again with crops totaling higher yields than for any other year on record except 1942 and 1944.

There will be important increases in food grains, sugar and flaxseed, and big crops of potatoes, commercial vegetables, numerous fruits, and tobacco. The rice crop will set a record, and the oat crop will be the largest in 25 years. All told, the farmers have planted about 350 million acres in the 52 crops which furnish the major part of the country's food supply. This is the second largest number of acres planted since the war, falling only a fraction under the record of last year.

The weather, which is a gamble the corner grocery store does not have to face, was spotty bad throughout the spring and has hit the corn growers heavily—probably harder than any other big group except the apple growers of Virginia and nearby States. Corn production promises to be much less than for the past three years.

Although production figures do not tell the whole story about the amount of food which Washingtonians can count on in wartime, they are the basic factor—and the 1945 figures contain good news for consumers, rather than anything alarming.

The hay crop probably will total 101 million tons—or the second highest amount in his-

Third Fleet Task Force Fliers Smash 154 Planes

Iwo-Based Mustangs Bag 19 Others; Jap Airmen Defending Homeland in Hiding

Guam (Wednesday), July 11 (AP). The Japanese air force refused to put up anything resembling a real fight over Tokyo Tuesday as more than 1000 carrier planes of the massive U. S. Third Fleet destroyed or damaged 152 enemy planes on the ground and shot down two snoopers near the fleet, fragmentary reports disclosed today.

Whether Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey's world's largest task force stuck around today for another strike was not made clear but even the first preliminary accounts left no doubt that the enemy air force assigned to defend the homeland was in hiding.

Raids Still On, Japs Say

(International News Service said the Melbourne radio early today reported picking up a Tokyo broadcast saying the American planes still were hammering Tokyo at dawn Wednesday, Japanese time, which is 6 p. m. Tuesday, Eastern War Time. The east coast of Honshu, this report said, was "being raked on all sides.")

Obviously the Japanese had been driven from the air by a week of strikes by Iwo-based Army Mustangs, scores of which destroyed or damaged 19 enemy planes yesterday at Honshu's port city of Kobe while the carrier Hellcats, Helldivers and Avengers were roaming the Kanto plains around Tokyo to the northeast looking for targets.

Only one of the 19 was bagged in the air by the Mustangs and the first reports of the powerful carrier plane blow at Tokyo did not so much as list a single enemy interceptor shot down.

The air opposition to Vice Admiral John S. McCain's carrier raiders was so weak during the first hours that undoubtedly they returned in repeated strikes to search for camouflaged aircraft and enemy hiding places. What they found remains to be told.

Even with the 19 Mustang victims added, for a total Tuesday preliminary bag of 173 Nip aircraft, the biggest question was: Where is the Japanese air force?

While the carrier planes looked around for Tokyo's defenders, the Mustangs over Kobe had to turn to enemy shipping in the Inland Sea to keep occupied.

Not Fully Tabulated

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, who shattered precedent in yesterday's communique by not only saying the carrier attack was going on "at the present time" but also named some of the battleships and carriers, spoke only in the past tense today.

Nimitz said 72 planes were destroyed on the ground and 80 more were damaged during the first hours of the attack.

Reports remained to be tabulated for later in the day.

By noon Tuesday—seven hours after the attacks opened—there had been no determined enemy resistance in the air.

The Navy made it clear the achievements were far from the whole story, being based on admittedly "preliminary reports" of the biggest fleet stroke of the war against Nippon.

Nimitz emphasized that the raiding Third Fleet of Admiral Halsey, which included some of the biggest carriers and at least four battleships, had the ad-

McCain's Cap Makes Crew Feel Lucky

Aboard Admiral McCain's Flagship off Japan, July 10 (AP).—Vice Admiral John S. McCain's "Lucky Cap" was in the ring off Japan today—inviting the Nipponese to come out and fight.

The admiral's headgear has a band and visor of regulation Navy design, but sitting on top of, or around, the khaki-colored crown, they give the effect of a man wearing two caps.

It was made by the wife of Commander W. S. Sampson of Los Angeles, great friends of the admiral. And it is a good luck cap.

"The only time it ever blew off a seaman scrambled and grabbed it just before it went over the side," said McCain. "And that day we shot down a kamikaze before he had a chance to hit us. That's a lucky cap."

"Don't give me no helmet," said a seaman today. "All you need on this ship is a lucky cap like the old man's got!"

livered about $15,000 to Donald and that at one time Memolo told him he had paid the 'Johnsons" $23,000. These figures tie in well if the payment of $6000 for Cherry Run was not handled by Greenes, as he contends."

Memolo, Goldschein reported, was named as associated counsel for receivers of the Williamsport company by Judge Johnson in May, 1935. Subsequently, Goldschein stated, Memolo engaged in numerous conferences with the judge, with the judge's son, Donald, and with officials and attorneys for the Bethlehem Steel Co., which bought the Williamsport company in 1938 at a foreclosure sale ordered by Johnson over the objections of stock and bond holders.

Resigned Last Week

Johnson, 72, and a veteran of 20 years on the Federal bench, stepped down from his post after his resignation was accepted last week by President Truman. He cited his age as his reason for leaving the bench. He draws a full salary pension of $10,000 a year.

Under investigation for more than a year by the Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Representative Kefauver (D., Tenn.), Johnson also has been the subject of a separate Department of Justice investigation.

Chairman Sumners (D., Tex.) of the full Judiciary Committee asked on what ground Bethlehem Steel had paid out the $240,000.

"All they know," said Goldschein, "is that the bill was submitted, it was okayed by John Memolo and they paid it."

Bethlehem Steel took over the Williamsport Co. after a long series of legal maneuvers described in detail by Goldschein.

Goldschein quoted grand jury witnesses as saying Memolo had obtained a court-appointed job in the Williamsport receivership case for his brother, Martin, now dead, and that the latter was paid $66,000 for about nine months' work.

"Bethlehem Steel," Goldschein said, "does not know now what it was he did."

"He was a caretaker, wasn't he—a watchman?" interrupted Chairman Kefauver (D., Tenn.) of the subcommittee.

"You could call him that, I guess," Goldschein replied.

He added that John Memolo recovered for himself all but a few thousand dollars of the large fee paid his brother.

When some members of the committee expressed surprise at the large fees allegedly paid Memolo, Representative Jennings (R., Tenn.) commented:

"He fixed the court. He did more than his share for the money."

Lawyers Joined Club

When Goldshein referred to a hunting lodge, identified as the T-Spring Lodge, which Johnson had organized, Kefauver said:

"He (Johnson) was the chief user of the lodge. Others paid $500 to join. Practically everyone who joined was made a receiver or some other officer in receivership cases."

Kefauver added lawyers constituted the bulk of the membership.

Goldschein told the committee that Johnson had appointed his son-in-law, Carl A. Schug, as a receiver of the Williamsport company in 1932 at a fee which the judge fixed at $1000 a month.

Schug later resigned, according to Goldschein, after his fee was criticized by judges of the Third Circuit Court.

Johnson's son, Donald M. Johnson, district attorney of Snyder County (Pa.), is under indictment in connection with one receivership suit which came before his father. He has pleaded not guilty.

Lets Writer Assail Policy of Concealing Loss of Islands

San Francisco, July 10 (AP).—The Tokyo radio today tersely acknowledged Tuesday's huge carrier-borne air attack on the Japanese capital, and frankly aired surprisingly sharp criticism of Nipponese war policies by the dean of Japan's war writers.

The writer, Soho Tokutomi, criticized the government for not telling the people the truth about the loss of important Pacific islands, and assailed the policy "which since Guadalcanal has tended to dismiss the loss of strategic islands with superficial optimism."

The radio quoted a Domei correspondent who admitted he had seen bomb-torn cities in the Yokohama-Tokyo section "pitifully strewn" with debris, but he declared morale was good and the people were determined to "stick it out to the end."

Domei minimized the importance of America's mounting air fury and said "Mastery of the air is not an absolute factor."

Domei later declared the carrier-plane raids "indicate an attempt to crush Japanese air power" in the Tokyo area, and renewed indirectly its claim that the United States had lost 50 per cent of its aircraft carriers in the Okinawa campaign by saying:

"The enemy, who has been frantic in replenishing his carrier strength, has repaired those damaged, and pressed into service newly commissioned carriers."

The agency said there were 10 carriers in the task force.

Fires wrought by B-29s were brought under control this morning, one report said, and Japanese in the Sendai area were said to be "adequately" cared for with emergency foodstuffs.

FEPC

go along on a proposition to give FEPC $125,000 for liquidation purposes only.

The session was called by Representative William M. Whittington (D., Miss.), who presided.

Two or three of the Southerners said only one issue was discussed, whether to allow FEPC enough funds to liquidate it, or whether to attempt to block any funds at all for the agency.

"We're gaining ground in this fight every day," one of the leaders of the Southern bloc declared. "Why should we compromise an inch?"

Taber Shows Impatience

On the other hand, Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), ranking minority member of the appropriations group, who has previously voted against FEPC, growled his impatience yesterday with the entire legislative snarl and declared the bill should be reported out by the committee today.

House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., (R., Mass.), issued a formal statement yesterday.

"The delay and fiddling around over the War Agency Appropriation bill is not at all creditable to the Congress and is a severe reflection upon the capacity of those in charge of the legislation.

"This money, which is needed for necessary war purposes, should have been provided by July 1. Ten days have passed without any progress.

"It is time the majority party demonstrated its ability to function. The House is entitled to a chance to vote on the temporary FEPC appropriation and should be given that chance without further delay."

Cannon Cancels Meeting

Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) of the Appropriations group called a meeting for yesterday afternoon but later called it off again, presumably because there was little chance to get the bill reported with some members absent.

If the committee acts today it can amend the bill sent over by the Senate and write a death clause for FEPC into the Senate amendment, which simply gave the agency $250,000 for this fiscal year, or it can report the measure out without any changes, or with milder changes, such as have been urged by the House leadership.

In either case a stiff floor battle is in prospect, and a possible Senate fight would loom if a liquidation clause were to be inserted by the House.

vantage of "complete tactical surprise."

At the same time the fleet admiral disclosed that control of Army-based planes in the Ryukyus has passed into the hands of Admiral Douglas MacArthur.

Heaviest Day of Drubbing

Carrier and land-based planes, totalling more than 1500—they included a huge force of B-29s—roared over the enemy homeland Tuesday to give the war-battered country its heaviest day of aerial drubbing.

Nimitz reported fleet search planes, which remain under the admiral's command, sank or damaged six small enemy surface craft Monday off Honshu and Korea. MacArthur, in his communique, had listed 10 enemy vessels sunk or damaged in strikes extending from Formosa to Java.

Fleet Air Wing 18 planes, based in the Okinawa area, have sunk 50,000 tons of enemy shipping and damaged 57,000 tons since beginning operations in April over enemy home waters, Nimitz said. Fourth Marine aircraft wing planes have sunk 5000 tons and damaged 50,000.

The admiral reported that on the day of the carrier and Superfort strike at Japan, Liberator bombers of the tactical air force, based on Okinawa, struck Kikai Island in the northern Ryukyus.

The day before, "a substantial force" of the Liberators bombed Omura airfield on Kyushu, southern Japan, and started several large fires.

Search planes bombed two phosphate plants on southern Korea Monday.

The fleet hitting Japan was called the "greatest mobile striking force" of history and a Tokyo radio commentator made the pointed observation that a previous such carrier strike last February was followed by the invasion of Iwo Jima.

surrender and propose terms for a negotiated peace.

"Finally, an unidentified person approached an American mission in a neutral country, claiming that he had been authorized (by whom not indicated) to approach the government of the neutral country with a view to persuading the Allies to drop unconditional surrender and to propose terms.

"It should be borne in mind in this connection that the Japanese, like the Germans before them, rely principally upon the hope that they may be able to divide the Allies and to produce division of opinion within the Allied countries. To that end, it would be to their interest, as they see their interest, to initiate a public discussion of the terms to be applied to Japan. This they have already attempted to do on several occasions through radio Tokyo."

Tells Perils of Compromise

Grew said the Japanese would be especially anxious to use peace feelers now that "their military position is deteriorating and the condition of their civilian population becomes more critical."

Recalling that he warned last October against enemy efforts to arouse dissension among the Allies and within Allied countries, he reiterated that any surrender short of an unconditional one would allow Japanese militarists to begin building for another war.

"I have no fears as to the nature of our decision so long as our people fully understand the dangers of a compromise peace," Grew quoted from his October speech, "but let us be warned in time."

Stressing the necessity of destroying Japanese militarism, he quoted President Truman's statement in May that while unconditional surrender will mean the end of the military leadership of Japan it will also mean "provision for the return of soldiers and sailors to their families, their farms, their jobs."

American policy "is and will continue to be unconditional surrender," Grew declared adding, "that is the best comment I can make upon peace feelers and rumors of peace feelers of whatever origin."

setting a record—and also to increasing the supply of meat from other live animals.

Feed prospects, which influence pig and beef crops, are bright despite the lag in corn production, but they probably will not permit an expansion in livestock production next year as some officials had hoped.

The pickup already promised for this autumn, however, is assured by the number of beef animals on the ranges or in feed lots and by the larger fall pig crop.

Dry beans and peas will not be so plentiful this harvest, yesterday's report showed—and mainly because farmers have shifted from row crops to small grains which require less hand labor.

The biggest increase reflected in the crop report was in flaxseed, which is up 38.3 per cent from last year due to special Government incentives to boost the output of oil crops. Sugar beets are up 28.1 per cent and sugar cane 2 per cent, due to boosts needed in the sweetening supply.

Peanut production will be down 2 per cent, but well above that of normal times. Another large acreage of soybeans also is indicated, although the first forecast of this oil crop's 1945 production will not be released until August 10.

Popcorn production will be "by far the largest on record." The peach crop will be a record high, despite serious weather losses in some parts of the country. Citrus fruits probably will be average. Cherries are down 37 per cent from last year, however, and the commercial apple crop will set a record low.

The report showed that the egg production rate is continuing high, or about 30 per cent above the 1934-43 average. It is slightly below that for last year, however, and "the exceptionally high rate of lay was not sufficient to offset the decrease in chicken numbers."

"A total of 656,061,000 chicks and young chickens were on the farms July 1, or about 10 per cent more than a year ago and 20 per cent more than the prewar average," the report stated, pointing out that the demand for chickens is running far ahead of the number on hand. Both eggs and chickens are bearing a heavy part of the meat shortage brunt.

During the next three months, the report stated, consumers can expect comparatively large supplies of snap beans, beets, cantaloups, carrots, cauliflower, sweet corn, lettuce, green peppers and watermelon.

Supplies of celery, eggplant, early summer onions and tomatoes are expected to be "average or better," but summer production of green lima beans, cucumbers, green peas and spinach is "a little below average." Production of snapbeans for canning and freezing this year will be about 11 per cent more than for 1944.

Counting cane and beet increases together, sugar production of the country this year will be about 1¾ million tons—or 25 per cent more than last year. This will help, but is naturally not enough to offset the reduction of imports from Cuba, the Philippines, and other sugar-growing areas. The outlook for sirups with which to make up the sugar deficit is not bright. Less cane and sorghum is being grown this year than last and earlier reports showed maple sirup down at least 40 per cent.

Consumers can look forward to more lard—but not much of it will be in evidence before the spring and summer of 1946. The marketing of the 1945 fall pig crop will not begin until April of next year. Hogs now going to market are from the 1944 crop, which was 34 per cent smaller than for a year earlier.

Fats and oils generally are a tough national problem, but the report on them held out the statement that military requirements "probably will be less in 1946, as a result in the size of the armed forces and in the number of prisoners."

carefully watching our response to this vital drive. We have not failed them."

"Only today," he said, "was the news flashed from the Federal Reserve Bank in Richmond that Series E sales, lagging throughout the drive, had gone over the top. 'We are still counting,' the flash continued."

Waller also praised Washington's 50,000 volunteer salesmen.

"The persons who sold bonds at the booths in theaters, banks and stores and the door-to-door canvassers, were the ones who chalked up the Mighty Seventh's smashing victory. They never let down as they scratched for the necessary extra sales, not until now when we can announce that every goal has been oversubscribed."

BERLIN

be first chief.

Today's decisions in effect vindicated the Soviet position on the feeding of Berlin after the same three Allied representatives failed to agree last Saturday.

It was presumed that American and British transport systems would bring considerable stocks of both food and fuel into their Berlin sectors from the western occupation zones. The Anglo-American demand previously had been that all Berlin should be supplied from its Soviet-held hinterland.

Where approximately 1000 tons of food daily for Berliners living under the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack would be found in western Germany was an unanswered question, but it was obvious that the stalemate had ended.

American Military Government detachments which have been waiting in six of Berlin's boroughs since July 5 for the Russian commanders to leave were expected to start exercising control within 24 hours as a result of the agreement.

British detachments were alerted to be ready to go into their six boroughs tomorrow.

An official statement did not disclose the precise occupation sector that will be allotted to the French, but it was believed certain that French Gen. de Beauchesne would accept the invitation to the "kommandature" tomorrow.

The Russians will retain 12 of Berlin's boroughs. This was an inter-Allied agreement reached last fall. The Russian sector is believed populated by 1,100,000 Germans, while the Americans have 750,000 in their sector and the British 900,000.

The Anglo-American Allies intend to garrison Berlin with about 25,000 troops from their respective armies and the Russian force is estimated to approximately the same size.

Suggests Brass Knucks

By the Associated Press

Representative Wilson (R., Ind.) said yesterday that unless the problems of Berlin occupation are settled soon, "it's time we were substituting brass knucks for some of our tin-soldier diplomats."

"If we are being pushed out of Berlin, and if we are going to be forced to feed those people out of our own supplies, then it is high time we became realistic," Wilson told the House.

Wilson said he had talked to many American prisoners of the Germans who were liberated by the Russians.

"The Russians delightedly searched them and took away their fountain pens, their pencils, their rings and wrist watches and even their warm clothing," Wilson said. "I think that is strange conduct from an ally."

Wilson said also that Chinese nationalists are storing huge quantities of lend-lease material to employ against the Chinese Communists after the end of the war with Japan.

Agree on Austria Rule

London, July 10 (U.P.)—The United States, Great Britain, France and Russia have reached agreement on joint government of Austria pending its restoration as an independent nation, official sources said today.

Agreement on the occupation of Vienna itself by the four powers, is expected within a few days, a Foreign Office spokesman said.

The Daily Telegraph said the agreement was made possible when the Russians gave United States occupation forces permission to use the Danube River, which flows from the Black Sea through the Russian zone, to transport supplies to Vienna and allocated at least one airdrome around Vienna to the United States, Britain and France.

'Love Letter' Figure Awaits Train Passage

Mrs. Mildred Hill, 64, 419 Irving st. nw., is still in a Chicago County jail awaiting train accommodations to come to Washington to face charges of mail fraud by running a "lucrative love letter" business, Postal Inspector W. T. Quay said yesterday.

Since her arrest early last week on the charge on a Chicago carpenter that he sent her $1000 in the hopes of marrying "a beautiful 22-year-old girl," Quay said the post-office has uncovered 49 other mail order suitors who sent Mrs. Hill a total of $14,000 in money and presents.

CHARTER

vent a situation in which war is inevitable."

Senate Republican Leader Wallace H. White, jr. (Me.), said a reservation requiring our delegate to wait on Congress would "destroy the treaty."

Leadership spokesmen said privately there wasn't the remotest chance that the Senate would adopt a major Charter reservation, reiterating forecasts that the treaty would be overwhelmingly ratified without change. They were concerned, however, lest a Senate floor fight mar the united Charter front they still hope the Senate will present.

Two Ways to Raise Issue

Milliken led into the Connally and Vandenberg warnings by asking, first, if a congressional check-back on use of our troops would be "violative" of the Charter, and second, where the best place to propose it would be.

To the second question, Connally said the issue could be raised either as a reservation to the Charter itself or as an amendment to subsequent legislation providing for the United States delegate to the Council. It might even be raised on a subsequent treaty setting military quotas of the various powers, he said.

Millikin suggested that as a matter of "good faith" the issue should be raised on the Charter itself, and not brought up after the world organization is a going concern. It was here Connally warned the move could wreck the Charter.

Line of Opposition Indicated

Millikin closely questioned Pasvolsky on three other points, and one or more of his inquiries may be reflected in Senate reservationist debate:

1. Does the Charter impair the Monroe Doctrine?

2. Might not Social and Economic Council authority to investigate war-breeding conditions include wage rates, racial discrimination, tariffs and religious questions in this country "engendering a lot of ill will if we did not correct them?"

3. Was Russia formerly at war with Poland, placing Poland under the Charter in the category of "an enemy state" so far as Russia is concerned?

Connally answered the first question, saying the Charter not only preserves the Monroe Doctrine but strengthens it. To the second question Pasvolsky said the Social and Economic Council can study any conditions that might breed war, but could only make recommendations. To the third question Pasvolsky replied categorically that Russia and Poland were never "in a state of war."

Once Connally started to cut off further questioning by Millikin as "too far afield," but Senator Hiram Johnson (R., Calif.), murmured a protest and Connally waved Millikin on.

Johnson, Connally Clash

It was the first time the veteran opponent of the old League had raised his voice in two days of Senate hearings, but later Johnson clashed with Connally at length over trusteeship provisions of the Charter.

Connally had just read for the record letters from the Army and Navy high command saying that the "military and strategic provisions of the Charter, as a whole, are in accord with the military interests of the United States."

"What do you mean, 'as a whole?'" asked Johnson. "I'm doubtful of that phraseology."

"I am quoting from the Joint Chiefs of Staff," said Connally, "and they are of the opinion that the military and strategic provisions as a whole are in accord with military requirements. This refers particularly to trusteeships. I am not referring to the general activities of the Council."

"Who is to determine that 'whole'?" asked Johnson.

"I am quoting the opinions of the Army and Navy," repeated Connally.

"Are you in accord with them?" asked Johnson.

Connally replied that he was because he considered American interests in the Pacific and elsewhere amply protected.

"If we are in possession of an island conquered from the Japanese, we can possess it if it is in a strategic area until we consent to trusteeship," said Connally. "Under our conception, all we have to do is hold on to it."

"Then we can keep these lands we have taken at a cost of a million men?" asked Johnson.

"If we do give them up, we will give them up with strings," said Connally.

"Who determines those 'strings?'" asked Johnson.

Women to Testify

Mrs. Grace Keefe of Chicago, and three other members of the Women's League for Political Education, are among witnesses who will appear today in opposition to ratification of the Charter, the organization announced last night.

Axis Blasted By 10 Million AAF Bombs

By the Associated Press

The Army Air Forces figured yesterday its planes have hit the Axis with 2 million tons of bombs since the war began.

It's a form of applied mathematics the enemy understands painfully well.

Those 2 million tons are 4 billion pounds, each pound capable of death and destruction.

Allowing 12 bombs to a truck, it would take a string of trucks standing bumper to bumper from Boston to San Francisco to carry them. There were some 10 million bombs in all, of varying size.

2 Millionth Ton Dropped Monday

The 2 millionth ton was dropped Monday by the Superfortress "Going Jessie" in the five-way Superfortress attack on industrial cities of the Japanese home island of Honshu. The skipper of the "Going Jessie" was Capt. John D. Fleming of Columbia, Tenn.

It took 34 months to drop the first million tons on Axis targets. The second million was unloaded in nine months.

The tonnage of bombs dropped in June against all Japanese targets by the AAF was five times the 10,503 tons dropped on them in June, 1944.

The Japanese homeland itself was hit by the 100,000th ton of bombs on July 4.

Other Impressive Figures

Some other AAF figures:

AAF bombers and fighters flew more than 2,300,000 sorties. This means that the equivalent of about 1800 aircraft have been put into the air each day since Pearl Harbor.

The planes flew a total of more than 19,700,000 hours and used more than 3,100,000,000 gallons of gasoline.

AAF planes have destroyed more than 40,000 enemy aircraft in all theaters and damaged at least 18,000 others. In the Japanese war alone, AAF planes have sunk a total of more than 2,318,000 tons of shipping.

Entirely separate totals are being built up by Navy aviation. A naval spokesman said yesterday that the fast carrier force now striking Tokyo is the "greatest mobile striking force in history on land or sea."

UNRRA Aids Five Countries, Lehman Says

Rome, July 10 (U.P.).—More than 250 million dollars worth of supplies have been shipped to the devastated areas of Greece, Yugoslavia, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Italy, it was disclosed today by Herbert H. Lehman, director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Approximately 50,000 tons of supplies have already been received in Italy, where 300,000 people are being cared for by UNRRA, Lehman said.

Clothing, textiles, fuel, raw materials and transportation have been supplied, as well as an abundance of food. But food is still the chief problem.

"I don't know if it may cause tightening of belts in the United States or not, but it may," Lehman said. He emphasized that after Europe had been fed, there still was left the greatest UNRRA mission—China—where a vast relief program will be carried out after the Japanese war.

Nazi-Slapping GI Is Sent Back To Jail

Fort Devens, Mass., July 10 (U.P.).—Pvt. Joseph V. McGee, 25, whose jailing for slapping Nazi prisoners gained him the sympathy of hundreds, was sentenced to six months at hard labor today after admitting he lied when he posed before his admirers as a bemedaled hero.

Appearing before his fourteenth court-martial since enlisting in 1939 and his third in six weeks, he pleaded guilty to:

Being AWOL; being drunk in a public place in uniform, and taking an oath to affidavits containing false matter.

In addition to the jail term, he was ordered to forfeit $35 monthly during that period from his pay.

McGee had nothing to say. At preliminary proceedings, he said he lied about being a hero and thus gained much sympathy when he was sentenced to two years in jail for striking his German prisoner charges. That sentence recently was commuted, as a result of congressional and public pressure.

McGee had told a newspaper columnist he stormed a pill box on the Siegfried line and took it singlehanded, although wounded.

On June 4 and 5 he gave statements under oath here that this story was true. A few days later, when confronted with evidence to the contrary, McGee admitted the story was false.

On June 25 he went AWOL and "got pretty well drunked up." He was arrested five days later.

A psychiatrist testified today that McGee had a mental age of 11 years and 6 months.

2 Others Reported Killed, 1 Missing, 2 Are Wounded

District of Columbia men reported killed through July 10 include: Army, 821; Navy, 161; Marines, 114; Coast Guard, 5. Total, 1101. United States casualties reported officially since Pearl Harbor, 1,036,937.

The fifth District area man to die aboard a Jap prison ship torpedoed last October 24 was yesterday reported by the Navy Department.

He was Ensign Jim Bob Phifer, one of three metropolitan area men who were listed as killed. Another, stationed aboard the carrier Franklin, was missing and two have been wounded, according to official information.

Ensign Phifer, a Navy man for 10 years, went to Manila in 1939 and was taken prisoner on Corregidor, his wife, Mrs. Eleanor F. Phifer, 8 Tiller Green, sw., said. He never saw their 4-year-old son, James.

Other casualties for the day were:

Ensign Phifer, a native of Dallas, Tex., was stationed in Washington for six months at the Deep Sea Diving School, and then assigned to the cruiser Richmond in the Pacific, his wife said. Before going to Manila he was on a submarine. Surviving, besides his wife and son, are his mother and a brother, both in Texas. Another brother, Doyle, is with the Army in Paris.

Corporal Grossman was a member of the Second Photo Charting Squadron stationed in the Philippines. No details of his death have yet reached his family, they said last night. He was born in Ohio, and graduated from Washington-Lee High School in Arlington. He was studying aeronautics there in a night class when he enlisted on July 8, 1943.

Sergeant Hoover was on his first trip overseas when the Franklin was attacked and he was reported missing. An airplane mechanic, he enlisted in the Marines in September, 1942, after working at the Navy Yard.

Private Harrison is now at Bethesda Hospital recuperating from a compound fracture of the left ankle with fragment wounds. He was overseas from November to April and served on Guam and Iwo Jima. M'Arthur Gets Ryukyus Army Air Command

Guam (Wednesday), July 11 (AP).—Command of all Army planes based in the Ryukyus (Okinawa)—including the Seventh Air Force—has passed to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

He described the shift as "incidental to regrouping" American air power in the western Pacific for the final assaults on Japan. Remaining under the admiral's command are Navy and Marine aircraft wings in the Ryukyus and Iwo Jima, now busy "tightening the blockade of Japan and destroying Japanese forces and shipping wherever found, preparatory to further amphibious assaults," he said.

"Further amphibious assaults" could mean the invasion of Japan.

Gen. George C. Kenney, MacArthur's air chief and commander of the Far Eastern air forces, now adds the Seventh Air Force to the Fifth and Thirteenth, which he already controlled. The Seventh previously had operated under Nimitz in the central Pacific war theater.

Poles to Seek United Nations Council Seat

Warsaw, July 9 (Delayed) (AP).—Prime Minister Edoard Osubka-Morawski said today the new Polish government would seek a place on the permanent Council of the United Nations and open negotiations for a Polish, French military alliance.

The new government plainly plans a militant foreign policy, in collaboration with Soviet Russia.

Morawski said Poland's geographical position and her new industrial potential, destined her for an important role in Europe.

The new government incentralized. All administrative authority and police powers are in the hands of the Warsaw government. Regional and local officials are appointed and dismissed arbitrarily. There is state "management" of basic industries such as coal, steel, transportation, electric energy, oil, zinc, chemicals, textiles, etc.

Free competition is permitted among shopkeepers. The press will be under government control until the masses are rallied to the "new concepts."

Minister of Justice Henryk Swiatkowski said arrests were not made without warrants and habeas corpus is allowed.

Morawski said the Red army was leaving Poland, except for units stationed in areas taken from the Germans.

TRUMAN

Truman is cruising toward his first conference with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill through mid-Atlantic waters as placid as those of a mill pond in his native Missouri.

Wearing a sporty cap cocked jauntily on the side of his head, the President seems to feel the peace of his journey may augur well for the outcome of the rendezvous in mid-July in Potsdam, on the outskirts of conquered Berlin.

Primarily, the meeting will concern the laying of the groundwork for the peace treaty with Germany, including settlement of boundary, reparations, occupational, rehabilitation and other questions.

The President left Washington last Friday night by train, sailing the next day from the Army port of embarkation dock, Newport News, Va., on a journey which may exceed 10,000 miles by the time he returns to the White House.

In the presidential party are Brig. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan and Capt. James K. Vardaman, his military and naval aides; Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, H. Freeman Matthews, director of the State Department's Office of European Affairs; Charles E. Bohlen, the department's Russian expert; Benjamin V. Cohen of Byrnes' staff and Capt. Alphonse McMahon, a naval surgeon assigned to look after the health of the party.

The smallest staff ever to accompany a President to such a conference, they will be joined in Germany by Joseph E. Davies, special presidential emissary, and officials of the War, Navy and State Departments.

The understanding is that General of the Army George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, and Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, Chief of Naval Operations, and possibly General Henry H. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Forces, also will sit in on the conferences.

Starting with his arrival at Newport News, when he left his train for the admiral's cabin on the ship, the President has been up and about every day no later than 6 a. m.

He spends several hours each day with Byrnes and other members of his staff, going over conference papers and reports from the Pacific battlefronts.

On Sunday, he attended a general Protestant service in his shirtsleeves, sitting with the sailors. He spent the rest of the day dozing and relaxing.

Bright and early Monday he led correspondents on a strenuous tour of inspection, ascending and descending ladders with an agility which belied his 61 years.

The President went from the hot boiler room level to the highest control towers. He made a thorough job of it.

Jap Admiral's Letter Reveals The Nip Mind

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Iwo Jima, April 4 (Delayed.)—During the closing days of the battle of Iwo Jima late in March, somewhere in the curious underground labyrinth at the northern end of the small island, Rear Admiral Toshinosuke Ichimaru sat in his cave retreat and wrote a letter to President Roosevelt.

"Rear Admiral T. Ichimaru of the Japanese navy sends this note to Roosevelt. I have one word to give you upon the termination of this battle . . ."

For the admiral the battle had been over long ago. He had been in command of naval aviation on Iwo and in the area of the Bonins and Volcanoes, but the planes and carriers he hoped for did not arrive. There was no more naval aviation on Iwo or even near it. There had been little for him to do once the bombardment started on February 16; now that little was finished. He had time to mull things over and grope back through the past:

"A century has elapsed since Nippon, after Commodore Perry's entry to Shimoda, widely affiliated with the countries of the world. During this period of intercourse Nippon has met with many crises as well as the undesired Sino-Japanese War, Russo-Japanese War, the World War, the Manchurian incident and the China incident. Nippon, now unfortunately (is in) a state of open conflict with your country."

"Judging Nippon from just this side of the screen you may slander our nation as a yellow peril of a bloodthirsty nation of maybe a protoplasm of military clique.

"Though you may use the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor as your primary material for propaganda, I believe you of all persons know that you left Nippon no other method in order to save herself from self-destruction."

"His Imperial Highness, as clearly shown in the 'rescript of founder of the Empire' 'yosei' (justice), 'choki' (sagacity) and 'sekkei' (benevolence) contained in the above three-fold doctrine rules in the realization of 'hokkoichiu' (the universe under his sacred rule) in his gracious mind. The realization of which means the habitation of their respective fatherlands under their own customs and traditions, thus insuring the everlasting peace of the world.

"Emperor Meiji's 'The four seas of the world that are united in brotherhood will know no high waves nor wind,' composed during the Russo-Japanese war won the appraisal (approval?) of your Uncle Theodore, as you yourself know. We, the Nippon-Jin, though may follow all lines of trade, it is through our each walk of life that we support the imperial doctrine.

"Though we, at this time, are extremely taken (shaken?) by your air raids and shelling backed by your material superiority spiritually we are burning with delight and enjoying the peace of mind.

"This peacefulness of mind, the common universal stigma of the Nippon-Jin, burning with fervor in the upholding of the imperial doctrine may be impossible for you and Churchill to understand. I hereupon, pitying your spiritual feebleness, pen a word or two."

"Judging from your actions, white races, especially you Anglo-Saxons, at the sacrifice of the colored races, are monopolizing the fruits of the world. In order to attain this end, countless machinations were used to cajole the yellow races and to finally deprive them of any strength. Nippon in retaliation to your imperialism tried to free the Oriental nations from your punitive bonds, only to be faced by your dogged opposition. You now consider your once friendly Nippon an harmful existence to your luscious plan, a bunch of barbarians that must be exterminated.

"The completion of this greater Asia war will bring about the birth of the east Asia coprosperity area if, of course (it) is not hampered by your unending imperialism. Why is it that you, an already flourishing nation, nip in bud the movement for the freedom of the suppressed nations of the East? It is no other than to return to the East that which belongs to the East. It is beyond our contemplation (comprehension?) when we try to understand your stinted narrowness. The existence of the East Asia coprosperity sphere does not in any way encroach upon your safety as a nation, on the contrary will act as a pillar of world peace insuring the happiness of the world.

"His imperial majesty's true aim is no other than the attainment of this everlasting peace. Studying the condition of the never ending racial struggle resulting from mutual misunderstanding of the European countries, it is not difficult to feel the need of the everlasting universal peace."

This was the pattern the Japanese propagandists had been following on the radio, in the press, in the formal pronouncements of their so-called statesmen for 10 years. With only a few hours left to him, was this all he could put down on paper—parrot-like phrases of a completely phoney diplomacy? There was still some more, along the same line:

"Present Hitler's crusade of 'his fatherland' is brought about by no other means than the stupidity of holding only Germany responsible for the 1914-1918 calamity and the deprivation of Germany's reestablishment.

"It is beyond my imagination of how you can slander Hitler's program and at the same time cooperate with Stalin's 'Soviet Russia' (which) has as its principle aim the socialization of the world at large. If only brute force decides the rulers of the world, fighting will everlastingly be repeated and never will the world know peace nor happiness."

A Japanese admiral had denounced brute force as an instrument of world policy. But, of course, he had to spoil it in a completely muddle-headed last sentence:

"Upon the attainment of your barbaric world monopoly never forget to retain in your mind the failure of your predecessor President Wilson at his heights.

"T. ICHIMARU."

That was all. What does a Japanese rear admiral—or a general, or any high official—think about as he takes stock of affairs three years and four months after the bold foray at Pearl Harbor? This letter is perhaps as good an answer as any.

The admiral had the letter translated; gave a copy both in Japanese and in English (as above) to a naval officer who went out to die at the edge of Chidori (No. 2 airfield) in the last banzai attack the night of March 25-26. It was found next morning.

That same day, it was reported, Admiral Ichimaru committed suicide, but his body has not been found.

Soap Rationing Talk Laid To Lehman View

Office of Price Administration officials yesterday declared rumors of soap rationing are based solely on the "mild hysteria" created by the statement of Director General Herbert Lehman, of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, that he believed Americans would be willing to ration soap—if necessary—to share the supply with civilians of liberated countries.

The distribution of soap is being satisfactorily handled by the industry, they said, indicating their belief that a commodity handled by so few large companies and all with Nation-wide distribution outlets is about as equitably distributed as it would be under rationing. When soap was near the rationing point about two years ago the industry worked out a system for keeping the supply balanced between different areas, and consumers who had resorted to hoarding found themselves with more soap than they then wanted.

A report by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics yesterday showed the total use of fats, oils, fatty acids and rosin used in the manufacture of soap last year was 19 per cent more than a year earlier and 4 per cent more than 1941.

Soap production all during the war has been high, despite the loss of vital imports of fats and oils. The per capita amount of fats and oils going into soaps last year for civilians was 14 pounds, compared to 12 pounds in 1931. This was in addition to the ingredients going into soap for military and relief purposes, which totalled 299 million pounds of fats.

Marion, Ohio, July 10 (AP).—Eight-day-old Jean Eileen Creviston, missing from her hospital crib since Sunday night, was restored unharmed to her parents today by a married woman who tried to pose as her mother.

Mrs. Phyllis Lanman, 29, was charged with carrying away a child under 12, the penalty for which is one to twenty years in prison.

The restoration of Jean to her mother, Mrs. John L. Creviston, Marion socialite, followed a medical examination of Mrs. Lanman and a check of the baby's footprints.

The father, a technical sergeant at the Lockbourne Army Air Base, was in Columbus at the time trying to help police in the search.

Police said Mrs. Lanman confesses she took the child and tried to convince a physician and her landlord that Jean was hers. She had lost two babies through miscarriages. She said that she had no intention of taking a child but yielded to an impulse.

Reaching home, she undressed the child, went to bed and when the landlady came in informed her she had just given birth to a child and would the landlady summon a physician.

Mrs. Lanman was taken into custody following a report to police by a neighbor at whose home she left a diaper on the way to her home. The diaper was identified as belonging to the hospital, and the questioning began.

Chinese Rewin U. S. Air Base Of Kanshien

Chungking, July 10 (AP).—Chinese troops have isolated Japanese-held Kanshien, a former American air base 200 miles north of Hongkong, and have hurled a strong flank attack against enemy beachheads on China's southeast "invasion" coast below Amoy, the high command said today.

The Chinese neutralized Kanhsien after recapturing Tayu, 47 miles southwest. Swaying battles raged within 6 miles of Kanhsien, the Chinese said.

Tayu, in the heart of the Chinese tungsten mining district in southwestern Kiangsi Province, was reported stormed Saturday night.

More than 200 Japanese marines were killed or wounded in coastal Fukien Province in southeast China yesterday when Chinese soldiers and local militiamen launched a new attack against Japanese beachheads established June 30.

Enemy forces attempting to strike out from Chihhu, captured coastal village 27 miles southwest of the former treaty port of Amoy, were reported reeling back to their positions. The Japanese landing parties appeared to be making little progress in their effort to strengthen defenses around Amoy.

Nazi Soap Laboratory Using Human Fats Found by Yanks

Gdansk (Danzig), July 8 (Delayed) (U.P.).—Decaying chunks of human skin and fat, ready to be thrown into white-enameled pressure boilers with spigots on the sides, were found in an experimental human soap laboratory today, one of the few buildings still intact in this ruined city.

One captured laboratory assistant is exhibiting signs of insanity induced by his horrible work.

Outside the laboratory, the ground was covered with white skulls and hundreds of human bones. The ground floor of the laboratory was divided into two and one-half rooms, each fitted with pressure boilers. They were slightly larger than standard electric washing machines. There were also several smaller pressure cylinders in which the bones of victims were thrown.

Documents and the captured assistant, Sigmund Mazur, identified the laboratory director as a Professor Spanner. In the basement we saw tanks filled with corpses of Poles and Russians hanged or shot. Their bodies were used for experimental purposes by German army doctors. There were bins full of heads of men who had been guillotined.

The half-demented Mazur said Spanner arrived at the laboratory in February, 1944, announcing he had a recipe for soap and that production would start immediately. Mazur said human fat had been accumulated since 1940 for that purpose.

He laughed when he said he did not sell the soap on the black market because he would have been shot for black market operations.

pany spokesman claimed a "majority" of workmen stayed on the job were: Fort Belvoir, Va.—seven shop buildings and a boiler house—valued at one million dollars; Naval Research Laboratory, White Oaks, Md., additional facilities worth $1,250,000; a war housing project of 440 units valued at $2,250,000 at Lincoln Heights, 50th st., and Washington ave. ne.; Andrews Fields, Camp Springs Army Air Base, Md., administration and permanent officers' quarters buildings, worth $4,500,000.

The affected engineers are in charge of initial surveys of the site, as well as the progress of the construction work. They are held responsible for the mechanical and other technical features of the finished structure, including its safety, utility for specific functions, and architectural detail.

Picketing began yesterday despite the eight votes cast against the strike when 15 members of IFTEAD were balloted by National Labor Relations Board Monday.

Officials of the strike section, War Labor Board, met with Howard Gohrband, IFTEAD Local No. 28 president, and another representative of IFTEAD yesterday afternoon, but acknowledged no settlement had been reached.

Gohrband said the 1¢ pickets were handicapped in efforts to bar entry of workers at Andrews Field, and at Lincoln Heights housing site by existence of three or more gateways.

Majority Works at 3 Projects

Contractors stated a majority of workers at these two and the Fort Belvoir project continued to work. Gohrband said "we will do better tomorrow."

Contractors involved are John McShain, Inc.—four completely paralyzed jobs; Harwood-Nebel Construction Co.—three partially affected jobs, and T. Calvin Owens—housing project, Lincoln Heights, partially affected.

John Locher, secretary, and Clem Preller, president of the Washington Buildings and Construction Trades Council, conferred with IFTEAD members and officers at the Ambassador Hotel. It was admitted no agreement on union demands had been reached at this meeting, although Gohrband stressed that efforts were to be made today to continue work on the jobs without "sacrificing our claims" for recognition.

Plan of Action Outlined

Locher and Preller presented to IFTEAD the stand taken yesterday by contractors represented by the Master Builders Association, Gohrband said.

"A plan of action has been outlined, and may be decided on tomorrow (Wednesday) afternoon," he added. This plan must be decided on by the union, the trades council and the contractors, Gohrband stated.

James A. McWhorter, engineer for Owens, said IFTEAD had not carried on "negotiations as such" with the company. He said two men from IFTEAD had appeared at his home with a blank contract which he refused to sign.

McWhorter denied he had laid off union engineers. He said two employes left of their own accord.

At Fort Belvoir, where 300 men are employed by Harwood-Nebel Construction Co., Maj. Daniel Gaffney post security officer, said two pickets who appeared shortly after 7 a. m., were asked by military police to stop blocking traffic on a road into the post.

These two were "invited to discuss" the situation with Major Gaffney, who told them the Army would not interfere with their picketing, but that they should not block traffic. The pickets said they were "through," Gaffney reported. They then left his office, and there was no further picketing there.

Only 13 Pass Pickets

Of the 300 men on this project, 287 failed to pass the pickets, Construction Superintendent George Parker told The Post.

At the Army Map Service project E. J. Merrick, representative of the District Army Engineer, said 450 men, of all construction crafts, failed to go to work, after three pickets appeared there. This five-story building is now about half completed.

A lone picket carrying a sign was successful in preventing 150 men from working at Naval Medical Center, a McShain company spokesman told The Post. This building is a recreation center for naval personnel.

All work on the new Georgetown University Hospital, in the 3900 block of Reservoir road, stopped as the 70 men employed there by McShain company saw the single picket, the job superintendent reported.

This McShain spokesman added that about 200 men working at the Navy Bureau of Yards and Docks went home when they observed a lone picket.

Two meetings on the tie-up were held last night. Both were closed sessions. The Washington Building and Construction Trades Council met to consider recent requests from IFTEAD for permission to affiliate. At the Ambassador Hotel IFTEAD met in monthly session, according to union officials.

National Maritime Union pickets started their vigil at the War Shipping Administration yesterday and in 50 other coastal centers to protest the reduction of wartime "danger bonuses" to go into effect Sunday.

A spokesman for the Maritime War Emergency Board, which ordered the bonus cutback, said the picketing will have no effect on the board's decision. Bonuses have not been cut in the Pacific area where danger still exists, but only in the Atlantic zone and other safe water areas he pointed out.

NMU countered that the board should stay its order, which lowers bonuses 33 1/3 per cent in the Atlantic, and 66 2/3 per cent on all other waters except the Pacific, until the War Labor Board gives a decision on an application for a base pay raise from the present 34½ cents to 55 cents per hour.

Two of the three men on the Maritime War Emergency Board are also members of the WLB. They are John R. Steelman and Frank P. Graham. Capt. Edward Macauley is chairman of the NWEB.

Va. Jail 'Trusty' Given Life For Raping Prisoner

Danville, Va., July 10 (AP).—Vander Lee Gibson, 22-year-old Negro "trusty" tonight was found guilty of raping Miss Rossie Viola Watson in the dungeon of Danville city jail on June 3, and his punishment was fixed at life imprisonment.

Miss Watson testified that a Negro entered the jail dungeon where she had been placed following arrest on a charge of intoxication, and criminally asaulted her. She said she was unable to identify her assailant.

Three other "trusties" in the jail testified that Gibson had left a card game and gone to the basement where the dungeon is located. Upon his return, they said he boasted he had been with the white woman.

CIO Aides Walk Out On Akron Strike Hearing

Representatives of the CIO Rubber Workers Union walked out of a War Labor Board hearing yesterday on a strike at the Firestone plants at Akron, Ohio, after a stormy exchange with Chairman George W. Taylor.

The walkout was in direct protest against the calling of plant committeemen as witnesses. Earlier Taylor had lectured union representatives on their wartime "obligations" and the latter charged the board with "dereliction of duty."

Union officers announced at the conclusion of the hearing that while making no promises they would lay before the 160,000 striking workers at the Firestone plants not later than Friday the board's return-to-work request and all that took place at yesterday's proceedings.

Meanwhile, strikes in the fuel, food and arms industries shot the total number of workers idle in labor disputes above 55,475 yesterday (Tuesday). The figure compared with approximately 36,000 on Monday, the lowest of any day since June 19.

New strikes involved CIO oil and gas workers in the United Fuel Gas Co., serving six Eastern States; United Mine Workers at five mines in Pennsylvania and Ohio; CIO dairy workers in Detroit; AFL bakers in Rochester, N. Y.; AFL shell workers in Birmingham, Ala., and workers on B-29 bombers in Chicago.

The situation by cities or States:

NEW YORK: A War Labor Board ultimatum that they end their 10-day strike, affecting 14 New York newspapers, was laid before members of the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union late yesterday by union officers.

Louis Waldman, counsel for the independent union, said "the consequences and everything else" were being explained to the delivery workers, in local meetings and on picket lines, but that "they, themselves, will have to decide what to do about it."

Waldman said the members' decision would be communicated to WLB by 8 a. m. today, the deadline set by the board.

Under the WLB ultimatum the union faces loss of closed shop and preferential hiring clauses in a new contract with the publishers association.

CAMDEN, N. J.: Two thousand welders, burners and tackers walked out yesterday at the New York Shipbuilding Corp.'s Camden plant. John Green, national president of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America (CIO), said the cause of the walkout was the lengthy delay in settlement of workers' grievances by the WLB, but he asked the men to return to work.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.—Some 1000 CIO oil and gas workers walked out of United Fuel & Gas Co. properties in a dispute over wage-increase demands, tying up operations in West Virginia, Kentucky, Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York.

The War Labor Board ordered immediate termination of the strike, declaring that although the employes voted a strike under the Smith-Connally Act Monday, "the union is not relieved of its responsibility not to strike during wartime."

The utility president said only domestic users were receiving gas.

PENNSYLVANIA — All four Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. coal mines were closed and 3316 United Mine Workers were idle.

At Shannopin one mine was forced to suspend Monday because, the company said, of a dispute over refusal to rehire a returned war veteran without a physical examination.

Vesta No. 5 mine closed in a dispute over shift rotation and when pickets appeared at two other pits, they also closed.

BELLAIRE, OHIO: Four hundred seventy-five United Mine workers quit work at the Webb Mine of the Cambria Mining Co. because, the company said, of a $1 a day fine automatically levied against them for three days. The company asserted the men refused to work June 25, 26 and 27 because the company did not pay overtime for work on the Saturday after Memorial Day. The union did not comment.

DETROIT: Thirty per cent of Detroit consumers, except hospitals and schools, were without milk deliveries because of a strike of 1000 CIO United Dairy workers at the Detroit Creamery Co. and the Ebling Creamery Co.

The union president said the strike was in sympathy with "accumulated grievances of office workers" at the Detroit Creamery.

A recurrence of an earlier strike idled 2900 persons at the Graham-Paige Motors Corp.

The Chrysler Corp.'s Dodge truck plant was closed and 2800 employes were idle as a result of a strike of 11 CIO United Automobile Workers paint sprayers.

A reply by Attorney General Tom Clark to a District Commissioners, protest against Federal Public Housing Authority's building 440 Negro dwelling units in Northeast Washington without seprofessor of history and romance expected at the District Building today, Justice Department officials said last night.

Air Travel's Future Bright, Parley Is Told

Aviation is public property with a postwar future which will cater to general civilian usage and private industry, Representative Jennings Randolph (D., W. Va.), and Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace told the final session of the Joint Air Transport Users Conference last night at the Hotel Statler. Both are licensed pilots.

William R. Enyart, New York City, president of the National Aeronautic Association, sponsor of the conference, presided at the closing meeting which completed two days of discussion on the future of American aviation.

Predicts Private Airports

Introduced as "a leading champion of aviation's development in America," Secretary Wallace envisioned the construction of private airports with grass runways surrounded by privately owned hotels as an advancement of commercial aviation for public usage.

The first to introduce national airport legislation to Congress, Representative Randolph commended the closing session on its adoption of a permanent conference, a decision voted unanimous approval at a brief business meeting which preceded the evening's speeches.

To further the country's future air transport system, Randolph urged the importance of the development of synthetic products to replace the drain on natural resourses; the reduction of fuel consumption to lower the cost of air travel, and the establishment of a permanent committee on aviation in the House and Senate.

Earlier in the day, Dr. John B. Crane, marketing economist for the Glenn L. Martin Co., said that two million Americans who annually will travel abroad by air in the postwar world, will spend enough money to bring about a better balance of trade between our country and foreign lands.

He told the conference that American travelers will expend 400 million dollars annually, thus increasing ability of foreign countries to buy our exports. He said tourist expenditures could be regarded as a reduction in tariff barriers.

Merchandise exports by air to other nations will amount to an estimated 30,000 tons annually at a cargo rate of 20 cents per ton-mile, Dr. Crane predicted.

Must Serve Bus Trade

Eight to ten million persons will travel by air domestically, he said, warning that air industry had reached the point where it must begin to build planes for today's "bus and coach" travelers.

Other speakers included John Groves, manager of the Air Transport Association's operations department, L. C. Peskin, Kellett Aircraft Corporation, Philadelphia; Mrs. James H. Doolittle, wife of the flying general, and secretary of the National Aeronautics Association, and Albert T. Stretch, Switlik Parachute Co. engineer.

Battle Creek, Mich., July 10 (AP).—This war's first quadruple amputee, Master Sergt. Fredric Hensel of Corbin, Ky., discussed plans today for getting a little chicken farm when he finally gets two artificial legs and two artificial arms. He arrived here Sunday night.

The 26-year-old sergeant's legs were blown off above the knee and his left arm above the elbow when he stepped on an antitank mine on Okinawa June 2. Army doctors tried to save his right hand but it, too, was amputated.

"The doctor showed me my hand; he told me it wouldn't be any good, and it wouldn't have been," said Hensel.

"There's lots of time to think about the future," drawled the Kentuckian. Looking to his pretty dark-haired wife for confirmation, he added: "Farming looks like my best bet—there won't be much I'll be able to do, you know."

Although still suffering acutely from shock and not able to hear well yet, Hensel is regarded as in good condition.

Hensel is hoping to be in a wheel chair in time to celebrate his birthday August 3 and his wedding anniversary August 12.

Hensel's wife was here to greet him when he arrived Sunday night. She said he is cheerful but they have not had much time to talk yet.

Monthly Pension $265

Master Sergt. Frederic Hensel, first battle casualty of this war to lose parts of both arms and legs, will receive a $265 monthly pension upon discharge from the Army, a Veterans' Administration spokesman said last night.

WLB Threatens to Fix Wages of Defiant ITU

By the Associated Press

The War Labor Board yesterday ordered the International Typographical Union (AFL) to show cause why its policy in current New Jersey newspaper strikes should not be found "in violation of public policy."

The strikes are at the Jersey Journal in Jersey City and the Bayonne Times at Bayonne.

The union was told also to show cause why the board should not make its own wages and working conditions for newspapers unless the union revoked its announced policy.

In a telegram to international officers of the union at Indianapolis and of Local 94 at Jersey City, the board said the International had assumed responsibility for "continuation of the strikes in defiance of labor's no strike pledge," and had declared the strikes "will not be terminated unless and until the employers accept the union's demands."

The International further claimed, the telegram continued, that it would not submit certain matters in dispute to collective bargaining or to the WLB.

The union officers were asked by the Board to show cause why the WLB should not find that under the union policy thus outlined "either party to a labor dispute could, by unilateral action, withdraw from collective bargaining and from the statutory procedure for the peaceful adjustment of labor disputes any terms or conditions of employment which it chose to specify and could seek instead to compel acceptance of its demands through strike or lockout, thereby destroying the national no-strike, no-lockout policy and nullifying the War Labor Disputes Act, to the great injury of the Nation at war."

The Board said further that the union should show cause not only why the WLB should not set the wages and hours of newspaper printers unless the union policy is revoked, but why the daily newspaper printing and publishing commission should not be directed to suspend the processing of all for 10 applications "in order that it may be determined whether any such agreements were brought about by means of the policy of the international union described above."

(Form 10 applications are those voluntarily filed by both employers and union for wage increases.)

The Labor Department's conciliation service estimates there are about 20 newspaper wage cases pending besides those in New Jersey.

Copies of the Board's order yesterday were forwarded to every local union affiliated with the ITU.

House Committee Urges Acceptance Of Italy As Ally

The House Foreign Affairs Committee started government wheels turning yesterday toward accepting Italy into the United Nations family.

The committee approved a resolution which asks the President to "use his good offices" to that end. If Italy becomes a signatory to the United Nations agreement she will, automatically, take on the status of a full ally.

The State Department gave the move virtual approval through a letter from Joseph C. Grew, acting Secretary, which informed the committee the resolution "is in keeping with the spirit of our policy" toward our onetime enemy.

The resolution was sponsored by Representative Marcantonio (A. L., N. Y.).

Franco, Churchill Meeting Denied

St. Jean de Luz, France, July 10 (AP).—Generalissimo Franco was reported to have reached Hendaye, close by this vacation spot where Prime Minister Churchill is staying, but the British consul denied today that any conference was contemplated.

The consul, Bruce Nairn, denied also that Mrs. Churchill intended to visit Spain although Col. Julio Ortega, Spanish frontier commander, came to Hendaye to meet her. Nairn said Ortega's visit must have resulted from a "misunderstanding."

Zoning Board Defers McLean Case To Fall

Business firms operating in violation of zoning regulations at McLean Gardens Apartment project on Wisconsin ave. nw. received permission to continue operations until next fall when the Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday agreed to allow a rehearing of the case at its next quarterly meeting.

Pending the fall meeting, the District government will hold in abeyance the prosecution of Defense Homes Corp., it was said.

DHC requested the commission to zone the development residential A, and then built dormitories on part of the property. Although residential A does not permit building of hotels, DHC called its dormitories hotels and installed a cafeteria, beauty shop, barber shop, laundry and gift shop. Since then, two requests from DHC to rezone the property residential B, have been refused and the District has filed suit against DHC in Municipal Court.

Nazi Sub Gives Up; On Prowl 18 Weeks

Mar-Del-Plata, Argentina, July 10 (AP).—A 700-ton Nazi U-boat which apparently had cruised the Atlantic for 18 weeks surfaced today inside the Mar-Del-Plata breakwater within sight of startled Argentines and surrendered to the commandant of this submarine base.

Her bemedaled young commander, Otto Wermoutt, and a crew of 54 were placed under custody. All were reported in "dire hunger" when they surrendered.

Five Nazis Die For Murder Of Fellow POW

Fort Leavenworth, Kans., July 10 (AP).—Five prisoners from Rommel's famed Afrika Korps were hanged today on a temporary warehouse gallows at the U. S. Disciplinary Barracks, for the murder of a fellow prisoner.

Termed "fanatical Nazis," the men were sentenced to death January 25, 1944, at Camp Gruber, Okla., for fatally beating a fellow prisoner, Johannes Kunze.

Those executed were Sergts. Walter Beyer, 32; Berthold Seidel, 30; Hans Demme, 23; Hans Schomer, 27, and Corpl. Willi Scholz, 22.

Their only request, that they be allowed to die in uniform, was granted.

Beyer was the first to die. The others followed at half-hour intervals.

Beyer and Demme in death statements said they believed a wrong was being committed by their execution.

Kunze was killed November 4, 1943, after another prisoner had found a memorandum, allegedly written by the slain man, which Beyer considered "traitorous." Beyer ordered the prisoners assembled in the mess hall where Kunze was accused of being a traitor.

"Kunze shouted his innocence," the Army account said, "but the prisoners attacked him with their fists and in the ensuing disorder struck the victim with a milk bottle and heavy china cups. Kunze managed to escape through a side door but he was able to stumble only a short distance before falling dead."

Nebraska Power Firm Sale Faces House Inquiry

A House Interstate Commerce subcommittee decided yesterday to investigate sale of the Nebraska Power Company to the Omaha Electric Committee, Inc.

Chairman Boren (D., Okla.), previous had referred to sale of Nebraska power by American Power & Light Company to the Omaha Electric Committee, Inc., as typical of cases in which "Wall st. promoters are making millions by creating trick corporations."

In New York, meanwhile, Howard L. Aller, president of the American Power & Light Co., said yesterday his company had "in no instance either formulated a plan or initiated a transaction" involving sale of its subsidiary properties to public power groups.

"I am not in sympathy with the socialistic trend evidenced by the spread of public ownership of electric utility properties," he said . . . "No cure for the trouble can be found in vituperation or by making false charges against the utilities, investment bankers or the investing public who are seeking tax free investments. This trend to socialism can only be reversed by legislation which will tax all publicly owned utilities equally with the privately owned utilities."

Watergate Audience to Hear Theme Song of Troop Concerts

Staff Sergt. Glenn Darwin, who will sing tonight at the Watergate, said yesterday that his theme song is the recently published "Niece of Uncle Sam"—a song that he found appropriate in concert tours through Europe "because American doughboys may flirt with the girls over there but they're looking forward to their future with the girls back home."

Also on the program with the National Symphony Orchestra tonight will be Richard Bales of Alexandria, composer and conductor who made his first public appearance as a conductor 10 years ago at the Watergate.

Soloist With AAF Band

Sergeant Darwin, formerly of Metropolitan Opera, recently toured England, Scotland and France to sing for service men. He was soloist with the Army Air Forces Band that played in Europe while the Royal Air Force Band was touring this country.

Bales told in an interview yesterday how he determined at the age of 12 years to become a conductor. "I lined up chairs in front of me and pretended they were filled with orchestra players," he laughed. He is now the National Gallery of Art's director of music.

Program Is Outlined

Bales will direct the orchestra in Mozart's Symphony No. 39 in E flat major, Dvorak's Carnival Overture, Second Movement of Howard Hanson's Symphony No. 1, Brahm's Hungarian Dance No. 1, and Johann Strauss' Artists Life Waltz.

Darwin will sing Moussorgsky's "Song of the Flea," Tchaikovsky's "Pilgrim Song," Handel's "Thanks Be to God," Mozart's "Non piu Andrai" from "Marriage of Figaro," Bizet's "Quand la Flamme d'Amour" from "Fair Maid of Perth" and "Unknown Soldier" by the Washington composer, Mary Howe.

An Open Letter:
Concerning Washington's Greatest Need

July 11, 1945

To the Citizens of Washington:

The campaign for the Georgetown University New Hospital has been extended because the goal has not been reached.

The total raised by Monday night was $288,623 which is $461,377 short of the $750,000 goal.

To raise this sum, the University and Hospital must look to the citizens of Washington, to business concerns, to the physicians, dentists and nurses, to alumni, and to other friends.

Washington has no greater need than more beds and adequate hospital facilities for the sick and injured. Building Georgetown's new hospital is a step to meet this greatest need.

Another report meeting will be held Thursday night, July 12.

Will you who are interested in improving conditions of our community give your utmost support?

Georgetown has done much for the community through the long years of its existence, and has asked for little.

We do not believe that the businesses and citizens of Washington will allow this campaign to fail when, all helping, it can be made so easily a splendid success.

Sincerely yours,
James E. Colliflower,
General Chairman,
Campaign Committee

Dr. Dieckhoff's Whereabouts Still Mystery

By Edward T. Folliard

What has happened to Dr. Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, last German Ambassador to the United States?

The question has been made pertinent by the news from Germany about Dr. Otto Kiep, counselor of the German Embassy here in the early 1930s, who was hanged in Berlin last August for participation in the plot to assassinate Hitler.

According to information given The Washington Post, Dr. Dieckhoff fell into disgrce with Hitler and was banished from the German foreign office. His downfall—and whatever else befell him—came after he had advised Hitler against going to war with the United States, a piece of advice similar to that which Ambassador von Bernstorff gave Kaiser Wilhelm in 1917.

The information about Dr. Dieckhoff was given to this reporter in Munich just before the end of the European war in May. It came from a German civilian who was encountered outside Military Government headquarters in the Munich Esthausy. He explained that he had worked in the foreign office in Berlin until March, when Anglo-American bombs caused a large-scale evacuation southward.

Asked about Dr. Dieckhoff, he said:

"Oh, he was in disgrace. We heard in the Foreign Office that he advised the Fuehrer against fighting the United States . . . Then, later, he disappeared. Where? We were never told those things."

No Word on Luther

The German, a frail and seemingly timid individual, said that Dr. Hans Luther, who preceded Dr. Dieckhoff as ambassador here, also was in bad with the Hitler regime. But he had no specific information about him.

Asked about Dr. Hans Thomsen, who was charge d'affaire and Germany's No. 1 diplomat in Washington when war came, he said that, as far as his information went, he was still German Minister to Sweden.

Dr. Dieckhoff, a tall, chubby-faced career diplomat with hair that pointed skyward, was a member of the German peace delegation to Versailles in 1919. He first came to Washington in 1922 as counselor of embassy, but stayed only a short time. He came back as a full-fledged ambassador in May, 1937.

Dr. Hans Luther, whom he succeeded, had been called back after Mayor Fiorella La Guardia had made several verbal attacks on Hitler.

Dr. Dieckhoff was 52 when he arrived and presented his credentials to the late President Roosevelt. A few months later, in a German Day celebration in Madison Square Garden, he advised Germans living in the United States not to "mix into the internal affairs of other nations." In interviews, he said he hated war but believed Germany was justified in building up her armaments. He also sought to defend the Nazi religious program, already the target of bitter criticism by Christians and Jews.

Dr. Dieckhoff remained in Washington only 18 months. In the fall of 1938, President Roosevelt summoned U. S. Ambassador Hugh S. Wilson back from Berlin to make a report on Nazi persecution of the Jews. Hitler retaliated by ordering Dr. Dieckhoff home to explain America's "queer attitude."

Dr. Dieckhoff never returned. A few weeks later, it was learned that Germany had abandoned plans to construct a one million dollar embassy here to take the place of the ramshackle quarters at 1439 Massachusetts ave. nw.

In March, 1940, Dr. Dieckhoff was in a delegation that said farewell to Sumner Welles when Welles, then Undersecretary of State, left Berlin after talking with Hitler, Goering and other Nazi leaders.

Dr. Dieckhoff's last diplomatic mission, so far as is known here, was as Ambassador to Spain. He was summoned to Berlin in September, 1943, and from that point on his career runs into a news blackout. The reasons for his recall from Madrid were obscure, but the story among diplomats was that he had failed to uphold the Nazi cause with becoming vehemence.

Our Divided Police

Efforts to relieve Washington of the handicap of having its police divided in two separate forces have come to naught once more. This time a relatively mild bill has met with a presidential veto. Opposition from Secretary Ickes appears to have killed the idea of a police merger in the first stages of its legislative consideration. The bill actually reported out and passed would not have consolidated the Metropolitan and Park Police forces. Rather it would have given the Detective Bureau of the Metropolitan force chief responsibility for the investigation of major crimes committed in the city's parks. This would obviously be a common-sense arrangement, for the Park Police have no detective bureau. Indeed, the Detective Bureau now customarily takes over the investigation of such crimes in the parks without any special mandate. The bill in question was passed because local officials and members of Congress thought it desirable to formalize the existing arrangement.

President Truman objected to this section of the bill by saying that it would require Park policemen to serve two masters and thus lower their morale. The only difficulty with his argument is that failure of the bill will leave the two forces to work together without any master. We cannot help thinking that it would be better to have members of the two forces working together under the direction of the Detective Bureau than to have no recognized common leadership. The veto will prove logical, therefore, only if the President follows it up by a request for complete merger of the two police forces, or better still, complete reorganization of the local government.

It is patently absurd for a city the size of Washington to have one segment of its police force operating under control of the Interior Department and the other under the District Commissioners. That arrangement becomes the more outrageous when the local regime is required to pay the salaries of 78 Federal policemen over whom it has no control. It must be admitted that the bill which the President vetoed was only a stopgap intended to ease the most glaring defects of the present two-police-force system. Nevertheless, its defeat pointedly illustrates the need for attacking the problem of government reorganization in the District on a more basic level.

Atlantic Flights

The Civil Aeronautics Board has decided that American participation in transatlantic aviation shall be carried on in accordance with the competitive system which is the basis of our economy. The board held last week that flights between this country and Europe should not be restricted to one company and authorized three United States air lines to operate across the North Atlantic. It is possible, of course, that Congress will countermand this executive decision by enacting Senator McCarran's bill to create a single all-American-flag line with exclusive right to transport United States mail—a joint line in which the several American applicants for permission to fly the Atlantic would share. We hope, however, that Congress will not choose to establish such a monopoly.

The competitive system adopted by the CAB meets the wishes of most of our domestic airplane carriers. They are not fearful that rivalry with one another will render them unable to meet foreign competition. They ask only a fair field. This means, of course, that foreign-flag airlines, which are likely to be Government corporations of the sort suggested by Senator McCarran, should not be so heavily subsidized as to make competition with them impossible. It will be the business of our State Department to achieve agreements with other countries respecting the nature and extent of subsidies, so that freight and passengers can be won, regardless of nationality, by the carriers offering the most advantageous rates and the best service.

If such agreements can be forged—and certainly they pose no insuperable diplomatic problem—postwar competition in the air over the Atlantic should be keen and advantageous to the public. No doubt there will be a vast increase of traffic and travel between Europe and the United States. Low rates will encourage this activity and create enough of it for many to share. Jingoism in this competition is out of place. We wish the American-flag lines well, but by no means feel that their dominance in the field is essential to the national interest. International welfare will be best promoted by fair competition open to all.

Problems At Potsdam

For sheer magnitude and complexity the problems that will confront President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin will transcend any faced by any group of statesmen, including Messrs. Wilson, Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Orlando who met in Paris some months after the end of World War I to write the treaty of peace with Germany. To be sure, the coming meeting of the "Big Three" will not, in a literal sense, be a peace conference. It will be the preliminary to a peace conference. But if the gathering at Potsdam is to be successful it must produce a big-power agreement regarding the broad outlines of the European settlement that is to be made later.

The greatest question facing the conferees will, of course, be that of the future of Germany. Although this had been taken up both at Tehran and Yalta, the area of dispute and differences among Russia, Britain and America is still wider than the area of agreement. This is borne out by the tangled situation in Berlin, where for days after the arrival of the American and British occupation forces over-all rule remained in Russian hands. It is also borne out by the fact that two months after VE-Day the zones of occupation in Germany as a whole have not yet been straightened out. The same is true in the case of Austria.

Under the happiest of circumstances the occupation of a country by four separate armies located in four distinct zones would make for difficulties. The situation in Germany has been greatly complicated by the different policies the occupation authorities have been pursuing in the four zones. There is an imperative need for coordinated effort and truly central control. There is need for an agreement as to the measure of industrial recovery that is to be allowed the Reich. There are such problems as reparations, the trial of war criminals and the future boundaries of Germany to be taken up.

But the German problem, far-reaching as it is, is only one of a number of great issues that the "Big Three" must consider. The flare-up at Trieste last May and the current difficulties between Yugoslavia and Greece are indicative of the turmoil we may have in Europe unless and until the postwar boundaries of the defeated and the victorious countries are clearly delimited. There is also the problem of what is to be done with Italy. For many months that country has lived under an armistice the terms of which have been kept secret. There is the question of the Dardanelles. And last but by no means least there is that vast congeries of problems involving the future settlement in the Far East. Some of these problems may have been settled at the meetings which Marshal Stalin has had with Prime Minister Soong of China. But if any Russo-Chinese agreements have been reached, they will have to be submitted to the United States and Great Britain for their scrutiny.

From any point of view, therefore, the coming Potsdam Conference will be the most momentous of modern times. And to a far greater degree than ever before it will serve as a test of the ability of the three principal allies to work together.

Reconversion Aid

Congress has been distressingly slow to act on President Truman's request for legislation to provide "adequate benefits for workers temporarily unemployed during the transition from war to peace." And it is mildly ironic that the legislation should have been introduced "by request" at this late date by Representative Robert Doughton, who bears much responsibility for the inadequacy of the existing reconversion law. It was Mr. Doughton who refused to accept any compromise with Senate proposals to provide transportation aid for stranded warworkers or unemployment compensation for Federal employes. "If the unemployment situation should become acute, which I hope it will not," he declared last September, "Congress will be in session and no one will be more ready than myself and more earnest in his efforts to meet and deal with the problem when it arises . . ."

Well, the problem has arisen, as it was inevitable that it should. Cutbacks are necessarily accompanied by layoffs, and reconversion cannot fail to be attended by serious job dislocations. The situation will certainly get a good deal worse before it can get better—particularly if the Pacific war should come to a speedy conclusion. It is not so certain, however, that Congress will be in session, as Mr. Doughton promised. The present expectation is that the House at least will take a recess and will give no consideration to the proposed measure until the fall. A great deal of hardship and aggravation of reconversion difficulties may result from the delay.

What the President has requested is simple and urgent. He proposes that the Federal Government supplement the unemployment benefits paid under State laws, through agreements with the States. Administration would remain in State hands. But weekly benefits would be raised to a maximum of $25; the number of weeks of compensation would be increased to a top limit of 26 in any year; Federal and maritime workers, not now included in State benefits, would be accorded the same unemployment benefits as other employes. The Federal Government would reimburse the States for the cost of these supplementary payments.

The President stated the case for aid to displaced warworkers cogently and succinctly: "The transition from war to peace is part and parcel of the war, and we cannot shirk our obligation to those temporarily unemployed through no fault of their own. . . . To produce what is needed for the Pacific war, we must appeal to the workers to accept and remain in jobs which they ultimately must lose when munitions production ceases. The Government has thus incurred a moral obligation to those workers and to those who have stuck faithfully to their posts in the past."

Finally, there is the fact that our whole economy is bound to suffer if jobless workers are left without purchasing power. Idleness is epidemic, as we learned twice from bitter experience during the thirties. "By assuring workers of a definite income for a definite period of time," President Truman pointed out, "Congress will help materially to prevent a sharp decline in consumer expenditures which might otherwise result in a downward spiral of consumption and production. Adequate unemployment insurance is an indispensable form of prosperity insurance." This is a realm in which an ounce of prevention will be worth much more than a pound of cure. Congress should permit no further delay in providing this elementary protection for the general welfare.

Crescendo Of Doom

The roar of those American planes that, hour after hour on Tuesday, raced across Japan bombing and strafing Japanese factories, airfields, harbors and shipping, must have sounded to the dazed people of the island empire like the crescendo of doom. There were 1800 of those planes and they were of many types—550 Superfortresses that had flown in from the Marianas, 30 Liberators, 30 Mitchells and about 70 fighters from the airfields on Okinawa, fighter bombers from Iwo Jima and no fewer than a thousand bombers, fighters and torpedo planes from Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet.

For some time the American aerial offensive on Japan had shown a steady upward trend in terms of numbers of planes employed and bombs dropped. More than 30 Japanese cities, including such great metropolitan centers as Tokyo, Osaka, Kobe, Yokohama and Nagoya, had been laid waste by these attacks. But nothing that had happened in the past was comparable to Tuesday's assault. If any Japanese still retained any illusions that their country could somehow survive the bombing offensive, those illusions must have been pretty well shattered. The scale of the attack was on a level approximating all but the most ambitious raids carried out by the Allies on Germany, and the Japanese defenses proved negligible.

Japanese air power, what there is left of it, could not challenge the American aerial invaders. Japanese ground defenses proved feeble. And to make matters even worse the American naval forces, showing their contempt for the Japanese fleet, made no attempt to preserve radio silence and openly challenged the enemy to come out and fight. That challenge was not taken up. Although what is left of the Japanese fleet is being hoarded against the day of an Allied invasion, it is clear that its usefulness even in this regard is limited in the extreme. More than ever it must be clear to Japan's leaders that the choice facing their country is surrender or suicide, with very little time left in which to choose.

Gallinger's Plight

We have no doubt that the closing of Gallinger Hospital's second-floor tuberculosis ward, as ordered by the District Commissioners, is essential as a temporary measure. Only 10 nurses were left in this section of Gallinger to care for 184 patients, an obviously impossible undertaking. Nurses thus overworked are themselves in grave jeopardy. In the circumstances there seems to have been no reasonable alternative to closing the ward.

But the issue cannot be left to rest at that point. The shortage of nurses in wartime is widespread, but why should it be so much more acute at Gallinger than in other hospitals? Gallinger is short 194 nurses, nearly one third of its authorized nursing strength. Considering the rapid growth of the city in recent years and particularly the pressure for many more tuberculosis beds than can be supplied, this is an appalling situation. It necessarily reflects unsatisfactory working conditions at Gallinger. Foremost of these is the low salary scale. Added to that, of course, is overwork because nursing positions cannot now be filled at salaries which the Health Department is permitted to pay.

Certainly it is not enough for the Commissioners to order hospital facilities closed and leave plague victims with no place to go. Nurses' salary schedules can be changed. Indeed, the Health Department long ago requested reclassification of these salaries to stop the tragic migration of nurses to more favorable situations. Who is responsible for the delay in effecting this essential change? If officials had bestirred themselves soon enough, this drastic negative remedy would not be necessary. Now that it has been taken as a last resort, the Commissioners are under double obligation to push through reforms that will stop the disintegration of essential community services at the source.

LAUNCHED: USS TARAWA

Wings over water towing the air in overhead haul:
flat top Tarawa looses her birds and their beaks . . . guns.

American blood in the channel of time . . .
Remember?

Let the new ship follow red in the sky:
let the blue Pacific battle her bows—
bail out the birds in name of Tarawa; men lie in land too strange for them.

Cover the sky-ways with sails of steel,
go with the clouds:
more than avengement stays aloft:
murder has failed.

Peace Via The Campus

By Malvina Lindsay

Foreign Students

THE CHANCES of America's being at peace in 1965 or thereafter would be greater if more of the vision of Cecil Rhodes were being manifested by those who are planning memorials to the war dead. Public buildings, stadiums, highways, may in time be targets for rocket bombs. But a foreign student who for several years has been an integral part of American college life, or an American student who has brushed minds with his own generation abroad, may, as a leader of tomorrow, help develop international understanding that will forestall rocket bombs.

It would seem that interchange of students would be the natural foundation for nations to put under their peace alliances and charters. One encouraging sign in this direction is the Russian Institute of Columbia University, to begin in July, 1946. This will be the first of six institutes, made possible by a Rockefeller Foundation grant, to be set up to study the life and thought of the principal areas of the world and to train American specialists in the affairs of those areas.

This country in turn will be subjected to the study of 28 Turkish students who will be sent this September by their government to Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., for a year's orientation work, particularly in the English language. Later they will study engineering at other schools.

Educational Shuttle

No doubt many campuses will be the scenes of similar experiments. And the established systems of fellowships, as the Rhodes, Commonwealth, Davison, Choate, etc., as well as the Guggenheim Foundation and the Institute of Current World Affairs, will continue sending Americans over the world to study. Other organizations will continue to bring foreign students to this country. In the years immediately preceding this war, between 8000 and 9000 students were coming to and going from the United States.

All this, however, is only a drop in the bucket to what is needed. The reapings this Nation has made in good will from countries that have sent students here, notably China, and in public leadership from its own youth that has studied abroad give promise of what a large-scale program in this line would produce. One concrete example of this reaping is the Filipino leader, Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, who by his oratory and writing has awakened millions of Americans to a deeper understanding of the war and a wider view of world problems. General Romulo did his graduate work at Columbia University under the auspices of William Howard Taft.

The Rhodes scholarships, now in existence for more than 40 years, show best the fruits of intellectual cooperation between nations. So far, approximately 1000 American Rhodes scholars have studied at Oxford University. Of these, more than one third have been educators. Others have been lawyers, businessmen, clergymen, writers, radio broadcasters, Government officials, with 34 in miscellaneous occupations. The present Congress has three Rhodes scholars.

Men of Affairs

Thus, the majority of these scholars have turned out to be, as Cecil Rhodes desired, men who "esteem the performance of public duties their highest expression," men in strategic positions to strengthen the understanding and peace of the world. While they have varied greatly as individuals, their collective influence has been to further what Rhodes called his "great idea." Closer understanding between the United States and the British Commonwealth, which was a part of that idea, has developed since Rhodes' death in 1902, a time when many Americans were still verbally fighting the Revolutionary War.

True, two wars have taken place since the scholarships were established. But Rhodes, who took the long view of his plan, had set first one century, later two centuries, as the time needed for giving his scholarships their full influence. As Frank Aydelotte, American secretary to the Rhodes trustees, points out in the American Oxonian, "Rhodes had the patience of great faith, but even in the short period of 40 years it seems clear to anyone who looks beneath the surface that the purposes he had in mind are already beginning to be fulfilled."

Other fellowships systems have reciprocated the Rhodes plan by bringing English students to American universities. Also students have come from approximately 25 other countries under these systems. Much more of this intellectual exchange in the years to come, particularly with Russia, might make easier the future sessions of the General Assembly and the Security Council of the United Nations.

Do Not Abandon Pets

When so near to our animal shelter, why do careless people drop their kittens and puppies at the foot of the driveway instead of going a little farther and carrying them to the safety of cage or yard? The animals soon get out of their bags and wander off into the woods. The extra work of searching for these abandoned pets is great and they may never be found and will die slowly of starvation and thirst. Have a heart, bring these pets up to the shelter.

MRS. H. D. ALBIN.
Secretary, Animal Protective Association.

Count Ciano's Diary

By Sumner Welles

Two Misleading Entries

NEWSPAPERS here and abroad have recently carried excerpts from the diary of Count Ciano syndicated by the Chicago Daily News.

In the diary for the months of February and March, 1940, there are references to my mission to Europe as the representative of President Roosevelt to find out whether there then existed any possibilities for a just and permanent peace.

Certain entries deal with conversations which I had with Count Ciano and with Mussolini upon my second visit to Rome after my trips to Berlin, Paris and London. Some passages, while inaccurate, are of minor significance. Two, however, are altogether misleading with regard to matters of major importance.

THE FIRST of these is dated March 16, 1940. This excerpt reads as follows:

"March 16—Two conferences with Sumner Welles. The most important feature that emerged was this: In London and in Paris there isn't any of the intransigence that appears in their speeches and papers. If they had certain security guaranties they would be ready more or less to give in and recognize the accomplished fact. If they should really follow this path they are moving toward defeat. If Hitler has any doubt about attack, this will be dispelled at once when he learns from Mussolini about these reversals on the part of the democracies."

It will be remembered that at this moment, in the final days before Hitler launched his all-out offensive against the Low Countries and against France, the constantly repeated Nazi propaganda, which was echoed by Mussolini, was the charge that Great Britain and France were wholly intransigent in their determination to destroy Germany, and that Germany had no recourse other than war as her one means of self-preservation.

What I actually said to Count Ciano on March 16 is stated on page 134 of my book The Time for Decision:

"I reminded the Minister that when I had left Rome Mussolini had told me that I would find far greater intransigence in London and Paris than I would in Berlin. I said that, on the contrary, I had found no intransigence in either London or Paris. I had, however, found a thorough determination on the part of those two governments to continue the war to its bitter end unless they could obtain practical and complete assurance that they would not again be plunged into a war of this kind."

AS THIS QUOTATION makes clear, the statements I made to Count Ciano conveyed no implication that I had found either indecision or hesitation on the part of the British or French governments.

The second passage from Count Ciano's diary is dated March 17. In this passage he asserts:

"Sumner Welles has telephoned Roosevelt, asking permission to undertake certain vague moves for peace, but the answer is in the negative."

The facts covering this telephone conversation with President Roosevelt are set forth in full detail on pages 138 to 141 of The Time for Decision.

They are, briefly, as follows: Mussolini had informed me on March 16 that he was to meet two days later with Hitler at the Brenner Pass. He told me that the German military offensive was imminent. He added that, if he were to be able to persuade Hitler to postpone the offensive, he must be in a position to offer him some hope that the western powers would not prove obdurate. He asked that I give him for Hitler's information the impressions which I had formed with regard to the possibility of a negotiated solution of territorial and political questions in Europe. I replied that, under my instructions, I could give him no such information without direct authorization from the President of the United States.

In my telephone conversation with President Roosevelt I expressed the belief that, were Hitler to be informed through Mussolini of any impressions which I had derived during my visits to Paris and to London, the conclusion would inevitably be drawn that the President was participating in the determination of such bases for a negotiated peace as Hitler might be willing to accept. President Roosevelt was, of course, wholly in accord. He instructed me to state in reply to Mussolini's inquiry that in his belief the problem of security was the fundamental issue. He further wished me to say that he was confident that neither the British nor French governments had as an objective the destruction either of Germany or of the German people, and that he believed their chief purpose was to assure themselves that a situation could not again arise where a major war might be forced upon them in every succeeding generation through German aggression.

AS I HAVE REPORTED in my book, when I communicated this message from the President to Count Ciano, the latter indicated emphatic approval. He expressed the view that it was far better for the Government of the United States to avoid giving the impression that it was taking any part in formulating terms which might be considered by Hitler.

Nothing was further from my own mind at that moment than to ask "permission to undertake certain vague moves for peace." Such an undertaking would have been wholly outside the sphere of my mission. But, more than that, my talks in Berlin had made it clear that any such move would have been dangerous and futile in view of the decision upon an all-out war already reached by the Nazi government.

I find it necessary to comment upon these references by Count Ciano to my mission to Europe for two reasons.

First, some of the newspapers publishing these excerpts from Count Ciano's diary carry the assertion that my own published account of these conversations is "in substantial agreement" with Count Ciano's version. That is not the fact.

Second, both President Roosevelt and President Truman have admirably succeeded in raising American foreign policy above all partisan levels. The people of the United States are about to make some of the most momentous decisions in their history in the field of foreign policy. It is, therefore, all the more important that they should be given, with the most meticulous accuracy, all possible information with regard to the present or recent conduct of their foreign relations.

Letters To The Editor

Communications must carry writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters should be held to not more than 200 words. They are subject to condensation.

Subsidy Policy

Permit me to thank whoever wrote the editorial entitled "Subsidy Policy" for the statements contained therein. This appeared in your paper on July 5. The statements are almost identical with the arguments advanced by me in support of the Wherry amendment to S.J.R. 30. This amendment was labeled by you as a monstrosity.

The Wherry amendment only provided that the Office of Price Administration or the director of the Office of Economic Stabilization should not set an unlawful price, a price that was lower than the production cost of all segments of the meat industry and of agricultural products. This would have been done on the profit motive basis and it would have provided maximum production.

Today there are subsidy payments totaling $51.60 on a 1200-pound steer. Who will absorb those subsidy payments when the emergency is terminated if it ever is terminated? It will have to be done by the consumer at soaring prices or by the producer. My guess is it will be the producer.

On top of this, we have now adopted the recriprocal trade agreements policy. If we govern the future by the past this Administration will again reduce the schedules the full amount, so that the only protection that a cattle producer will receive is the maximum of 75 cents a hundred, which is just as good as no protection at all. Yet, you ask the producer to absorb the $51.60 and on top of it permit the importation of quotas of 825,000 head of cattle to sell in direct competition with the cattle producers of this country.

May I suggest that you read Life magazine for July 9, 1945. On pages 74 and 75, you will find pictures of two Nebraska farmers and I ask you to read their statements. They present figures that I am sure are trustworthy. I have reported to the Senate scores of cases of cattle feeders whose accounting I am sure is just as accurate as the industrial firms. I believe that you will agree with me that the cattle feeders of the country are not producing A and AA beef, corn-fed beef, at a profit.

The Wherry amendment would correct the difficulty of these two cattle feeders who are shown in Life magazine by requiring the Government agency controlling prices not to set a price below the cost of production. The amendment would have corrected it on the profit motive basis rather than on the subsidy basis. This would help in two ways. It would get maximum production without restriction and subsidy payments would not have to be absorbed by either the consumer or the producer when the emergency terminates.

KENNETH S. WHERRY,
Senator from Nebraska.

The Post On The Court

The Supreme Court has handed down many important decisions during the past term. The Post editorials commenting on these decisions have been extremely enlightening, furnishing background material as well as indications of the effects of these decisions.

Since so many important issues have been dealt with I suggest that you publish these editorials in a book or pamphlet. They should have wide distribution so that the country may be awakened to the importance of the Supreme Court and how it has carried out its intended purpose. It is important that the country be made to realize just what has happened to the court.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Opening The Airways

PRESIDENT TRUMAN has shown the patience of Job in waiting so long to announce the first international air routes.

The three routes, to be operated by three competing companies, as outlined by the Civil Aeronautics Board, comply with national policy stated in an act of Congress. These competitive routes comply, too, with the great body of public opinion in this country, which is dead set against monopoly.

The reason the President waited so long was to give a small minority in the Senate—really a minority of two—every opportunity to voice the point of view in favor of a so-called community company. The minority resorted to every petty tactic indeed to hold up the CAB findings as long as possible.

The delay of many months did not help to advance our postwar air position. The Army Air Forces has done a superb job of building bases and airfields around the world during the course of this global conflict. Part of this we will write off as part of the cost of the war. But part of it will fit into the postwar air picture if we do not deliberately dribble it away in the course of our own family quarrel.

SENATOR BREWSTER of Maine and Senator McCarran of Nevada have openly and ardently embraced the cause of Pan American Airways, which seeks a single company—the chosen instrument which would have Government backing. All the domestic airlines, with one or two exceptions, want regulated competition because they want to get into the international trade.

The stakes are big. Air travel is bound to expand at the war's end at an enormous rate. So will revenues from globe-girdling planes. That is why the lobbies have been working so intensively here at the center of authority.

But there is a national interest, too, which is bigger than any private interest. In the opinion of those who should know, the national interest is best served by competing companies. That way, more routes will be flown, and more passengers. The chances are better for lower rates. More activity in the air will in turn mean more orders for the aircraft industry. It will mean that research and experimentation will be kept at a high level.

Of course, it is not the struggle here at home between competition and monopoly that is alone responsible for holding up our postwar air chart. Great Britain has been very reluctant about giving us landing rights on strategic British geography scattered around the globe. That is true even where American materials and labor have gone to create great new airports.

THE BRITISH position is not hard to understand. They point out that we have gained a tremendous advantage in this war. While with their limited plant capacity they concentrated entirely on building bombers, we with our huge plants built both bombers and transport planes in unbelievable numbers.

We have thousands of transport planes that can readily be converted to peacetime passenger and freight service. An estimated three fourths of all air passenger traffic will originate in this country. We do have a running head start in the face for peacetime air superiority.

Those who argue for the so-called community company insist that there will be plenty of competition with the companies of other nations. Usually, however, it doesn't work that way. Britain today has a single company with government backing—British Overseas Airways Corporation. The pressure would all be toward agreement between their company and ours to eliminate what would be called "unnecessary competition."

The forces pushing us into the new air age are so strong that nothing can really stop the drive. They cannot be channeled into monopoly. Neither can they be checked by ancient prerogatives of geography.

Each department of the Government—War, Navy, Justice, State—has testified for competition. There will be enough business for all, and it's time to get on with it.

"Take-Home" Pay

Out of the new pay increase (?) I shall have in my "take-home" envelope, the magnificent salary of $74.57 instead of the $78.43 which I formerly existed on. After having been given such a "build-up" for months—having been led to believe that "the powers that be" were sincere in their efforts to really help Government clerks beat the exorbitant cost of living in Washington, is it any wonder that many of us are heartsick with disappointment, and bewildered at the boast of Congressmen that they have saved the Government millions of dollars?

As a widow with a son to support, both, unfortunately, under constant medical care, here, briefly, is my tale of woe: Apartment rent, $50; food, $70; bank note (proceeds of which were used for emergencies), $25; insurance and hospitalization, $8; making a shortage of $3.86, and no provision made for clothing, bus fare, medical attention, recreation and the innumerable other expenses which crop up from one pay period until the next. I think I am speaking for most of us when I say, "Please tell me how?"

A Discouraged Government Clerk.

Big Three Meeting

By Ernest Lindley

Truman's Severest Test

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S popularity as he goes to the Potsdam Conference has seldom if ever been excelled by any Chief Executive in modern times. The Nation behind him is exceptionally harmonious. It appears not only to like the new President but to have confidence in his capacities. He is accompanied by a Secretary of State who, although relatively new to international affairs, is thoroughly experienced in public business and highly respected in Congress for his shrewd judgment and skill as a negotiator.

These will all be important United States assets at the Potsdam Conference table. They add up to more than most people expected at the time of Roosevelt's death.

HOW IS TRUMAN'S extraordinary popularity to be explained? He is liked by so many different kinds of people that there must be more than one explanation.

For some, the disappearance of Roosevelt himself was a relief Now it has been followed by the disappearance of some of the men closely identified with him. Old hatreds and phobias built up during Roosevelt's many political fights now belong to the past.

Belief that he will be more conservative than Roosevelt has, of course, added to Truman's popularity among certain groups. But if there is to be a "turn to the right," it is not yet visible. Truman has not done or said anything yet seriously to perturb Roosevelt's liberal and labor followers. Of course, many of his decisions and statements have been on questions related to the war and the peace which have no "right" or "left."

BUT WHETHER or not Truman is, or will become, more conservative than Roosevelt, people don't see strange people hiding behind Truman's desk or under it. He is a type of man who is familiar to millions of Americans, especially in smaller cities and towns and rural areas. Roosevelt, although he became the champion of the common man, had the upbringing of an aristocrat. His peculiarities of background and manner set him apart. Truman is strictly middle class. You know from the way he looks and talks that he is a sensible fellow whose mental processes you will always be able to understand. Moreover, he is infectiously friendly.

Most of Truman's important appointees have been men who, like himself, already commanded the confidence of Congress and of voters in at least their own districts. This has been added cause for reassurance, in the minds of a great many citizens, no matter how they felt about Roosevelt.

But Truman would not have the popularity which he now enjoys if he were only a likable, understandable man who is appointing seasoned politicians to office. Those qualities were already known or were predictable from his record. But what many did not expect was that he would prove to be so sure-footed in his handling of public business.

WHEN ROOSEVELT was taken away, the fear which gripped many was that Truman could not take his place in the direction of the war and of the management of our international affairs. Even some who had never voted for Roosevelt respected his ability in the international arena. His departure might have been a very damaging blow to the prestige and influence of the United States.

But Truman's moves in the international as well as the domestic field have indicated that he knows his business. He is intelligent, informed, and decisive. The evidence that Truman is a competent President has been one of the greatest causes of relief to many citizens and must be an important ingredient in his immense popularity.

The Big Three meeting will be Truman's first really severe test in the international field. As an individual he is the junior member of the Big Three. But the Nation which he represents is the most powerful and, in much of the world, the most trusted, and he can sit at the table with the confidence that his own people are overwhelmingly behind him.

The Gallup Poll

5-Nation Survey Gives U. S. Top Rating in World Prestige

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 10.—Which nation will have most influence in world affairs after the war—the United States, or Russia?

An international poll conducted jointly by affiliates of the Institute in four foreign countries shows that the people of France, Canada, Sweden and Denmark rate the United States first in future world influence, with Russia second, and Britain a lagging third.

These results—evidence of the extent to which the peoples of the world look to the United States for leadership—give added emphasis to President Truman's speech in the Senate in which he said that the eyes of all nations are focused on the Senate debate over American adherence to the San Francisco Charter.

One interesting sidelight of the international poll is the extent to which the people of France have been impressed by Russia. The figures show that although America is named most often as the influential power, Russia is a close second and gets about twice as many votes in France as in any other country polled on the question.

Studies of international opinion have been made possible by the forming of permanent poll taking organizations in a total of six countries besides the United States.

The results of today's poll were gathered by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, the French Institute of Public Opinion, the Svenska Gallup Institutet, the Dansk Gallup Insitut, and the American Institute of Public Opinion.

After the war, which country do you think will actually have the most influence in world affairs?

Rankin Again Overruled By Vet Committee

A majority of the House Veterans Committee yesterday issued a "minority" report protesting the action of Chairman John Rankin (D., Tenn.), and other members in reporting out an anticlosed shop bill without hearings.

This is the second time in recent weeks that the committee has overruled its chairman, the first having been in rescinding a contempt citation against a New York reporter because he refused to reveal confidential sources of information about veterans' hospitals.

In the carefully worded "minority" report, 11 of the 21 committee members charged that the measure was rushed through without full and complete hearings while the Veterans Administration is still negotiating with labor unions to exempt veterans from closed shop provisions of union contracts.

The six Republicans and five Democrats who signed the minority report condemned introduction of the matter at this time as "premature."

"The effects of this measure would be so many and varied as to be unforeseeable;" the "minority" said, "the changes in contracts, agreements and laws would be so numerous as to be incalculable without study.

"The necessity of enactment of this legislation to bring employment opportunities to veterans has not been established."

The report was signed by Representatives Edith Nourse Rogers (R., Mass.), Errett P. Schrivner (R., Kans.), Paul Cunningham (R., Iowa), Marion T. Bennett (R., Mo.), James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), Homer A. Ramey (R., Ohio), Clair Engle (D., Calif.), William G. Stigler (D., Okla.), A. S. J. Carnahan (D., Mo.), Walter B. Huber (R., Ohio), and William J. Green, jr., (D., Pa.)

House Report Charges Chaos In Relief Task

Europe's tragic food situation is even more difficult to solve than need be, because of lack of cooperation between different United States authorities, lack of cooperation among the Allies and failure of the Senate to act on the House-approved proposals for an international Food and Agriculture Organization, three members of the House Agriculture Committee reported yesterday.

The three, Representatives Harold D. Cooley (D., N. C.), Harold H. Earthman (D., Tenn.) and George M. Grant (D., Ala.), urged centralized control over food in Europe and international pooling of information on stocks and surpluses of food.

Cooley explained that there is no such thing as an over-all food surplus, even in normal times, but that surpluses in some localities could be shifted to relieve shortages in others.

Efforts Lack Coordination

The American military authorities, the Bureau of Economic Welfare and UNRRA are all concerned in the problem of food for starving Europe, the three told the Special House Committee to Investigate Food Shortages, but there is no coordination of their efforts.

Likewise there is no coordination among Britain, France and Russia, either in disseminating information or arranging food distribution, they said.

In American-held territory, Russian broadcasts told how much better the Russians were handling the food situation, the Congressmen reported, thus complicating an already difficult situation.

Cooley called the failure of the United States to adhere to the International Food and Agriculture Organization "a serious oversight." Twenty-two other nations, he pointed out, have joined the organization, which will serve as a world clearing house for information on food problems. Peoples of other nations, Cooley warned, are wondering if we are backing out of an organization the United States started.

Hold Starvation Certain

There is no question that "millions" of people in Europe will die of starvation this winter, the representatives declared, mainly because of lack of transportation for what food is grown in or brought to various countries.

They explained that rivers in Germany are clogged with wrecked bridges, only two railroads are running, and those for slight distances, and there is a shortage of trucks for other than military use.

In parts of Germany and other countries potatoes rot in the ground for lack of transportation while in the cities people cannot get enough to eat.

The food shortage in Norway was considered the worst of any country visited, although conditions in Holland and Belgium, they said, were nearly as bad.

Press Wireless Rates Ordered Probed by FCC

By the United Press

An immediate investigation into the rates and charges of Press Wireless, Inc., was ordered yesterday by the Federal Communications Commission.

The company last year made a profit of 76.4 per cent before taxes reductions, and the trend of earning this year appears to be going upward, the commission said.

International telegraph rates for messages, except press, sent from the United States were substantially reduced on May 1 when a 20-cent-a-word rate for ordinary plain language message was established by the various U. S. telegraph carriers other than Press Wireless.

Press Wireless had given no indication of any intention to reduce its rate for Press service, the FCC said. It called upon the company to show cause before August 1 why its existing rates should not be found "unjust and unreasonable" and why an interim reduction should not be made while the investigation is concluded.

A public hearing has been scheduled for August 22.

St. Margaret Mary House Tax Case May Bring Appeal

Catholic officials were considering last night whether to file a plea with the District Board of Tax Appeals in protest against a ruling of the corporation counsel's office denying a tax exempt statute of St. Margaret Mary House, a home for 24 elderly women, at 3033 P st. nw.

The Right Rev. Msgr. Edward L. Buckey discussed the matter with District Commissioners yesterday. Under a recent corporation counsel ruling, the home was returned to tax rolls when it was found inmates are charged $42 to $60 a month for room and board.

Capt. Bailey Made Fire Battalion Chief Engineer

District Commissioners yesterday approved promotion of Capt. Harry O. Bailey of Fire Engine Company No. 24, to the position of battalion chief engineer, replacing John L. Werheim, now in service. The appointment is temporary pending the cessation of hostilities.

In recommending the promotion, Fire Chief S. T. Porter termed Captain Bailey "an outstanding fireman since his entry into the service on January 1, 1912." Bailey will receive $4500 a year.

He has completed first aid and civilian protection courses. He was designated to act as battalion chief, whenever his services were necessary or desirable, in June, 1941.

Navy Now in Control of Sea Up to Japan, Forrestal Says

The Navy now controls the sea right up to Japan and in winning that control has sunk more than 250 major enemy warships and hundreds of merchant vessels and destroyed thousands of planes, Secretary James Forrestal announced last night during a Nation-wide broadcast.

The announcement came as a highlight of the premiere of radio's new "Navy Hour" which originated in the Lisner Auditorium of George Washington University.

Equivalent of 1150 Vessels

Forrestal also revealed that submarines alone had sent to the bottom of the Pacific 4,500,000 tons of Jap shipping—the equivalent of 1150 enemy vessels.

Proudly the naval chieftain called particular attention to the Navy's current terrific carrier-borne strikes against Tokyo and said:

"Remember that one thing alone makes these strikes possible—seapower, overwhelming seapower."

Off Balance 18 Months

For more than 18 months, Forrestal pointed out, the Navy's fast carrier task force has kept the Jap air force "off balance." It has spearheaded every advance through the central Pacific, he said, while Navy ships and planes protected our invasion convoys, Marines and Army troops from the Jap navy, virtually liquidating the Jap imperial fleet in two major battles since June, 1944.

The initial broadcast featured a pickup from a submarine somewhere in the far Pacific with Forrestal introducing a sailor at his duty station—Torpedoman 3/c Herman J. Goehler of St. Louis.

Lloyd George's Will Contested By Son, Richard

London, July 10 (U.P.).—The new Earl Lloyd George took action today to contest the will of his late father, Britain's victory Prime Minister in World War I, who left him the title, but not the cash to go with it and maintain the dignity of a peer.

David Lloyd George could not prevent the descent of the earldom to his elder son, Richard, the new earl. But he left the estate to Countess Lloyd George, the second son, Gwyllm Lloyd George, and his daughter, Megan.

The case will not reach the courts before December and Richard is looking forward to a lecture tour in the United States during the winter to help out.

District Fathers Back Revoking Of Woody's License

District Commissioners reversed a 31-day suspension order of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday and upheld a decision of that body revoking the license of Woody's, Inc., 714 11th st. nw.

Commissioners approved revocation of the license of Woody's, Inc., on three counts of selling alcoholic beverages to a minor.

The suspension order was lifted against Morris Phillips, 1345-47 R st. nw., who was alleged to have allowed a minor to handle liquor in his establishment.

OPA Files Suit for $285 For Rental Overcharge

OPA yesterday accused Mrs. Margaret B. Murray, 1509 8th st. nw. of charging a tenant $12 a week for a room at 11 Jefferson ave., Takoma Park, Md., when the legal ceiling price was $9.50, according to a suit filed in District Court. The price agency asked for three times the asserted overcharge of $95 between the period of July 1, 1944, and March 26, 1945, or $285. It also requested a court order restraining the defendant from any acts of price violation.

Riggs National Adds $750,000 To Its Surplus

By S. Oliver Goodman

Directors of Riggs National Bank have authorized the transfer of $750,000 to surplus account, President Robert V. Fleming reported yesterday.

Together with $250,000 added to surplus last January, this brings the bank's surplus account to $3,750,000 and "is in keeping with the bank's established policy of continuing to build up capital structure," according to Mr. Fleming.

Directors also voted regular quarterly dividends of $3 a share on capital stock, payable July 16 and October 15 to stockholders of record July 9 and September 30.

Assets of Riggs National as of June 30, 1945, aggregated $304,893,577, a substantial increase of about 30 million dollars since December 30, 1944. Deposits rose to $292,401,455 from $262,631,042. The bank held $189,798,056 in its Government securities portfolio, a gain of more than 16 million dollars for the first six months.

Loans outstanding on June 30 totaled $24,060,469, against $19,248,201 on December 30, 1944.

Utility Bonds Offered

Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., heads a large group of underwriters that is offering today 34 million dollars of Portland General Electric Co. first mortgage bonds 3⅛ per cent series due 1975, at 102.41 per cent and accrued interest from July 1.

Net proceeds from the bonds, together with four million dollars to be received from a bank loan, and other company funds, will be applied to the redemption on next October 1, at 102 per cent, of all the outstanding $39,565,000 first and refunding mortgage gold 4½ per cent bonds. The bank loan is a 2 per cent loan for 10 years.

May Income Payments Rise

Income payments to individuals in May were $12,856,000,000, the Commerce Department estimated yesterday.

This was 4 per cent higher than payments in May of a year ago. The May payments were at an annual rate of $163,100,000,000 after allowance is made for seasonal factors. This compares with the 1944 record total of $156,800,000,000.

"Income payments to individuals" include all payments made by business and Government and differ somewhat from "national income," which includes only income received for participating in production—that is, earned income.

Youngstown, Ohio, July 10 (AP).—Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. has arranged to sell $30,000,000 principal amount of its 2¾ per cent first mortgage bonds maturing in 1970, President Frank Purnell announced today. The sale will be private to a small group of purchasers.

Sheet and Tube has reduced its funded debt from $87,000,000 on January 1, 1940 to $36,750,000 today, or $50,250,000 in five years, company officials said. This has been done chiefly through reduced inventories, a reduction in receivables and accumulation of depreciation, company officials said.

2d Storm Hits Lehigh Valley After 6 Die

Phillipsburg, N. J., July 10 (AP). New storms swept the Lehigh Valley again today where at least six persons lost their lives yesterday as wind, lightning and rain struck the thickly-populated New Jersey-Pennsylvania area.

A heavy downpour drenched the 25-mile stretch from Phillipsburg to Northampton, Pa., as rescuers struggled to recover two of four bodies of victims of a landslide here.

Two other persons were killed—one at Bethlehem, Pa., and another at Allentown, Pa.—in last night's electrical storm which leveled power lines, flooded homes, uprooted trees, washed out bridges and railroad tracks, disrupted train service and stalled vehicular traffic.

The Phillipsburg dead were listed as Mrs. Helen Souders, 39; her nine-year-old son, John Souders; Nellie van Norman, 54, and Peter Newman, 68.

Mrs. Rachel Rubin

Funeral services for Mrs. Rachel Rubin, 84, who died Saturday at her home, 4713 Kansas ave. nw., were held on Sunday at 4:30 p. m.

One of the organizers of the Hebrew Burial Society of Washington, Mrs. Rubin was born in Russia and had lived in the District for the past 20 years. She was a member of the Beth Sholom Congregation.

She is survived by two sons, Jacob and Harry Rubin of Washington, and by three daughters, Mrs. Lena Silverman and Mrs. Gertrude Bleier, both of Hume Springs, Va., and Mrs. Paul Shafets of Detroit, Mich. Eleven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren also survive her.

More Liberal Bill Backed For Veterans

The House Veterans Committee yesterday approved legislation to liberalize the G. I. Bill of Rights.

A member said the proposed amendments would "do away with some of the red tape and delay that has accompanied the administration of the G. I. Bill—especially the loan provisions." They would:

1. Liberalize the educational provisions of the bill to permit veterans to take short, high-cost correspondence courses as well as regular college or academic courses.

2. Increase the monthly compensation of a veteran taking an educational course to $60 a month for a single man and to $85 a month for a veteran with one dependent. Under present law, a single man receives $50 a month for sustenance and a former serviceman with one dependent $75 a month.

3. Eliminate the necessity of having the Veterans' Administration approve the loans made to veterans by private bankers under the loan provisions.

The committee, headed by Representative John E. Rankin (D., Miss.), in approving the GI Bill amendments, voted down an attempt by Rankin to include his $1040 bonus bill.

"This does not mean that the bonus bill is dead," one member said. "It merely means that we have deferred action on it until some future date. The bonus issue will certainly come before us again."

Under present provisions of the bill, unemployed ex-servicemen are eligible to receive $20 a week for one year. Rankin has condemned it as "encouraging idleness" and his measure would give all servicemen—both employed and unemployed—$1040 as a "readjustment compensation."

Hearing Today On Television Tower Site

Property owners in the vicinity of 39th and Fessenden sts. nw. will appear before the Board of Zoning Adjustment today at 10 a. m. to protest construction of television transmitting facilities in that area. The meeting will be held in the board room of the District Building, 14th and E sts. nw.

Residents are expected to protest the construction of a 300-foot tower and other facilities which they say will be unsightly and commercialize the neighborhood, possibly interfere with radio reception, and depreciate property values.

Officials of Bamberger Construction Company, who plan to install the facilities, state that zoning would remain unchanged, traffic would be increased only by 10 or 15 cars daily, and that interference with radio reception is unlikely.

New officers of the Minnesota Avenue Talmud Torah will be installed at a meeting at 8 p. m. tonight at 4008 Minnesota ave. ne. by Rabbi Zemach Green of the Ohev Sholom Congregation.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Vaudeville Will Exit From Stage at Earle; Notes of the Theater

GRIP THE ARMS of your chairs with one hand and hang onto your hats with the other, you vaudeville fans! There's hot news a-coming.

As of Thursday, August 16, it is announced today by Zone Manager John J. Payette of the Warner Brothers interests in the Washington territory, the Earle Theater will discontinue its stage shows and thenceforth operate on a fixed policy of straight motion picture presentation.

John J. Payette

The decision to abandon the combination policy that has been in force at the Earle for approximately 20 years and in its present form for 15, was made to facilitate the flow of major screen attractions through the Warner first-run outlets in the Capital.

A checkup of topflight pictures to be shown local filmgazers during the ensuing year was made by Mr. Payette last April. It indicated that the large backlog of features ready for release would cause a serious bottleneck in the District unless some means could be found to move them more rapidly.

The conversion of the Metropolitan Theater into a straight, first-run house with "God Is My Co-Pilot," on April 26, failed of its purpose to relieve the congestion, for obvious reasons. The limited seating capacity of the Metropolitan—something under 1500—necessitated extended runs of the Grade-A films if public demand is to be satisfied. Thus it comes about that in 10 weeks only three pictures have been shown at the Met.—"God Is My Co-Pilot" for four weeks, and "Roughly Speaking" and "The Affairs of Susan" for three weeks each. That is no effective way to break a jam of backed-up product.

So Mr. Payette made another trip to New York to ascertain precisely what releases would be coming along from the home lot and discovered himself confronted with the following list:

Ready to Go

Bette Davis in "The Corn Is Green" on July 21; Barbara Stanwyck and Dennis Morgan in "Christmas in Connecticut," August 11; John Garfield, Eleanor Parker and Dane Clark in "Pride of the Marines," September 1; Robert Alda, Joan Leslie, Alexis Smith and Paul Whiteman in "Rhapsody in Blue," the story of George Gershwin, September 29; Geraldine Fitzgerald, Sydney Greenstreet and Pete Lorre in "Three Strangers," October 13; Errol Flynn, Alexis Smith and Zachary Scott in "San Antonio," October 29; Ida Lupino, Paul Henreid and Olivia de Haviland in "Devotion," November 24; Dennis Morgan, Jane Wyman and Jack Carson in "The Time, The Place, and The Girl," December 29; Faye Emerson and Zachary Scott in "Danger Signal," January 12; Gary Cooper and Ingrid Bergman in Edna Ferber's "Saratoga Trunk," January 26; Andrea King, Helmut Dantine and William Prince in "Shadow of a Woman," February 9, and Joan Leslie, Robert Alda and Julie Bishop in "Cinderella Jones," February 23.

This tabulation does not include screen attractions from Paramount, Columbia and the other studios holding first-run contracts with the Earle, Metropolitan and Ambassador Theaters, the last named of which, incidentally, will continue to run "day-and-date," as the trade has it, with one or the other of the downtown houses.

Something had to be done and it was the stage shows at the Earle that got the ax through sheer force of circumstances.

Lest it not be clearly understood how the elimination of the living portions of the Earle program will relieve the situation, it will work out something like this. The running time previously allotted four or five stage bills a day will permit at least one additional daily screening of the principal film attraction, with its seating capacity of considerably more than 2200. This, theoretically, will enable the Earle to present its film features to between 15,000 and 20,000 more people a week than can be accommodated under the present combination policy. It is estimated by Mr. Payette and his associates, on the basis of this increased turnover, that beginning August 16 the normal length of run per picture on Thirteenth st. will be two weeks, with occasionally a super de luxer running three. If the scheme works out—and there seems to be no valid reason why it shouldn't—it is not inconceivable that the first thing it knows the Earle may be able to keep even with its national release dates. That is something no downtown first-run house in Washington is able to do at present, despite the hue and cry up and down the rest of the land over the paucity of suitable features to keep the booking sheets full. The Metropolitan will continue as a first-run outlet, but with the Earle absorbing the long-run pictures by reason of its greater capacity.

The source of keenest regret to the Earle's ardent vaudeville fans, no doubt, will be the deletion of the Roxyettes as an item of vast popularity on the week-in-and-week-out programs. For the greater part of a decade now, these 16-plus young exponents of precision and pulchritude have occupied a place of high regard in the estimation of an appreciative public that has not been unaware of the indefatigable effort that has gone into their versatile perfection, or indifferent to the eagerness with which they have leaped to the support of any worthy charity or Government wartime enterprise. The Earle's executive staff will not be affected by the change in policy, but the public's pocketbook will. The admission prices at the Earle will be reduced under the new arrangement.

Rubbing It In

The necessity for such action as the Earle is taking is emphasized by the fact that the week which immediately impends will be ushering in only three major first-run offerings in the downtown area.

Opening tomorrow at RKO-Keith's Theater will be "Along Came Jones," Gary Cooper's first independent production, in which he will be seen in the title role, with Loretta Young as costar and William Demarest and Dan Duryea leading the support. At Loew's Capitol, Judy Garland and Robert Walker will be breaking out Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Clock," previewed yesterday morning and as amusing and gently appealing a youthful soldier-romance as anyone could possibly want to enjoy.

Not to be outdone by Mr. Cooper, Bing Crosby will be presenting, but not appearing in, his own first independent production at the Earle tomorrow, when "The Great John L." will be the chief screen attraction, with the newcomer, Greg McClure, in the title role.

Except that "The Son of Lassie" will take over at Loew's Columbia, the rest will be holdovers.

"Peer Gynt," one of the spring hits at Catholic University, will be revived for a six-night engagement in the University Theater, July 16 to 21, inclusive. Prominent in the cast will be Whit Vernon, Betsy Ross, Emily Peters, Al Geyer, Charles Steinmetz, May Walther and Richard Sykes. Reservations are now being taken at the box office, MI 6000, Ext. 41. The excellence of the campus players' interpretation of the Ibsen work is well worth the trouble of a call.

Daily-Deadline-Surprise Note

Goshallfriday! It CAN'T be that late!

No 'Under-Pup'!

GLAMOROUS—Only yesterday kid star of "The Under-Pup," stunning Gloria Jean, now 19, will soon be seen as a sophisticated dress designed, who sings cated dress designer, who sings in Universal's "Easy to Look At." She certainly is!

LEONARD LYONS

Another London Installment

LONDON: When Col. Charles Keegan, the Military Governor of Bavaria, first returned from his combat service in the Pacific, he disembarked at an island off San Francisco. The colonel, a Bronx City Councilman, found some Nazi prisoners there and was given an opportunity to talk with a Nazi colonel, who addressed him as "Pig" and tried to slap him. Keegan flattened him, then lectured him about respecting the victorious American uniform. M.P.s, however, pulled Keegan away. "I don't understand this coddling," Colonel Keegan raged. "I'm going back to my ship, where they know what the enemy is like." Then he leaped aboard a boat similar to the one which brought him to the island. But it went to Alcatraz, where Keegan was stranded for six hours.

Leonard Lyons

Shortly before the Buchenwald, Belsen and Dachau camps were captured and liberated by Allied troops the Nazis brought large groups of their civilian population to these camps. "Look at these people," the Nazis proudly told their adherents, pointing to the starved, the maimed, the mad. "These are the inferior races; this is what they look like" . . . Later, when Eisenhower ordered the civilians to inspect these same camps, Nazi mothers were heard telling their children: "Look at these prisoners and these corpses. They once were good Germans, and look what the Allies have done to them. Look and remember. . . ."

Joe Breen, of the Will Hays office, has a son who, while fighting in the Pacific, was the victim of a land mine. His leg was blown off and he lost consciousness. A doctor administered some plasma, dressed his wounds and ordered him evacuated immediately. The youngster, still unconscious, was carried to a hospital plane and was flown to Honolulu. Some medics carried his stretcher tenderly from the plane, and finally consciousness returned to him. Breen stirred. "How're you doin', son?" he heard. The youngster listened to the solicitous voice, then opened his eyes and looked into the face of the speaker, the first man he had seen since the mine explosion. And he recognized the speaker, his Commander in Chief, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Noel Coward, now busy rehearsing his new show, confessed that the stir caused by his reference to Brooklyn boys in "Middle East Diary" had completely flabbergasted him. "I was referring merely to two boys," said Coward. "And they happened to come from Brooklyn. They might just as easily have come from Oskaloosa or Peoria. But they happened to come from Brooklyn. If readers of my book—and it was not a particularly good book, but I thought it would be craven not to have it published in America as well as in England—were led to believe that I meant this to be typical of Brooklyn boys, then I regret it and I'm thoroughly ashamed of myself. But I didn't mean it that way. I wouldn't be that silly."

The Countess MacMahon, whose husband is a descendant of the Marshal and first President of France, has become one of the legendary figures of the anti-Nazi underground. The Countess helped many Allied prisoners escape. She hid them in her house, stole clothes from the washlines of her Nazi neighbors, and thereby supplied the soldiers with the disguises they needed. She was interned, but operated an underground radio from the internment camp. She was liberated shortly before VE-Day, and insisted upon remaining in Troyes to await her husband's release from Bremen. When he was freed and came to Troyes, late one night, he was unable to awaken anyone in the household. He finally blew a dog whistle he had kept throughout his imprisonment. It awoke the dog, whose barking roused the countess and she was reunited with her long-absent husband. They now are living peacefully at Broad Stairs in Kent.

Ben Goetz, head of MGM in England, produced "Yank at Oxford," "Goodbye Mr. Chips" and other British-made films which were the first to reach the big-money markets in America. He succeeded in getting the members of the cast to speak English distinctly enough so that American audiences would understand it. Goetz, whose ear is attuned to American speech, never visited the set while the films were being made. He insisted only upon seeing the rushes after the day's shooting, and listening to the sound-track. Whenever he found it difficult to understand what a British actor was saying, he ordered the scene reshot. None of the films was released until Goetz could understand every word uttered . . . When Robert Taylor came to London, incidentally, he weighed himself on Goetz' English scale. "I weigh," Taylor reported, "13 stone 8 shillings and 6 pence."

At the U. S. Riviera Recreation Area in Nice and Cannes, I made notes of the conversation among the soldiers who spend their leave there. This is what they talk about; these are the things they say: "These aren't like the Tom Collinses I used to get at the Wm. Penn Hotel in Pittsburgh . . . I don't like Yale, but Yale will always put up a fight . . . The Russians have a policy, the British have a policy, but the Americans—no policy . . . That's for the birds . . . I gave up smoking after the Cologne raid when I threw my butt out of the window and it put the tail of my ship on fire . . . Nobody can sing 'Danny Boy' like Morton Downey . . . I got 124 points, and no kids either . . . He's a real B.T.O.—Big Time Operator . . . When you get home, turn in the general direction of Louisville and say 'Hello' . . . Dublin's the place: A shilling a shot . . . I hate M.P.s They once fined me $2 in Panama, and I'll never forgive 'em . . . I've had it . . . Pitt had a lousy season last year . . . As far as power politics was concerned, Hitler was a damn fool . . . I turn my back or I'd have to court-martial half my men for fraternizing . . . Listen, hot pilot, by this time you ought to recognize the artillery patch I'm wearing. You don't? Well, you bombed us often enough to recognize it."

Hedda Hopper's Hollywood

Hollywood, Calif., July 10.—With studios bidding for the life of Franklin D. Roosevelt it's smart of Metro to buy "Elegy for an Eagle" by Richard Sherman, even tho it cost $150,000. It's what happens to a young couple thru Roosevelt's Administration. You never see the President, but hear his voice many times. The lovers marry the day he takes office in 1933, then the banks close. They wonder if perhaps they've made a mistake getting married at that time. It's a love story told against some shattering world history . . . Warner Anderson had to learn to ride a horse before joining up with Wally Beery and Marjorie Main in "Bad Bascomb" . . . Claudette Colbert is sure movin' around. She's landed at RKO now for her next which will be opposite John Wayne, with Dorothy Porter from Paramount making it a trio . . . Jack Carson signed a new seven-year contract with Warners before pushing off to the South Pacific. The studio added the three months he'll be away on the end of it.

Claudette Colbert

Congrats to the Rooneys

Mickey Rooney's mother arrived in Birmingham, Ala., 24 hours before Mickey Rooney 2d arrived. You can imagine her excitement. She'll return here July 13, and as soon after that as Mickey's wife and baby can travel, they'll be coming to Hollywood also. Arthur, Mickey's butler who's been with the family ages, passed out cigars . . . In "Blue Skies," Bing Crosby, Paul Draper, and Joan Caulfield have to age 26 years. Imagine doing that in technicolor when life does it so fast for you . . . Ruth Hussey has her release from Metro. She has felt for a long time it would be better to free lance. Let's hope she'll find her right place now. There's a clever girl!

This and That

Jimmy McHugh's Aquacade sold 26 million dollars worth of war bonds . . . More surprised service men outside Tom Breneman's cafe July 4. Tom handed out $5 bills to them . . . Studios won't want to admit it, but this strike had added about half a million dollars to the cost of each picture. That's one reason so many independent companies aren't working.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

The District of Columbia looks more like a peacetime Capital this summer than in many years . . . for the first time since the war the House is now planning a long recess . . . This reflects increased congressional confidence in the new White House set-up, also the fact that many a legislator yearns for home . . . The dollar-a-year men and brass hats who planned to check out after Germany's defeat haven't started their exodus. Instead, they've been joined by hundreds of businessmen who've moved in to get their reconversion headaches unsnarled . . . Thousands of returning officers and enlisted men from Europe have added to the housing and feeding problem. Parking spaces along the Potomac are crowded on hot nights with GI Joes and GI Janes and Government workers searching for a cool breeze. Washington is more peaceful, but still jammed.

Adding to the crush are the Truman boys who have descended on Washington . . . They fall into three categories: (1) The Missouri boys, friends of Truman and Bob Hannegan looking for jobs, patronage, and juicy political plums . . . (2) The Pauley boys from Southern California—friends of former Democratic Treasurer Ed Pauley, who've rushed into town to climb on the gravy train. They're brash and crude for the most part, have little respect for the taxpayers' money, and already have their eyes on the gilded dome of the Capitol. Third group are the "Battery K" men. These are the World War I vets who saw service with Harry Truman in 1917-1918. Most are satisfied with a brief "hello" and a handshake from their hero. Others cling to the wrought iron gates of the White House, think that their comradeship with the new Chief Executive is a guarantee of a soft Government job.

Truman Heyday

Truman's own aids in the White House are still impressed by their new surroundings . . . some feel that Truman's rise gives them a blank check to use his power for their own ends . . . One youthful aid has been bragging about having Truman's political enemies shadowed, their wires tapped . . . Truman, a sworn enemy of wire tapping when in the Senate will probably clip their wings soon . . . Most powerful man in the Truman entourage is chubby, cigar-smoking Brig. Gen. Harry Vaughan, one of the "Battery K" boys, who buzzes considerable advice into his chief's ear, but now finds it being accepted with less frequency.

Center of Administration power has partly shifted from the White House to the second floor of the Mayflower Hotel, where Bob Hannegan holds forth in Democratic headquarters . . . Judge Welburn Maycock, the committee's new general counsel, uses the office to lobby for California oil interests . . . George Killion, the new treasurer of the national committee, who has been using a meat-ax to collect money for the committee from businessmen may find himself chopped down soon . . . One ardent supporter of many years' standing hearing about Killion's tactics, said, "He'll collect so much money we'll lose in '48. Everyone he taps for $5000 will feel like contributing twice as much to the Republicans to boot the Pauley crowd out." Meanwhile, little is happening to set the stage for the Democratic victories in the Congressional elections next year . . . Hannegan is already in hot water with labor, particularly the CIO, which he has been studiously ignoring. Labor leaders, who poured out millions to help Roosevelt last year, claim they can't even get a glass of water from the Democrats when it comes to bucking oppressive legislation in Congress, and are now making threats to move over to the GOP camp.

Republicans Harmonious

Farther up Connecticut ave. at Republican headquarters things are harmonious . . . the Republicans are sitting back, are quietly laying the groundwork for a high-powered congressional race next November . . . what they need most of all are some issues . . . GOPsters, including Chairman Herbert Brownell, are confident they'll find plenty in a few months, are hoping that Truman stubs a few toes politically soon . . . Republican Chairman Brownell has a million dollars to spend on the elections, but he's holding on to it, timing his shots so they'll do the most good.

Truman's Cabinet changes thus far have been extremely popular . . . Tall, scholarly new Labor Secretary Schwellenbach has made scores of friends for his department, has infused new life among its weary employes, has made an A-1 impression on Congress with its departmental reorganization plan . . . Schwellenbach eats in the departmental cafeteria, rides the regular elevators, walks around the department casually, keeps a close eye on things.

Former Congressman Clint Anderson has the hottest job in the new Administration trying to straighten out the tangled food mess as Secretary of Agriculture . . . Anderson is a great red-tape shearer, has already made big improvements, is no pushover for lobbyists for the farm groups or the pressure boys who represent the meat packers.

Other changes are taking place fast . . . Able Undersecretary of Interior Abe Fortas plans to resign soon, enter private law practice . . . Favorite crack among Roosevelt holdovers who know their jobs are doomed is, "When are they going to throw you a farewell cocktail party?" . . . Three Cabinet members have new books up their sleeves in various stages of preparation . . . Secretary Morgenthau has one on postwar Germany; Henry Wallace has finished a tome on postwar jobs, and Secretary Ickes has another volume of curmudgeonisms in the works . . . Wallace's new Undersecretary of Commerce, Al Schindler, is getting the reputation of being the talkingest man in the Administration . . . Colleagues accuse Schindler of making a speech every time he opens or closes a window.

The Surplus Property Board is still waiting for its new chairman to replace outgoing Senator Guy Gillette. Meanwhile, the board has worked out several first-rate plans for using government surpluses. Cities, towns, and villages which are short on medical facilities will be given whole hospital units—including surgical equipment and beds—after the war, at Federal expense. They're going to be distributed through the U. S. Public Health Service . . . Schools will get thousands of surplus Army radios as a gift of the government . . . Right now any school anxious to teach aviation can get a surplus B-26 bomber for $300 plus transportation . . . One big surplus-property headache is brass hats' fear of junking anything . . . Warehouses full of surpluses pile up storage charges because no one has the nerve to declare it junk.

Newly designated Secretary of the Treasury Fred Vinson hardly got a chance to hang his hat anywhere before he was moved upstairs . . . Vinson takes over one of the most efficient, best-run agencies in the government—the Treasury. It will grow with Vinson in the driver's seat. First new addition will be the powerful export-import bank to be transferred to the Treasury soon . . . Vinson's predecessor, Henry Morgenthau, did not encourage dollar-a-year men, instead developed his own aids, few of whom are wealthy, all of whom are Civil Service employes . . . Best example is smart, hard-hitting Asst. Secretary Harry White who started at the bottom of the department, rose to a position as the nation's leading expert on international finance.

Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas' younger sister walked into her office the other morning with her fiance, a handsome R.A.F. officer. They wanted to be married right away . . . Congresswoman Douglas called debonair Texas Representative Lyndon Johnson, who arranged with officials in near-by Virginia for a hurry-up marriage ceremony. Signing mail with one hand, telephoning with the other, Mrs. Douglas planned the wedding details, voted on a pending appropriation bill, and then dashed off to the wedding in Arlington, Va.

House Unanimously Passes Bill To Beautify Congress Halls

The House unanimously passed a joint resolution for a $1,446,000 appropriation to modernize and "beautify" the House and Senate chambers yesterday, after a committee hearing developed a demand from Representative Alfred J. Elliott (D., Calif.), for "cushioned seats in the chamber to ease our bottoms."

The House added $485,000 for its chamber to a bill passed by the Senate last June providing $376,000 for its own chamber. The remaining $585,000 is slated for new roofs on the House and Senate wings. The Senate is expected to give a routine passage to the joint resolution, sending it to the White House.

After War Construction

Representative Fritz G. Lanham (D., Tex.), chairman of the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee, stressed that the actual work was not to start until after the end of the war because of the time it will take to approve plans, procure material and workmen. Changes cannot be made until both chambers are out of session. The bill empowers David Lynn, Capitol architect, to enter into contracts and ready plans for Congress' approval, he said.

Quick passage of the bill met with only two tart comments. One from Speaker Sam Rayburn, who said he didn't like the clause that authorizing him to choose five Representatives to serve on a 10-man building committee, with the approval of Lanham. In apologizing for the clause, Lanham said that Rayburn, a fellow Texan, would have no limitations as to his choice.

The other comment came from Representative Adolph Sabath (D., Ill.) who declared, "I would rather be voting for an appropriation to build homes for quarterless Congressmen."

Plans Are Outlined

At a meeting of the committee earlier in the day, the grandiose plans for acoustical treatment so that "members can hear themselves speak, rather than the gabbers in the gallery," diffused lighting, cushioned chairs, perfected air conditioning, and art work on the walls and roof were outlined by Lynn and Francis P. Sullivan, local architect, who has done previous work on the Capitol.

Sullivan asked that the committee later consider hiring "the best painters and sculptors in America so that you can really make the chambers beautiful." Lynn promised the first tentative plans would be ready for study in approximately three months.

Soldier Convinced Advertising Pays

Chicago, July 10 (AP).—Pvt. Clifford Poehling was convinced today that it pays to advertise.

The 34-year-old combat veteran, who spent 11 months in a German prison camp, advertised for a wife in Chicago papers last Saturday. Today he and Mrs. Marie Nassey, 23-year-old blonde divorcee, discussed plans for their wedding next Saturday. He picked her from among 41 applicants.

Earl of Halifax Plans Early Visit to London

The Earl of Halifax, Great Britain's Ambassador, disclosed yesterday that he expects to leave Washington for his annual visit to London in about two weeks.

Halifax, after conferring with Acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew, added that he hoped to get a look at postwar Germany. He said that he would like to have a "look see" at the beaten Reich.

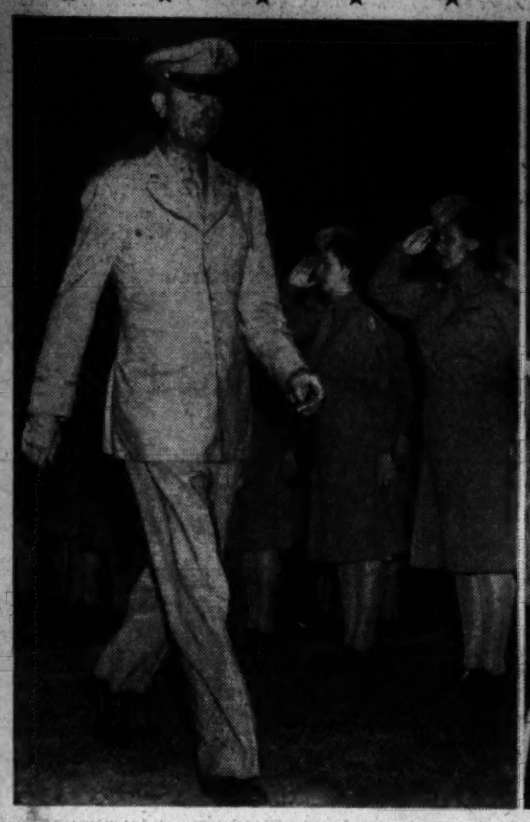
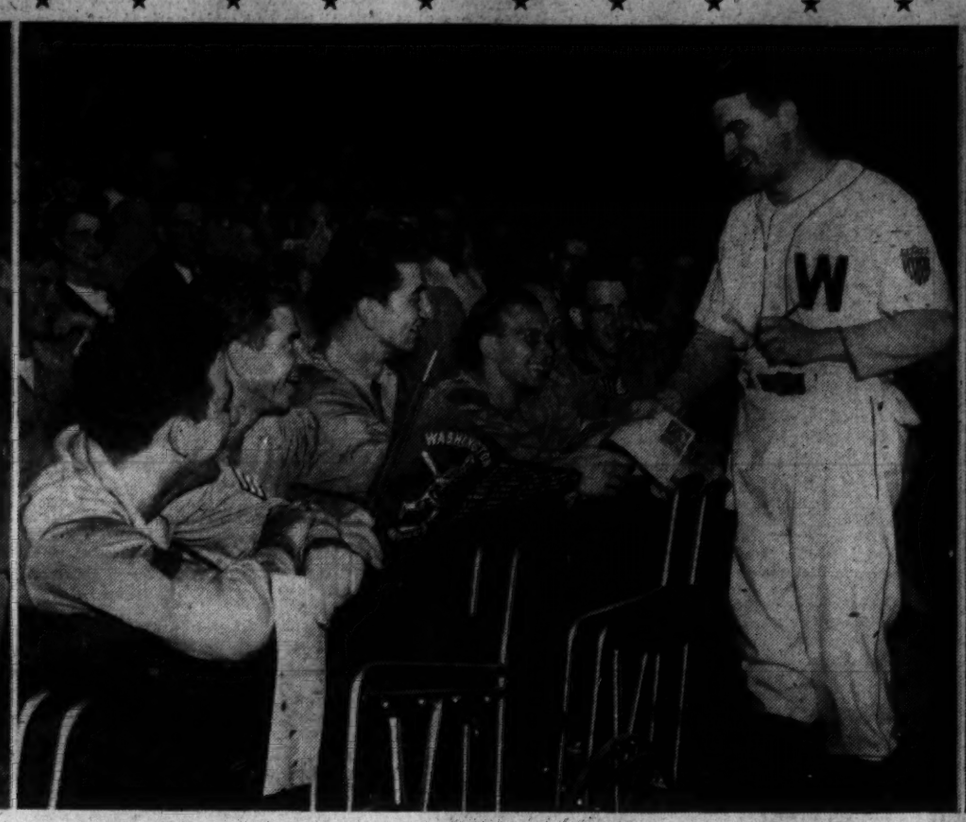
Shepard Stars as Nats Beat Dodgers, 4-3, Before 23,791



A SURPRISE VISITOR—Apparently it's not only General "Ike" who delights in ball games, for a surprise visitor at last night's Nats-Dodger War Relief game at Griffith Stadium showed up in the person of Lieut. General Alexander M. Patch, former commander of the 7th Army. The General tried to stay in the stands like any other fan, but he was hailed out onto the field



WE'RE WITH YOU, BERT—There was a very special delegation—patients down from Walter Reed Hospital—on hand to see Bert Shepard pitch his first game for the Nats against the Dodgers last night. The Nats' pitcher-coach, who lost his leg over Germany, greeted the wounded vets before he took the mound. Left to right, they are: Sergt. Jack Grossman of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Sergt. Harold Dixon, Mt. Rainier, Md.; Pvt. Christy Proferes, Sag Harbor, L. I.; S/Sergt. Harry Lagdson, Philadelphia, Pa.; S/Sergt. Thomas Patterson, Springfield, Mass. (partially obscured); Pvt. Fred Harry, Belington, W. Va., and amputee Lieut. Bert Shepard. The Walter Reed boys kept up a steady chatter while Shepard was in action and cheered his every move

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Washington will be the scene of an important baseball huddle today and tomorrow. The big league club owners will meet at the Mayflower Hotel to decide how big a job they gave Senator Happy Chandler when they elected him commissioner of baseball a couple of months ago.

Povich

There's evidence that the club owners are hedging. They named Chandler as successor to the late Judge Landis, but they don't want to give him the exact job that Landis had. The American and National League owners will hold separate meetings today. Tomorrow, they'll hold a joint session. Not until then will Chandler know what kind of a job he's been elected to.

The rub is that the big league owners don't want Chandler to have the same authority over the funds of the baseball commissioner's office that Landis had. They're trying to clip Chandler's wings before the fledgling commissioner begins to fly too high. Landis soared to such complete authority over the game that the club owners were helpless to curb him.

Chandler assumed, when he took the job, that he was moving into Landis' role with all it implied. He's larnin'. The club owners don't actually want another Landis.

Instead of the simple formality of drawing up a contract like Landis had and presenting it to Chandler, the owners in both leagues are hemming and hawing and calling special meetings and trying to avoid any such iron-clad agreement. The American League had a meeting in Chicago last week. They've scheduled another one today before tomorrow's joint session.

Chandler has an appointment for a $50,000 job as baseball commissioner and a seven-year guarantee, but just what all his duties will be he doesn't quite know yet. Nor what the restrictions will be. For one thing, he may not insist on the authority over the league's funds that Landis had. Or maybe he will. If it comes to a showdown, it will be the first test of Chandler's standing with his employers.

As a financier, Landis proved no genius. The commission funds took losses from investments he made that proved unwise. The losses weren't great, it is claimed, and they were more than restored when Landis slashed his own salary, but the club owners would like to regain control over their own funds.

Originally, Landis didn't have the authority to invest the monies of the commissioner's office. He usurped the authority. His original contract with baseball called for the Advisory Committee, comprised of Landis and the two league presidents, to supervise the commission's funds.

At the end of Landis' first year as commissioner, the American League president, Ban Johnson, sent an auditor to Landis' office to examine the commissioner's books. Landis threw the auditor out of the premises and declared his own auditor was good enough for him. Since then, they never bothered him.

After the expiration of Landis' first contract, he wrote his own contracts and literally forced them upon his employers who were so intimidated by the forcefulness of Landis' personality and his iron rule that they could scarcely object. At any sign of opposition, Landis merely threatened to resign and the club owners were at his feet begging his forgiveness.

What the club owners want to do is to revive the old National Advisory Committee, which Landis ignored. Thusly they hope to be able to out-vote Chandler on any important matter, including disposition of the league funds. It would no longer be one-man or czarist rule in baseball. The game would have a commissioner, but he'd be a figurehead.

Landis spent baseball's monies virtually as he saw fit. In today's sessions, the club owners will attempt to place a limit on the salaries of the employes of the commissioner's office. They never dared to do that in Landis' time, but with Landis no longer around to stare them down, they're getting bold again.

At least one American club wants no part of the business of curbing the commissioner's authority. It won't be represented here. The sessions may impose another task on Chandler's good friend Larry MacPhail, president of the Yankees. MacPhail got him the job as commissioner. MacPhail will doubtless be carrying the ball for him in both the American League and the joint sessions. He may save much of the dignity of the office for Chandler.

Kentucky Futurity Slated for 1946

Lexington, Ky., July 10 (AP).—The Kentucky Futurity, established in 1893 and suspended since 1941, will be revived by the Kentucky Trots Breeders Association in 1946.

Leo C. McNamara of Indianapolis, treasurer of the association, said next year's race will be for foals of 1943 and should be worth $40,000. By 1947, his statement added, the Futurity should have a value of $65,000.

The race, for 3-year-olds, was long a feature of the annual Lexington trots. Its highest money value was in 1894 when Beuzetta, driven by Gus Macey, won a purse of $26,430.

Chandler Watches Game

Ferriss, Holmes Thrill 22,809 As Bosox Thump Braves, 8-1

By Bill King

Boston, July 10 (AP).—All that remained of baseball's canceled all-star game—the feature act, a pitching-batting duel between Boston's Dave (Boo) Ferriss and Tommy Holmes—thrilled a 22,809 crowd on the original Fenway Park stage today, as the Red Sox defeated the Braves 8 to 1, in their war fund intracity exhibition.

Red Socker Ferriss, the majors' top pitcher, gave but two hits for no run while right-handing the first three innings. He made Holmes, baseball's best slugger, fly out to center, but Tommy, who has hit safely in his last 37 National League engagements, managed to collect his daily safety off Randy Heflin in the sixth inning, much to the delight of the spectators, whose contributions are expected to exceed $70,000.

Among the other highlights of the dream game's substitution were the presence of Baseball Commissioner Happy Chandler, a host of Boston baseball immortals, and the hit young Jack Tobin of the Red Sox made against older Brother Jim of the Braves.

When Jack came to bat in the sixth, Boston's famed musical baseball trio, a unit that never misses a game at either park, tooted "Brother Can You Spare a Dime." And Brother Jim obliged with no more and no less, for Jack managed to tap one of his butterfly pitches for a dinky roller through the box, a 10-cent hit in any league.

With Mort Cooper, the Tribesmen's top flinger, ailing, Manager Bob Coleman led off with Al Javery, another sore-armer. As a result, the ball game was decided in the second inning, when the Sockers scored their first two runs on a hit and four passes, the last one coming with the bases loaded.

Cat Metkovich blasted the most potent wallop of the game, a homer into the right field bullpen and the lustiest of the Braves 'seven hits against three Socker pitchers was Ducky Medwick's double off Clem Hausmann in the seventh, which, coupled with Frankie Drews' single, saved the Tribesmen from a shutout.

Cooper's Arm Getting Better

St. Louis, July 10 (AP).—Dr. Robert Hyland said today Pitcher Mort Cooper of the Boston Braves was suffering from a strained right elbow which was responding satisfactorily to treatment.

Hyland said he hoped to have Cooper in shape to rejoin the Braves when they arrive Sunday for a four-game series with the Cardinals.

Phillies Beat Athletics By 7 to 6 Score

Philadelphia, July 10 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies won the city championship tonight, nosing out their American League rivals, the Athletics, 7-6, in a National War Fund Charities game.

A total of 4835 fans contributed approximately $5000 to see the tilt.

It was the third game of the city series between the two cellar-dwelling teams of the American and National Leagues. The A's won, 8-5, on April 15 and the Phils took the second game, 3-1, on June 11.

Vance Dinges' single to center with two out, two men on base and the A's leading 6-5 in the ninth gave the Phillies the victory. The National Leaguers took a 5-0 lead in the first three innings off Don Black but the A's came back to knock Jimmy Foxx, making his major league debut as a pitcher, out of the box in the fifth and manhandle his successor, Dick Oauney, for six runs and a 6-5 lead.

Britain Prepares For Race Boom

London, July 10 (U.P.).—British bookmakers, whose peacetime membership of 20,000 was cut drastically during the war, were hurriedly strengthening their staffs tonight in anticipation of a racing boom when five-day weekly race meetings start August 1.

The larger firms were advertising for clerks and telephone bet takers at a $40 weekly wage, compared with the prewar level of $20. During the war many syndicates went out of business and others cut their staffs to the bone because of the curtailment of racing to one day a week.

The new boom is expected to surpass the upswing in horse-racing interest after the last war.

Briggs to Get Army Discharge

Major W. O. (Spike) Briggs, jr., vice president of the Detroit baseball team, is being released from the Army, he disclosed here yesterday.

Briggs has been in service since 1942 as an armament expert in the air corps and served in England before being reassigned to Washington. He will be on terminal leave until September 18.

Peewee Pitcher Hurls No-Hitter For Rosedale

A no-hit game by Rosedale's 14-year-old pitcher, Eddie Kline, highlighted action in the Boys' Club Peewee League yesterday at Eastern High stadium. Nine Brown Pitchers Blank Cardinals, 3-0

St. Louis, July 10 (AP).—The American League Champion St. Louis Browns paraded nine pitchers to the mound tonight and the nine men proceeded to blank the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals, 8 to 0, on two hits before 24,113 fans at a war fund charity exhibition contest.

Only Red Schoendienst who doubled off Tex Shirley to start the game, and Ray Sanders who singled off Sam Zoldak in the second, were able to hit safely for the Cardinals.

The Browns scored a run in the first when Milt Byrnes homered off Charley Barrett and picked up two more in the fourth off Al Jurisich on a triple by Pete Gray, a single by Mark Christman, Gene Moore's sacrifice and an error by Sanders.

Pete Appleton, who rejoined the Browns two weeks ago after a hitch in the Navy, made his first appearance tonight and held the Cards hitless in the inning he worked.

Jack Kramer and Nelson Potter were the only players on the Browns' roster who did not appear in the contest. The Cards used four pitchers.

It was the fifth time in seven games this year that the Browns have beaten their National League rivals.

Total receipts for charity will not be announced for several days, game officials said tonight.

Five Mat Matches On Tonight's Card

A double windup of two one-fall bouts between four of Turner's best performers tops the program. Hans Kampfer and Angelo Savoldi tangle in a return bout in one of the main contests while Russian Henry Kulkovich will attempt to boost his standing in a match with George Macricostas in the other big event.

Maurice LaChapelle has been matched against John Melas in a 30-minute semi-final. In the two 30-minute prelims, George Bruckman faces Lou Farino in a return bout while Fred Carone meets Eddy Micels.

Man of The Hour

A Couple of Guys Named Alec Came Out to See a Ball Game

By Al Costello
Post Staff Writer

The best laid plan of mice and men oft go awry and last night at Griffith Stadium wasn't an exception to the rul—fortunately.

The lavish hour and a half entertainment cooked up by Lieut. Col. Joe Escude which preceded the game between the Nats and "Dem Bums" from Brooklyn was every inch as advertised but it was the mere presence of a fine soldier which gave the crowd its biggest thrill and the chance to sound off accumulated steam.

Unexpectedly, Gen. Alexander M. Patch, commander of the Seventh Army, a veteran of Guadalcanal and the entire campaign in Europe, came out to see a ball game and, instead, was seen, by popular demand, and given the night's biggest ovation.

Spotted squatting comfortably in a box seat along with Gen. Alexander Vandegrift, Marine Corps Commandant, General Patch was introduced. The applause was deafening. And a few minutes later, when General Vandegrift spoke he mentioned General Patch. Another ovation. When General Vandegrift finished the crowd howled for Patch and howled so long and loud there simply wasn't anything else for Master of Ceremonies Arch McDonald to do but call him out. His words were beautiful to the crowd:

"I last saw General Vandegrift on Guadalcanal before I bumped into him tonight. I have been in front of many crowds before—on orders. But tonight I came out here to see a ball game."

And with that, he walked off the field.

There wasn't a bit of doubt then who was the man of the hour.

Our Post Interlude author, Mr. Ray C. Brown, should have been there to hear the Army Air Forces Band. From military marches to waltzes and from the semiclassics to swing and boogie-woogie, the cats were solid, Jackson. In fact, everybody says it is one of the greatest musical organizations of them all. Everybody can't be wrong.

The Waves Drum and Bugle Corps, the singing of Glen Darwin, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera, and now with the AAF Band, the drilling of the women Marine's drill Platoon, the Spar Band and the Wac guard of honor for Generals Vandergrift and Patch, did ttheir bits punctually and with finesse, but nobody could find out why the Marine drill team was called "half pint." From the press box it looked plenty husky.

"Eva" and "Topsy," otherwise known as the Duncan Sisters, and a young man named Bark Motley, who gave out with gags and played two clarinets while standing on his head, provided the comedy relief. And very good.

The pregame program, from start to finish, was really interesting and worth while.

Parked in a box near the wire screen was the Redskins' coach, Dud DeGroot. He denied he was scouting any of the "acts" for between the halves frolics come this fall, stating he hadn't taken on an extra-curricular duties.

Foco of Boys' Club Nine Hurls No-Hit, No-Run

Merrick scored an impressive 4-0 victory over the Bulls in the Boys Club Western Division Peewee League yesterday as Pitcher Bob Foco pitched a no hit, no run game on the Ellipse. Ed Horidy also twirled a no-hitter, but allowed two runs as May Hardware tripped the Industrial Home School, 19-2. Alexandria rounded out today's schedule with a 10-6 win over Falls Church.

Chisox Solve Woes; Due In Tomorrow

Chicago, July 10 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox will be in Washington Thursday night for the opener of a three-game series with the Senators after all. Manager Jimmy Dykes said tonight that Traveling Secretary Frank McMahon had solved the transportation difficulty which last night threatened to delay the Sox arrival in the Capital City, and that the team would arrive there Thursday morning.

Former D. C. Star Accidentally Shot, Condition Critical

Atlanta, Ga., July 10.—Sergt. Johnny Frye, former Washington (D. C.) sandlot baseball star who later made good in professional ranks, is in critical condition tonight at Lawson General Hospital, after having been accidentally shot through the head during maneuvers.

Doctors said that the bullet wound had paralyzed Frye's left side.

The tall, lanky left-handed hitting infielder-outfielder had a tryout with Washington several years ago, after which he was signed by the Orlando Club of the Florida State League. After a few seasons in the minors, he was brought up by the St. Louis Browns at the tail-end of the 1942 campaign to fill in for George McQuinn at first base.

Daffy Doings On Bases Kill Flock's Hope

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The Nats took the ball game and charity took the gate receipts last night at Griffith Stadium where Dem Bums from Brooklyn took to funny notions about running the bases in the ninth inning.

The upshot was a 4-3 victory for the Nats and a $22,760 contribution to big league baseball's War Relief fund, paid by a crowd of 23,791. Lieut. Bert Shepard, who went four innings, was the winning pitcher.

Well-restrained for eight innings, with no hint of the daffy baseball for which they are famed, the Dodgers suddenly went comic in the ninth at a time when they had the tying runs on base with none out.

Dodgers Suddenly Go Native

Marino Pieretti took a 4-2 lead into that ninth, and then was rapped immediately for a single by Babe Herman and a double by Louis Olmo that put runners on third and second with none out. Then it was that the Dodgers went native.

On Bordagaray's grounder to Shortstop Layne, Herman started for the plate. Then he changed his mind, dashed back toward third. There he found Olmo, who had raced from second. Catcher Evans, taking Layne's throw to the plate, tagged Herman out.

Meanwhile Bordagaray, for no reason at all, rounded first base too far. Evans rifled the ball to Binks at first and Bordagaray was out on a double play. Olmo meanwhile had scored, but it was a useless run when Basinski grounded to Layne for the third out.

The Dodgers, comedy on the bases in the ninth, highlighted the night's show, which had featured a (ninety-minute pre-game program of bands, acts, songs, and speeches.

The loudest applause was reserved for Bert Shepard, the Nats' war hero pitcher who was making his first appearance on a big league mond and pitching off an artificial right leg. For three innings, Shepard held the Dodgers scoreless and allowed only one hit before he gave up two runs in the fourth, on four hits.

Binks Hits Two Triples

George Binks swung the bat that put the Nats out in front, 3-2 in the first four innings. He did it with a pair of long-three baggers. In the first inning, after Myatt singled and Manager Ossie Bluege walked, Binks tripled far into right center to score them both.

Accepting the challenge of Bluege, who offered to play an inning if Leo Durocher would do the same, Durocher, like Bluege, put himself in the line-up at the start. In their lone appearance at the plate, the two managers drew

Nelson Ties Revolta for PGA Medal Honors

Toledo Star Bags Eagle Three in Rally

By Walter Byers

Dayton, Ohio, July 10 (U.P.).—Byron Nelson, of Toledo, Ohio, put on one of his famous back nine finishes today to tie Johnny Revolta, of Evanston, Ill., for medal honors in the Twenty-seventh National PGA Tournament with a 36-hole total of 138, 6 under par.

Revolta, who was golfdom's No. 1 player 10 years ago, finished two hours ahead of Nelson with a 2-under par 70 for his 138 card. He had to sweat it out while Nelson, the game's greatest clutch player, came in with a 3 under par 33 on the back nine for a 68 to go with his 70 of yesterday.

Their brilliant stroking over the Moraine Country Club course gave them low honors in the field of 31 pros who qualified for match play in the most difficult of all big league golf tournaments.

Match play gets under way tomorrow and continues through Sunday with a 36-hole daily grind.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Wright Field, Ohio, sergeant, came in right behind the leading twosome with a 71 for 139 strokes while Denny Shute of Akron, Ohio, and Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Sanford, Me., golfdom's No. 2 money winner behind Nelson, followed with 140s.

Nelson's back nine drive in catching Revolta was a magnificent demonstration of "clutch" playing, climaxed by an eagle three on the 455-yard seventeenth hole made possible only by a curving 30-foot putt.

The sub-par cards were considered all the more remarkable because of the tricky terrain of the course and capricious wind which affected both tee and fairway shots.

The cool, mechanical-playing Ohioan started out today tied for eighth place with a 70. He made the turn on the first nine with a 1 under par 36 and then came blazing in with seven pars, a birdie and an eagle to tie Revolta.

Revolta, the game's No. 1 player a decade ago when he won the PGA and Western Open, as well as being the year's top money winner, shot a 34, 36—70 today to go with his 68 yesterday. That was a great comeback itself. He figured he had the $250 and Alex Smith Trophy which goes to the PGA medalist all alone until Nelson opened up.

Twenty-three players posted 147s or better to qualify while 10 tied with 148s, necessitating a "sudden death" playoff to eliminate two in order to funnel the players into the 31 open places in the finals.

Hines, Shoemaker Lose

In the elimination play, Jimmy Hines of Chicago and Dick Shoemaker of Crafton, Pa., lost out as the eight others moved into the match play.

They were Johnny Gibson of Wilmette, Ill.; Felix Serafin, Pittston, Pa.; Ted Huge, Cleveland; Verl Stinchcomb, Portsmouth, Ohio; Ed Dudley, PGA president from Northfield, N. J.; August Nordone, Syracuse, N. Y.; R. H. Kepler of Columbus, Ohio, and Wayne Timberman, Indianapolis.

Defending Champion Bobb Hamilton, who scored the "upset" of the year when he whipped Nelson in the finals of the 1944 PGA at Spokane, is not required to qualify. Now a private at Fort Lewis, Wash., he shot a practice round of 74 today.

Barron Has 141

Herman Barron of White Plains, N. Y., returning to top-flight tournament golf after more than a year's absence in war work, shot a 73-68 today for 141 strokes to come in behind Shute and McSpaden. Shute, two-time winner of this golfing classic, slipped badly today with a 36-37—73 to go with the sharp 67 she shot yesterday while McSpaden had a 36-34—70.

Following Barron were Staff Sergt. Jim Turnesa, New York, 75, 143; Ky Laffoon, Chicago, 72, 143, and Mike Turnesa, Jim's older brother, 72, 143.

Cruickshank Withdraws

Sammy Byrd, the former baseball star now teaching golf at Detroit, fired 74 for 144 strokes, and Tony Penna, Dayton, Ohio, posted a strong 70 for 145 strokes.

Brewers' Nine Scores, 14-2, Over Cameo

Behind the seven-hit pitching of Jack Barry, the Heurich Brewers jumped into first place in The Post-Industrial League with a 14-2 win over Cameo on the Ellipse yesterday. The Brewers meet Busanda on the same field tomorrow in a game which will have a bearing on the league lead.

Heurich opened its scoring in the first frame with a five-run assault and thereafter continued to pile up runs for its easy victory, collecting 10 hits in all. Frank Brewer collected four safeties, including a double, in five trips to the plate for the winners.

walks. Bluege had the only fielding chance, a catch of a pop fly.

Shepard was befuddling the Dodgers with his left-handed curve ball for three innings, but in the fourth they rapped him for four successive singles—by Herman, Olmo, Bordagaray and Basinski, to tie the score at 2-2.

Leroy Pfund, the Dodgers' starting pitcher, was forced to leave the game suddenly in the second inning. He dislocated his left knee in fielding Joe Zardon's safe bunt, and writhed in pain near the pitcher's box, his loud moans audible throughout the park. He was carried from the field, and later reports were that his knee popped back into place easily.

Against Ernie Rudolph in the fourth, the Nats regained the lead at 3-2. Binks put the run in motion with another of his triples, this time down the right field line. He scored on Layne's single to right.

One Hit off Wolff

Roger Wolff took over the Nats' pitching in the fifth and shut out the Dodgers with one hit before giving way to Marino Pieretti at the start of the eighth.

Meanwhile the Nats picked up another run in the fourth with two out when Wolff, Case and Myatt singled in succession.

Pieretti provided the eighth-inning excitement despite the fact that nothing came of it. The little pitcher doubled to center with two out, stretching the hit with a clever slide. Then he audaciously stole third, but was stranded there.

Pieretti, in the ninth, was obviously fagged from his base running, and the Dodgers quickly put the tying runs on base, and almost as quickly ran themselves out of the ball game.

Garrett vs Conway

Cleveland, July 10 (U.P.).—Two lightweight bouts announced today for the Tommy Bell-Jimmy Doyle card July 19 paired Leo Garrett of Cleveland against Jack Conway of New York and Johnny Virgo of Rochester against Rudy Zadell of Akron.

Army Discharges Ghezzi, Who Plans Tournament Golf

Dayton, Ohio, July 10 (AP).—Vic Ghezzi, winner of the 1941 PGA championship, announced today he had been given a medical discharge by the Army after four years of service.

The tall, bronzed links star said he planned to return to Deal, N. J., after competing in the PGA tourney here, "to rest up and get ready for some serious tournament golf."

He said he did not plan to take a club professional job, but would concentrate on the tournament trail. He fired a 74-72—146 in the 36-hole qualifier here.

"I'll have to spend a little time becoming acclimated to civilian life again," Ghezzi said. "I wake up every morning at 5:30, which is too early for a civilian to get out of bed. I'm going to rest until I break that habit."

Veterans' Guide

Some People Taking Swings At U. S. Job Preference Act

By Maj. Thomas M. Nial

One of America's ways of repaying the men who have fought our wars has been the Veterans' Preference Act, applying to Government jobs. Some people now are taking swings at the act—trying to kind of beat its ears down.

That's serious and veterans ought to know about it because, if the act does any good at all, it does it for veterans. So here's the situation now:

First, the late President Roosevelt said this, in part: "I believe that the Federal Government, functioning in its capacity as an employer, should take the lead in assuring those who are in the armed services that when they return, special consideration will be given to them in their efforts to obtain employment."

The Civil Service Commission has urged preference as desirable "because it is a means of rewarding a veteran" and it prevents him from being penalized in looking for work after months or years of isolation from the civilian world.

Congress took up the cause and passed the Veterans Preference Act in 1944. Veterans' organizations were behind this push to secure veterans' preference privileges. I say "secure" and not "get" because, already, veterans had some preference. But the act wrapped up these preferences into one package.

The preference principle in Federal employment isn't new. The first preference statute, enacted in March, 1865, just after the Civil War, applied to persons honorably discharged because of line of duty disability. Then the Census Act of 1919 gave preference to all honorably discharged servicemen for jobs in Washington, D. C. and this was extended later to include appointments in the executive branch everywhere.

Now we have all statutes, executive orders, and regulations consolidated in the trial size wrapper. And we have objections. One bullet from the rifle of S. H. Ordway, jr., whistles past your ear this way:

"The underlying principle of the merit system required that there shall be equality of opportunity for all citizens to compete for public employment, and that the best qualified shall serve the state. To say that the veteran shall have preference beyond his demonstrable capacity, in competition with other applicants, is to say that the less qualified shall be selected because of gratitude and sacrifice made in military service."

This same critic claims that, with age limitations for all veterans waived, there will be large numbers of disabled and aging World War I veterans appointed for many years to come and, with 12 million new veterans, most Federal registers will be headed by veterans for whom educational and physical requirements are waived, so nonveteran citizens will have small chance.

Next we have the National Committee on Postwar Civil Service Problems—a setup of the National Civil Service League, and a development of the old Civil Service Reform League. The president of Temple University is chairman of this committee of promotion, that retention in positions (where reductions are contemplated) be based on seniority and efficiency, regardless of veteran status, and that veteran preference apply only for a period of five years after the war. These "reforms" could be a start towards more nullifying changes later.

But the U. S. Civil Service Commission itself disagrees. It believes present provisions of the Veterans' Preference Act are O. K. The commission was consulted before the act was passed and it approves of the law.

I'm not arguing. I'm just telling you, in case you're interested.

DSC Given Negro Officer, Hero Of Italian Campaign

Award of the Distinguished Service Cross to a Negro officer who killed 5 Germans and wounded 4 others while singlehandedly knocking out three enemy machine-gun nests and an observation post was announced yesterday by the War Department.

First Lieut. Vernon J. Baker, 25, is the third Negro to receive the DSC in this war. A rifle platoon leader in the Ninety-second Infantry Division, he is a native of Cheyenne, Wyo. His wife, Mrs. Helen S. Baker, lives at Birmingham, Ala.

Baker won the decoration last April 5 near Viareggio, Italy, with a one-man assault against enemy positions which had been holding up the advance of his battalion.

Check Sought On Services' Meat Hoard

By the Associated Press

Representative Ralph Daughton, (D., Va.) said yesterday he would see Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson Thursday afternoon and ask him to survey the Armed Forces' meat and poultry stockpiles to consider the period the Army should store perishable food in advance. Daughton said if the Army would stop storing meat and poultry and start eating on its stockpile for six months, there would be no more black market in poultry.

"I don't know how many millions of pounds of poultry alone—and I mean millions of pounds—the Army has in cold storage plants," he said. "The poultry people estimate they have at least a year's supply."

Daughton said he knew that at least 100,000 pounds of stored poultry had spoiled because of inadequate facilities and lack of experienced personnel. He cited an instance at Newport News, where, he said, a large quantity of poultry, packed in nearly airtight boxes, rotted before cold air could get to it.

He declared that Tom Stitts, chief of the dairy and poultry branch of the Department of Agriculture, told him that the black market in the Mid-Atlantic marketing area could not be stopped, because of a lack of personnel. The department now has 20 agents in the area.

Last December the War Food Administration ordered all processed poultry produced in the Delmarva Peninsula, five counties of the Shenandoah Valley and four counties of West Virginia be set aside for the Army. The order was later extended to other sections of the South.

Trade publications figures show that last Friday cold storage poultry stocks in four leading markets—New York, Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia—aggregated 38,864,121 pounds, Daughton said, adding that in New York alone, Army stocks on that day totaled nearly two pounds for every man in the armed forces.

WPB Puts Limit On Feed-Bag Use Of Print Material

By the Associated Press

The War Production Board had good news yesterday for farm women who convert fancy seed bags into dresses, dish towels and other household articles.

Instead of prohibiting the use of dress print material in feed bags, as had been considered, the agency established what it called "practical limits."

The order limits a bag manufacturer's quarterly use of dress prints either to the amount he used in the corresponding quarter of 1944, or 25 per cent of the amount he used in the entire year 1944.

WPB said the ceiling on the use of dress material was necessary because the shortage of textile bags makes it necessary to reuse them to the greatest possible extent. And a feed bag made into a dress no longer is usable as a feed bag.

Recordings of Tokyo Attacks Given Archives

Recordings of official Army Air Forces radio feature, "The Fighting AAF," aired Sunday nights at 8:30 were presented to the National Archives yesterday as a part of the permanent file of historical data on the war.

The recordings include descriptions recorded during actual bomber and fighter plane missions over Tokyo. For the duration the accumulated recordings are to be delivered to the Archives every three months.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

THE "VACATION TIME REVUE" will open at Del Rio on Friday. It's another show on the sumptuous side. Johnny Howard as emcee-comedian, will present ballet dancer Rae MacGregor, singer Michael Harmon magician Kalma and a flock of amazingly tall, bedazzlingly gowned Versailles beauties . . . This means you've only two days more to see Sharon DeVries and giggle yo'selves into spasms. Sharon has been in Washington once before. In her prestar days she appeareed at the Earle Theater as a solemn little dancer without a naughty remark in her system.

Henry Youngman
At the Statler

All by himself sat the naval officer at Treasure Island. Only Maestro Milton Davis noticed that his face had a news reel familiarity. He was Capt. George S. Seitz, commanding officer of the Bunker Hill, plane carrier wrecked in battle in the Pacific.

THE DRAGON, new Chinese-American spot at 1329 G st. nw., will make its salaam to the customers tonight. It's the newest nitery baby of Sam Wong, owner of the China Clipper. Old timers will recall the location as that of Cornwell's, once grocers for the Social Register. More recently it has been a cafeteria-confectionery. The place has been handsomely decorated for its new Oriental incarnation.

OFF TO CALIFORN-I-AY will be Topsy and Eva Duncan when they flutter out of Troika on July 18. They'll rest for a few weeks (Louis B. Mayer wants to see them, too), then start on a theater tour of the West Coast and Midwest, including Chicago . . . Topsy's doing a cataclysmic fiddle duet with Rutt Horn of Al Yurdin's orchestra. . . . Cardini will head the new show opening at Troika on July 19.

"Boxing cats" head the new China Clipper show. These feline Dempseys are trained by Eddie Faye. Also at the Clipper are the dancing Cartwrights, acrobatette Thelma Badell.

MAGNIFIQUE! is the term for Helaine Arthur at Trade Winds. She's 6 feet tall, built like a B-29, swathed at strategic points in pale blue velvet, bats eyelashes that curl up to her forehead. She sings in the magnificant manner also, especially when she takes off in "Strange Music." Our other pet at T. W. is Sir Frederick Weiner, a sad-eyed, bad-minded, middle-aged, bald-topped little son of perdition who rassles with a 'cello while Jack White and orchestra look on in unaffected horror and ringsiders yelp in astounded amusement. We suspect that Sir Frederick is by way of being an artist—and a good one.

EAR TICKLERS. Mayfair's Joe Masters is making his piano tingle with a drastic bit of rhythm called "Fifi's Rhapsody" . . . Another authentic piano star is the Windsor Room's Jack Neal. He'll play classics, oldies—anything if you ask him nicely . . . Entertainment lurks in the Old New Orleans when Sacha Lucas plays "Caprice Viennois" . . . Merry-Land's Rollickers are jet-propelled when they go into "In the Mood" . . . "Laura" is the current favorite of Nat Lipton of the King Cole Room. He extracts its last driblet of melody . . . Club 1203 Pennsylvania Avenue rocks like one person when Margie (Maggie) McGloin shouts "Cal'donia" . . . Michel's customers sit in bewitched silence when Michel violins the ever-soothing "Old Refrain" . . . Bill Thompson's Trio in the Neptune Room knows all of the Victor Herbert tunes. And you can't go wrong with Herbert . . . Clinton Hobbes' band over at Club Kavakos are giving out bazooka rhythm. It is pow'ful!

Nicest man in town, we think, is Chef William Spinner who presides over a miniature kitchen in the corner of the Metronome Room. He produces only two or three different dishes a night, perhaps a curry, chicken in wine and a cold plate. But they are of an unbelievable, prewar perfection

GONE WITH THE WIND will be the Balalaika Russians when the spot closes next Saturday. Maestro Grisha Titoff is going to California, if he has to walk. Head Waiter George plans a summer's fishing at Montauk Point, L. I. The motto of Nelly, the beautiful check girl, is "Florida or bust" . . . Balalaika will reopen on August 30.

60 Liberty Ships Monthly Pledged To Supply France

New York, July 10 (AP).—Andre Armangaud, chief of the French Ministry of Industrial Production, said today 60 Liberty ships a month had been obtained to carry wheat, steel, petroleum product and industrial equipment to France.

He said French export products would be scarce because the country is at not more than 25 per cent of normal production.

Armangaud and four members of the commission left today for home.

Julius Simon, president of the Palestine Economic Corp., returning to Palestine by air, said he had been told that five million European Jews had been killed and that 1,500,000 surviving were anxious to leave Europe.

"As a practical proposition there is no other country but Palestine to which they can go," Simon said.

Doughton Sponsors Jobless Benefits Bill

The Federal Diary is being conducted by Donald Montgomery during Jerry Klutz's vacation.

By Donald Montgomery

Federal employes would be eligible for unemployment benefits up to two-thirds of their present salaries, but not to exceed $25 a week, under a bill sponsored in the House by Representative Robert Doughton, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. At present all Government employes are excluded from the benefits of unemployment compensation. The new bill would compensate discharged Federal workers for a maximum of 26 weeks in any one calendar year. The bill, which probably will not be considered by the Ways and Means Committee until the House reconvenes in September, has the backing of the White House and employe unions.

DIARY NOTES: Roger Tubby has been promoted to Director of Information and Assistant to the Administrator at FEA. He has been acting director since last December. Merritt Penticoff is the new Special Assistant to the Chairman of War Production Board and deputy director of the Textile Bureau. At the Office of Defense Transportation Robert L. Glenn has been promoted to director of the Division of Transport Personnel. He has been acting director since April 15. Harold Connett will resign soon as assistant director of the bureau of leather at WPB. Lawrence Sheppard will fill his job. Capt. Werner Gabler will leave for Paris soon to take over surplus property buying work for UNRRA.

Defense Plants Corporation, Rubber Reserve Corporation, Metals Reserve Corporation and Defense Supplies Corporation lost their ocrporate titles when they were absorbed in Reconstruction Finance Corporation. They are now called "offices." The former presidents of the corporations are now executive directors and the vice presidents are assistant directors. Samuel Sabin, formerly president of Defense Supplies Corporation, has been replaced as executive director of the Office of Defense Supplies by Stuart Barnes.

Federal Public Housing employes have prepared a statement of appreciation to go to the congressmen who helped them get a pay raise. The statement will be signed by all employes in the central office here, and will then be sent to all regional offices. The scroll, expected to contain 3400 names, will then be duplicated at employe expense and a copy sent to each congressman who worked for the passage of the pay bill.

Donald Montgomery, consumers counsel at the Department of Agriculture until December, 1942, and now consumers counsel at the United Automobile Workers—CIO, called yesterday and said that he was being accused of writing the Federal Diary during Jerry Klutz's vacation. The similiarity of names has caused confusion before, so I hasten to add that this is different Donald Montgomery.

When it became apparent that executive order employes were not to be included in the Jackson-Downey pay bill, and it looked as if the heads of their agencies were not going to give them a raise either, an FHA employe wrote this poem:

THE PENDING RAISE

There are strange things done
In the general run
By the men on Capitol Hill
They'll pass the pay
In a darn queer way
If they pass this pending bill.

Now the FHA
And the OPA
And RFC and the rest
Will be left out cold
When dispensing gold
To the favored few on their list.

It is hard to see
How an agency
That comes underneath "The Act"
Rates a raise in pay
While the FHA
And the rest must be held back.

They say our boss
Can raise the cost
To give us a similar raise
If they have the funds,
Or the higher ones
On the Hill would give their yeas.

With me and the rest
We're all hard-pressed
Our bills are the same as those Of the favored few
Though it seems they're due
More lucre to meet their woes.

Our personnel
All work like hell
What reward shall be our lot:
Shall we sweat and toil
While our souls recoil
From the jeers of those on top?

If this bill is passed
Leaving us out-cast
I now to the group propose
Let's look to the Hill
Who begot this Bill
With five fingers to our nose.

Coast Guard Band Plays At Forest Glen

Veterans of nine major amphibious operations, members of the Sealanders, a United States Coast Guard Band, made their initial Washington appearance last night at Forest Glen Army Hospital in Silver Spring, Md.

Under the direction of Chief Yeoman Joseph Baldwin of 3801 Alton pl. nw., the 18-piece band entertained wounded veterans convalescing at the hospital, a branch of Walter Reed General Hospital in Washington.

20 Millionth Visitor

AT WASHINGTON MONUMENT—Pfc. Peter Taormina, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a patient at Walter Reed Hospital, is congratulated by Assistant Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman on being the twenty-millionth visitor to the Washington Monument. The veteran of battles in Belgium and France was accompanied by Army nurse Lieut. Eleanor Dowd, of Quincy, Ill., who recently returned from duty at Saipan. Chapman gave the couple a personally conducted tour of the shrine

Dinner Minus Dessert Cost Restaurant $25

News for restaurant patrons: If you don't get dessert with your special, like it says on the menu, you can sue under OPA regulations, with a good chance of collecting.

The Small Claims Court yesterday awarded $25 to Norman P. Mathias, 1417 N st. nw., one of four complainants who said the China Inn, 629 H st. nw., ran out of dessert last November 29, but still charged them full price for their $7.50 "family dinner."

A total of six in the party originally filed suit charging violation of price codes and asking $50 apiece. Two dropped out during lengthy litigation.

A jury decreed that only Mathias, who paid the check, should receive an award, then cut it to $25, on the grounds that the price violation was not "wilful."

Those remaining in the case, beside Mathias, include his wife and Gloria and Louis Schwartz, 3001 Manning st., Alexandria, Va.

Widow Receives Reichelderfer's $169,405 Estate

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, prominent physician and former District commissioner, who died here June 19 at the age of 71, left an estate valued at $169,405 to his widow, Mrs. Mary M. Reichelderfer, according to a petition filed yesterday in District Court asking probate of his will.

The widow lives at 1661 Crescent pl. nw. The petition said the estate consisted of $167,960 in securities and the balance in miscellaneous assets. Also surviving the physician is a brother, Carl, of Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Reichelderfer was a commissioner from 1930 to 1938.

Man Sentenced In Theft Despite Other's Confession

Precinct Detective Frank Reinhardt, temporarily sidetracked from finding the real thief of a $300 ring when a suspect confessed falsely to the crime, finally tracked down the culprit, who was sentenced yesterday to 40 days in jail on a charge of larceny.

The ring was stolen Saturday from Mrs. Nonnie Adams, 1157 Morse st. ne., who missed it shortly after four Negroes had stored coal in her basement. Only one of the men was seen to enter the basemen, Reinhardt said, and he was so frightened when taken to the Ninth Precinct station for questioning, that he stated he had stolen the ring although he couldn't produce it.

Further questioning over the weekend by Reinhardt produced another witness who said he had seen Jerome Shell, Negro, 34, of 26 S st. nw. also enter the basement. Shell was arrested, the innocent man released, and the ring returned to Mrs. Adams.

Gen. Bresnahan To Head Meade Replacement Unit

Brigadier Gen. Thomas F. Bresnahan, formerly commanding general of the Infantry Replacement Training Center at Camp Hood, Tex., has been named commanding general of Army Ground Forces Replacement Depot No. 1 at Fort Meade, it was announced yesterday. In 1942 he was in command of the Army War College here.

General Bresnahan, who succeeds Major Gen. Francis B. Mallon, is a native of Fitchburg, Mass. During the first World War he served overseas with the Thirty-eighth Infantry of the Third Division and was wounded in the Argonne and in the Second Battle of the Marne.

He holds the Distinguished Service Cross and the Purple Heart with one Oak Leaf Cluster. He was also decorated by the French government with the Croix de Guerre with Palm and Legion of Honor.

Workers Paid Under $1800 Are Upgraded

About 100 District employes who earn less than $1800 a year and work no more than 40 hours a week will receive a grade raise above the $300 differential raise allowed them under current legislation, it was determined yesterday.

Federal officials made the decision yesterday afternoon, according to A. R. Pilkerton, District auditor.

During a meeting of District officials and personnel workers earlier in the day, it was stated that a dispute existed between Civil Service and General Accounting Office officials as to how these workers should be paid. If a $1440 employe received $1740, his salary plus $300, this would in effect establish a new civil service grade. Other alternatives would be to pay him $1704, the grade just lower than $1740, or $1770, the grade above. According to Pilkerton, he will get $1770.

Senate Unit Sets Teacher Pay Bill Hearings Today

The Senate District Committee will hear local officials testify today on the House-passed pay raise bill for District school teachers.

Chairman Theodore G. Bilbo (D., Miss.) yesterday said hearings on the measure would probably be brief in view of the extended consideration given to it in the companion House Committee. He said he wanted to get the bill favorably reported to the Senate before any recess which may be contemplated.

Among those called as witnesses are: Commissioner John Russell Young; Robert L. Haycock, Superintendent of Schools; Dr. Carroll R. Reed, first assistant superintendent; Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, and Assistant Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West.

Bilbo emphasized that the committee will also be glad to hear any opposition witnesses who appear.

Woman Files Suit On Policy Applied For by Husband

Mrs. Alice M. Farkas, 1891 Ingleside ter. nw., filed a damage suit yesterday against the Life Insurance Co. of Virginia, claiming that though her husband applied for a $5000 policy three months before his death, the firm refuses to meet the claim on grounds it had not actually delivered a formal policy to him.

She filed the suit in District Court as beneficiary, and said her husband, Leslie Farkas, had paid the first annual premium on the policy, which he applied for September 27, 1944. He died December 13.

The suit contained two counts, the first asking for the payment of the $5000 insurance, and in the alternative, payment of $5000 damages for the company's asserted failure to act on the application "within a reasonable time," and to deliver the policy, said the suit. The claim was filed by Alvin L. Newmyer and Joseph A. Kaufmann.

Dr. Manoel Cardozo, assistant professor of history and romance languages at Catholic University, will speak on "The Attack on Tradition in Brazil" in the McMahon auditorium on the campus tonight.

Takoma Park Polio Patient Improving

A 21year-old theological student at Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, Md., was admitted on May 11 to a Takoma Park hospital for treatment of infantile paralysis, it was revealed last night, while District health and hospital authorities disputed conflicting records of the cases reported this year.

The student has shown slow but steady improvement, officials at Washington Sanitarium and Hospital said. He has been in an "iron lung" respirator, with only brief intervals for endurance tests outside the apparatus each week, they said.

No new cases of polio or of Rocky Mountain spotted fever were reported in the District area yesterday, but Health Department officials and hospital men disagreed on the number of cases of polio already reported. The discrepancy in records brought a "brusque note" from Health Officer George C. Ruhland to hospital physicians.

Heart of the dispute was the Health Department's figure of eight polio cases for the District while newspaper accounts, compiled from health reports and a check of local hospitals, showed ten polio cases in the District.

Dr. Ruhland's note upbraided local hospital officials for their failure to comply with the District law providing for a report on all patients in District hospitals within 24 hours of their admission.

Meanwhile, it was understood health officias are studying the local situation on infantile paralysis, and that a report on the status of the diseases might be issued today.

Rumors that prostigmine, described as a new "wonder drug," might be introduced in District hospitals as a curative for poliomyelitis were discounted yesterday by Dr. Richard Todd, medical director at Childrens Hospital.

In Use Year Experimentally

Dr. Todd explained that prostigmine has been in use at Childrens for about a year, in an experimental stage. He declared, however, that the drug, while not a curative, does relieve persistent muscular spasms. The drug has been used in about 25 per cent of polio cases treated at Childrens during the year, Dr. Todd said.

Washington Sanitarium and Hospital officials said the theological student had been given regular muscle reeducation treatment of one arm and one leg in the past month. He was removed from the device that "breathes for him" for 30 minutes last Monday, in contrast to the 15-minute "endurance test" of a week ago Monday.

This patient also is being given the Kenny method hot compress treatment every 15 minutes, hospital attaches reported.

A check of health officials in nearby Maryland and Virginia revealed no new cases either of poliomyelitis or spotted fever yesterday. So far, one death from polio has been recorded, that of an 11-year-old Arlington girl, with two spotted fever victims, one in Alexandria, Va., and the other in Lakeland, Md.

Strike Threat Seen Holding Hospital Fate

Existence of the Central Dispensary and Emergency Hospital is at stake in the threatened strike of Building Service Employes International Union (AFL), George A. Garrett, president of the hospital board, declared yesterday.

Union employes, said to number 90 per cent of the 150 employes, withheld an active strike pending certification of the case to the War Labor Board.

Garrett, explaining that the hospital is operated with funds obtained from solicitation and endowments, said union demands "would make the cost of operation $10,000 per month more than total revenue."

Functioning of the hospital "faces a prospect of breaking down," he said.

"If the union insists on its demands and is successful in obtaining them, the directors would like public advice and assistance in answer to these questions: Shall the Emergency Hospital close tis doors? Shall it continue to function and, if so, how?"

Samuel Levine, attorney for the union, said he had no immediate comment to make on the strike situation.

Father and Son Meet In Pentagon

FROM OPPOSITE ENDS OF THE WORLD—Col. R. Ernest Dupuy and his son, Lieut. Col. Trevor N. Dupuy, of 2719 Dumbarton ave. nw., follow on a map the course of the younger Dupuy's tour of duty in Burma shortly after they met unexpectedly in the corridors of the Pentagon Building yesterday. Colonel Dupuy, former chief of the War Department's press division, had just reached the Pentagon upon his arrival from SHAEF in Paris when he ran into his son, just back from the Pacific. It was their first meeting in two years

50 More Patent Office Aides To Return Here

Around 50 more of the 900 Patent Office employes in Richmond are expected to move back home to the District "within the next 10 days" and take up emptied space in their old offices in the east wing of the Commerce Building.

The new group, members of the design, manuscript and classification divisions, will join the nucleus of 20 employes of the Interference and Docket Division who were moved here last January, C. C. Henry, Assistant Commissioner of Patents disclosed yesterday.

Gradually, as rpace becomes available, the balance of the staff who so desire will be returned, Henry said, after almost three years in the Virginia city.

Henry scouted reports from Richmond that many key employes of the office who had settled there would refuse to return. Many messengers and clerical help hired in Richmond would no doubt prefer to stay there rather than move their homes, he said, but added:

"I don't know of a single member of our professional staff who doesn't want to return to Washington."

Illegal Arrest Brings Dismissal Of Gaming Charge

Charges against two men of setting up a gaming table were dismissed yesterday by U. S. Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on the grounds of illegal arrest.

The defendants were Michael C. Spione, 36, 1502 Trinidad ave. ne., and David Skolnick, 32, 1914 D st. ne., seized during a raid by the police antigambling squad on a private home in the 4800 block of South Dakota ave. ne.

Their attorney, Charles E. Ford, asked the dismissal on the claim that police did not have a search warrant when they entered the private property. Police said the basement of the home contained extensive equipment for "numbers" writing.

Police Chief Reported As 'Resting Quietly'

The condition of Col. Edward J. Kelly, chief of police, who was stricken with a severe attack of indigestion a week-and-a-half ago, is unchanged, Mrs. Kelly told The Post yesterday.

Colonel Kelly was ordered to remain in bed for an indefinite period of time following the attack. No date has been set yet for his return to duty. Mrs. Kelly said yesterday that he was resting quietly on doctor's orders and was quite comfortable.

Ice-Wagon Horse Turns On The Heat

Prince, a hard-working horse connected with the ice business, took off on a blitzkrieg when a group of children in the 1300 block of Sixth st. sw. pelted him with stones yesterday, and crashed into two parked cars after scattering ice for two blocks.

Theodore Boone, Negro, 7, of 804 Dixon ct. sw., was treated at the Washington Sanitarium Mission Hospital for minor injuries to the left leg after he was thrown from his father's ice wagon when Prince bolted.

Police said the child's father, John Boone, tied the horse to a 50-pound weight while he entered a store. The horse broke loose, nearly striking a passerby with the weight, and ran down to Sixth and K sts. sw., where it crashed into two parked cars, smashing a window in one owned by John B. Bennett, 919 Sixth st. sw.

The child was thrown off en route as the father, running behind the wagon, dodged cakes of ice falling from it. The horse surrendered meekly and was returned to his stable.

Rain Drenches Scores But It Isn't Official

A freak shower late yesterday drenched scores of pedestrians but insofar as the Weather Bureau was concerned it just didn't count.

The weatherman at National Airport said no rain fell where precipitation is measured there although he said he could see rain at Bolling Field, Alexandria and Washington. The freak shower started at about 5:30 p. m. and lasted for 15 minutes in the midtown and Northwest areas.

During the shower a bolt of lightning shattered a 75-foot fir tree on the east side of the National Museum of Natural History Building. Guard William D. Harris, 4240 39th st. nw., making his rounds of the mineral section, said he was lifted off his feet by the bolt.

The weather claimed another victim yesterday when Robert Coates, 48, Negro, 106 F st. sw., was prostrated in the 700 block Burns st. se. He was treated at Casualty Hospital. Yesterday's high was 88 degrees at 4:25 p. m. Today's forecast is sunny, less humid with the highest temperature about 80.

Andrew C. Dunn, 54, of 8409 Greenwood ave., Takoma Park, Md., an employe of the New Zealand Supply Mission, died a few minutes after collapsing in his office yesterday, according to police reports.

Bill to Curb Inflammable Fabrics Backed

District Commissioners yesterday announced their approval of a bill to prohibit circulation in interstate commerce of inflammable materials or fabrics containing explosive substances.

Stating their position in a letter to Representative Clarence F. Lea (D., Calif.), chairman of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, the Commissioners said, "In view of the tragic incidents which have resulted in the District of Columbia from the sale of highly inflammable cowboy suits for children, the Commissioners indorse this legislation in principle, and await with interest further action by your committee."

The Commissioners referred to the fatal burning of four Washington children who were wearing inflammable cowboy suits. They acted on recommendation of Fire Marshal R. A. Warfield.

Refusal to Admit Ex-Marine Upheld At Walter Reed

Official investigation of an incident where a former marine, suffering from a relapse of combat fatigue, was not admitted to Walter Reed Hospital has disclosed "no evidence of neglect of duty," authorities at the hospital announced in a statement made public yesterday.

The former Marine, Wallace Reid, 22, collapsed during the July Fourth fireworks display, was examined at Walter Reed and sent to Mount Alto Hospital. He returned to classes at American University the following day.

The investigation likewise revealed "no inadequacy of present policy," the statement said. Maj. Gen. Shelley U. Marietta, commanding general of the Army Medical Center, said a review of written statements from all principal parties "indicated that the action taken was in accordance with a Government policy set to provide the best service to the greatest number and resulted in no way to the detriment of this particular individual."

Police Seeking Cause of Fire In Lumber Mill

Police and fire officials were investigating today to determine the cause of a five-alarm fire which swept through the Langdon Mill & Lumber Co. building at 2150 Bryant st. ne. yesterday, destroying the half-empty structure.

Firemen said flames broke out in the center of the building, now owned by the Hechinger Co., shortly after 2 a. m. It was first spotted by Police Pvts. C. H. Gould and V. H. Sponaugh from their scout car a half-mile away. They turned in the alarm by radio and sped to the scene, sounding their siren to warn nearby residents. By the time they reached the structure, the fire was already out of control.

Persons living near the doomed building were asked to leave their dwellings. Firemen feared that flying brands might ignite frame houses.

Teacher Accuses School Board Of Discrimination

Charges by Anthony P. Campanella, Spanish teacher of 1709 Lanier pl. nw., that he has been discriminated against by the Board of Education are being studied, Representative Jennings Randolph (D., W. Va.), chairman of the House District Committee, said yesterday.

In his letter to the committee asking for a hearing, Campanella said he was refused a leave of absence from his permanent appointment when he went overseas as an aide for the State Department. Although he received a temporary appointment upon his return, which has since expired, Campanella said his former permanent position was denied him.

One person was killed and six others injured, one of them critically, in traffic accidents here yesterday.

Mrs. Lillie Ramey, 40, 202 L st. sw., was fatally injured about 5:30 p. m. when struck by a bus at 16th and Allison sts. nw.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at Emergency hospital and was taken to the District Morgue.

Lieut. W. J. Liverman, head of the Accident Investigation Unit, said the woman apparently was preparing to board the bus, which skidded slightly as it came to a stop and slid into the curb, knocking over a steel bus stop sign. Lieutenant Liverman said either the side of the bus or the post struck the woman.

Driver of the bus, Donald K. Linthicum, 23, of 936 Madison st. nw., is automatically held for a coroner's inquest. Lieutenant Liverman said the bus driver had been operating street cars three years but had switched to bus service only nine days ago.

Four persons were hurt in a collision at 12th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., between an automobile operated by Seaman 2/c William Campbell, jr., 18, of 4800 O st. se., and one driven by Walter Gardner, Negro, 44, of 1227 Harvard st. nw.

Mrs. Nettie Mann, 71, of 824 22d st. nw., received scalp lacerations and a possible dislocated right shoulder yesterday when she was struck by a hit-and-run bicyclist at 21st and I sts. nw. She was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown

Dissonance, that bete noir of conservative music lovers, reared its formidable head for a few moments last evening when Richard Bales addressed the National Orchestra Forum in Phillips Memorial Gallery, but was proved in the ensuing discussion to be less fearsome a creature than is generally supposed, and one capable of being tamed into useful service. One of the primary purposes of these forums, which are so competently and tactfully managed by Betsy Winter, is the discussion of moot questions arising from a consideration of the works to be played at the orchestra's concerts, and those who attend the evening sessions seldom go away unrewarded.

Apropos of Handel's "Fireworks Musick," Bales remarked that an important distinction between those two contemporary geniuses, Handel and Bach, was that the latter wrote for a relatively limited public, while the former addressed the heterogeneous mass with a more instinctive mastery of emotional appeal. That would make Handel one of the pioneers in the democratization of music, a movement that was powerfully forwarded by Beethoven, who was large instrumental in transforming music from an aristocratic to a popular art.

It was in reference to the relation between the composer and the public that Bales mentioned dissonance as a possible barrier that might rise, if the contemporary trend continues unchecked. He pointed out that passing dissonances abound in the music of the older composers and that we are accustomed to hearing them without displeasure because they were always resolved into consonance. It is only when modern composers write in predominant dissonance, or dissonant counterpoint, that they run the danger of not being understood because they are using an idiom that they alone understand.

The guest artist at the forum was Dorothy Averell, who was heard in recital at the National Gallery of Art on Sunday night and kindly remained in Washington in order to play a "Poem" for violin and piano written in 1937 by Bales. This imaginative and expressive piece has in it a core of the true romanticism that never grows old-fashioned and a vesture of the best modern harmonic weaving.

Dispute Over 25c Ends In Serious Gunshot Wound

A lunchroom argument over 25 cents ended yesterday with John Cooper, Negro, 1824 S st. nw., in Casualty Hospital with a serious gunshot wound in his chest, and George D. Economis, 51, proprietor of the New Coney Island Lunch Room, 1221 7th st. nw., free on $1000 bond after being charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Police said that Cooper ordered a 15-cent bowl of bean soup in the lunchroom yesterday, and that he protested that he had given the waitress a 50-cent piece after he received 10 cents in change. During the argument, police said, Cooper attempted to throw the soup at Economis, who shot the customer with a .25 caliber pistol.

Town Talk

By Eva Hinton

"THE kind of man that everyone wants a word with because every word with him is interesting," was the description someone gave of handsome, white-haired Prof. Bruce Hopper of Harvard when he was guest of honor at Mrs. Demarest Lloyd's cocktail party the other afternoon.

Professor Hopper is in Washington for a few days before returning to Europe and his job as historian of the United States Air Forces in the European Theater of Operations. Mrs. Hopper—pretty, dark-haired Effie—remained in Paris, where she runs a huge service club in the Grande Hotel.

"You see," explained Professor Hopper, "if I'd joined the Army I couldn't have had Effie over there with me. As it is I work for and with the Army and have her company too."

HE pulled a watch-fob out of his pocket and showed me an inch-long silver buffalo. "The Society of Buffaloes," he said. "I started it but so far it's got only three members."

"What's it FOR?" I asked.

"It's for men who ALWAYS let women have their own way!"

Right then I began to see why there are only three of them, but I insisted, "What's that got to do with buffaloes?"

"Out in Montana, where I come from, the bull buffaloes paw away the snow so the cows can graze. They are the most uxorious animals alive, and I emulate them." Note: Uxorious means "foolishly or excessively fond of or submissive to a wife." (I quote Mr. Webster.)

I guess Mrs. Hopper must miss such a paragon a lot and will be glad when he gets back to Paris. Meantime, a lot of his friends here were glad to see him in Washington.

Among those dropping by Mrs. Lloyd's to welcome Professor Hopper were Mme. Wei, wife of the Chinese Ambassador; Mme. Angelin, wife of the Swedish Naval Attache; Col. and Mrs. Melvin Hall; the Brazilian Ambassador, Carlos Martins; Gen. and Mrs. Robert Walsh and Col. Pierrepont Morgan Hamilton. Also Mme. Andre Geraud, Mrs. Hamilton Bryan, Maj. Gen. Pete Quesada, and Mme. Witold Wankowicz with her pretty daughter, Yola.

AT the very agreeable garden cocktail party given the other afternoon by the British Air Commission's director, H. O. R. Hindley, I settled once and for all the question, "Who invented them thar bob-tailed battle jackets as worn by the United States Army?"

I went right over to Gen. Ira Eaker and said, "Is it true what I hear, that YOU invented them?"

General Eaker said "yes," that he had one made for himself in England and when General Eisenhower arrived to command the ETO General Eaker had another made for General "Ike." The latter put the stamp of approval on it and so——.

Miss Virginia L. Carpenter, maid of honor, wore an aquamarine dress with a picture hat of white horsehair braid and carried pink flowers. Miss Elizabeth Bingham, Miss Elizabeth Tracy, Mrs. Marion Abbott and Mrs. Charles Thompson were bridesmaids, and the bride's two cousins, Miss Jean Worthington Jolivette and Miss Thelma Jean Jolivette were junior bridesmaids. Salad-Packed Cold Cut Cups Bolster Menu

By Martha Ellyn

Did you know that a cold cut can be turned into a hot cut with splendid results? This type of meat has more to recommend it than its goodness. Cold cuts make a few points go far, for one pound will serve four to five persons generously instead of two to three persons as usually figured for most fresh meats. They are also easy to prepare. Any of the cold cuts can be sliced and sauted quickly, just enough to heat them thoroughly and brown the surface.

Liver sausage is delicious when browned in drippings with sliced onions. Bologna, when heated in a frying pan until the edges curl to form a cup, teams well with hot potato salad or hot slaw. Using these two cold cuts to make piping hot entrees, let's plan some dinner menus:

Dinner Menu

Bologna Cups with Potato Salad
Green Peas Harvard Beets
Muffins Honey
Fresh Fruit Cup Jam Squares
Iced Beverage

The recipes for preparing the bologna cups and hot potato salad follow:

BOLOGNA CUPS

Slice six thin slices of bologna, straight across the sausage. Leave casing on. Place slices in frying pan with a very little fat. Heat gradually with low heat until the edges curl up to form a perfect cup. Fill with hot potato salad made this way:

Hot potato salad: Cook in jackets in covered saucepan until tender, 6 medium sized potatoes. Peel and slice potatoes while they are hot. Heat in a skillet 2 tablespoons drippings and add and brown ¼ cup chopped onion, ¼ cup chopped celery and 1 chopped dill pickle. Heat to boiling point, ¼ cup water, 1/3 cup vinegar, ½ teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika and ¼ teaspoon dry mustard. Pour this mixture into skillet, add the potatoes, then fill bologna cups and serve while piping hot.

A broiled dinner is also possible when the home style loaf of cold cuts is used. This might be your menu:

Dinner Menu

Broiled Cold Cuts
Tomato Slices
Green Beans
Tossed Vegetable Salad
Chilled Cantaloupe
Beverage

To prepare the broiled home-style loaf, slice about ½ inch thick. Lay slices on broiler rack. Slice tomatoes about ½ inch thick, lay on rack, sprinkle with salt, sugar, pepper and dot with butter or margarine. Broil meat about 5 minutes on one side, then turn and cook on other side. The tomato slices will broil while meat is cooking.

Chilean Minister Will Be Entertained

By Marie McNair

Chile's Foreign Minister, Joaquin Fernandez y Fernandez, is making the most of his trip to Los Estados Unidos.

Head of his country's delegation to the San Francisco Conference, Senor Fernandez y Fernandez went straight to New York when the sessions ended and will come to Washington tomorrow for a long weekend. From here the distinguished visitor will go to the Dominican Republic and Haiti and then on to Lima, Peru, with the rank of Special Ambassador, to attend the inauguration ceremonies of President Bustamante.

With Senor Fernandez y Fernandez when he arrives tomorrow will be the former members of the Chilean Embassy staff here—Mario Rodriguez and Fernando Illanes, who were with the Foreign Minister in San Francisco. Already back from the conference are Fausto Soto, First Secretary of the Embassy and Victor Rioseco, Second Secretary, and the Ambassador, Marcial Mora, returned last night, after having spent several days in New York with Senor Fernandez y Fernandez.

Plan Dinner Party

A dinner party at the Chilean Embassy in honor of the visitors has already been set for Saturday night and on Friday Joseph Grew, Undersecretary of State, will entertain at luncheon at Blair House for the Foreign Minister.

Delegates to the Conference from Australia will also be in town for the weekend and the Australian Minister, Sir Frederic Eggleston, only just back from San Francisco, will entertain for them at a cocktail party on Friday afternoon.

Expected From Chile

Expected any day now from Chile with a new job to do is Carlos Campbell of the Ministry of Economy and Commerce, who has just been named to the Inter-American Development Commission.

Carlos, who was for many years Commercial Counselor of the Chilean Embassy, will have his headquarters in New York, will stay with his son-in-law and daughter, Enrique and Noni Gacitua. Senor Gagitua is Chilean Consul in New York. Carlos will come down to Washington frequently, however, which is good news to all his friends here.

Marriages on Decrease

Marriages are on the decrease, travel on the increase, according to the Summer Social Register, just off the press. An index to the times, the Social Register has found that more people are fleeing the city for the mountains and the beaches this year than they did last season, in spite of travel restrictions. New England, Long Island and the Jersey shore show the heaviest increase in summer residents, the number of families listed in these sections being 4154, as compared to 3768 in 1944. New England has remained in a static state, but there is a jump in the number of travelers to Canada and abroad.

Since the wartime rush to the altar began in 1942, marriages have shown a steady decrease from 1681 three years ago to 1018 in 1944.

Widow, 42, Renounced Affair With Married Man Four Years Ago; Now Engaged to Wed, She Asks Whether to Reveal Past to Fiance

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a businesswoman of 42. When I was 28 I was divorced. Two years later I fell in love with a school day friend. He was married and had children. For the next 10 years we were devoted lovers. During that time I asked nothing from him and he gave me nothing except of his own free will.

Finally I realized that I couldn't continue to live the clandestine life our relations required, so I broke it off. Now I am engaged to marry a man who knows nothing of my past life, but he does know my former lover. Have I a chance for happiness if I don't reveal to him how I lived those 10 years? N. S.

Ill Prepared For Marriage

DEAR N. S.: If the memory of those 10 years still weighs heavily on your conscience, psychologically you are ill prepared for marriage and it is urgently advisable to confess yourself to a spiritual counselor or a psychiatrist, as you prefer, to relieve your soul of guilty apprehension.

Your chances of happiness would not be improved by revealing that clandestine chapter to the man who asks to be your husband. On the contrary, mutual harm would be done. You would hurt him and once more cripple your spiritual powers, without helping anything.

Suppose he accepted your confession in generous spirit, agreeing to forgive and forget—as you would devoutly hope. Despite his best intentions, his mind would be afflicted with subtle miseries in subsequent dealings with the other man. He would be paying endless penalty for something in which he had no part; and something which, when profoundly repented and finally renounced in a spirit of righteous resolve, had by that act of contrition already invoked the redemptive forgiveness of God, to erase its negative effects from your life and character.

Let Dead Past Bury Its Dead

So Scripture tells us. The apostle Paul in his writings dwells on the theme that those who are tempted and fall, who rise to valiantly relinquish error, in the chastened conviction that godly conduct alone gives happiness, are literally reborn pure in spirit. They are, as he says, transformed by the renewing of their minds,—which means, by conscious dedication and faithful adherence to Christ-taught standards.

The Old Testament uses the story of Lot's wife to illustrate the danger of harking back to sinful conditions one has fled. Jesus told his followers, in effect, to let the dead past bury its dead. The touchstone of spiritual progress is peace of heart, and until you have found that peace with regard to your past you should not enter marriage. When you have it, outgrown mistakes will be forgotten. Only wisdom and charity will mark their graves.

He Can't Give Peace of Heart

BUT YOU can't gain that peace, or any reassurance that would serve as substitute, by throwing yourself on your fiance's mercy in this matter. It is not improbable that his code and instinct might severely condemn the considerable transgression and create in his mind a scandalized aversion to marrying you. In which case you would have resurrected the past to your mutual demoralization. So if you love him, spare him profitless pain. Unburden your soul to a properly accredited "giver of light." M. H.

In Memoriam

HINKEL, LEROY—In loving memory of my dear beloved husband, LEROY HINKEL, who passed away July 6, 1945. Your life was unselfish and for others lived,
Not for what you received, but what you could give.
I often sit and think of you and speak of how you died,
To think you could not say goodbye before you closed your eyes.
God only knows our feelings of a loved one slipped away
To pause past understanding; it was hard to part with one so dear, and understanding.
For this world would seem like heaven if I could have you back again.
Deep in my heart lives a picture of a loved one laid to rest.
ELSIE G. HINKEL.
